Chester Father, Son Rebuild Antique Autos

By GLENN WAIGHT

With an ancient blacksmith drill, hammers, pliers, varnish and solder, the Ted Martins — father and son — use their cluttered alley garage in Chester as a "time machine" — turning rusty relics of the road into gleaming reincarnations of the early 1900's.

As summer approaches, Ted, 62 and Ted Jr. (Terry) will be wiping the grease from their hands and heading for district parades and antique auto shows to capture more prizes with their high-wheeled 1908 Sears Motor Buggy or their 1917 Model T Ford roadster, stirring thousands of memories.

For nine years, Ted of 523 Louisiana Ave., a weighmaster at the Crucible Steel Co. at Midland, and Terry, 26, of 510 Carolina Ave., a kitchen cabinet contractor, have been antique auto buffs in a joint hobby.

IN 1954 TERRY decided to purchase a 1929 Buick sedan at Youngstown for $30 — "I wanted something different just to play with."

Ted, who had never been much interested in cars, was skeptical. "He said I was nuts," Terry recalls, "And declared he didn't want anything like that around here'."

Today, the family's original one-car garage has an addition, and both are jamed with fenders, frames, axles, tires, pistons, springs, nuts, bolts and other vital organs of vintage vehicles.

The two Martins currently own the prize-winning 1908 Sears, a 1908 Schact Motor Buggy, the Model T. roadster, and a 1½-ton Model A pickup truck — all in running condition.

They also have a 1909 Sears Surrey about 80 per cent restored, a 1911 Model T touring car and a 1938 Bantam roadster, both disassembled, and another 1908 Sears, also scattered about in parts.

Since that first Buick, the Martins have had a 1929 Essex and 1923 Ford and 1925 Ford touring cars, which they sold, a 1926 Ford sedan and a 1926 Ford coupe stripped for parts, a 1923 Chevrolet coupe and a Maxwell touring car which they sold, and a 1926 Ford truck and a 1930 Ford coupe, also dissected to give new life to other auto relatives.

PRIDE OF THE Martin fleet is the sparkling Sears — built by the renowned Sears Roebuck & Co. at Chicago — which apeared on the cover of the "Antique Automobile" magazine, photographed when it won a national second prize in its class at Hershey, Pa., last summer.

This Sears has picked up many awards in parades and shows. Its first award for the Martins was a second prize at the Granville Rally in 1956 and it since has come up with prizes for either the oldest or most unusual auto in almost every show or event it has been entered.

The Sears was in the Hershey show in 1956, 1959 and in 1962 when 850 autos were registered for the largest antique car gathering in recent history, Terry said.

Ted and Terry obtained the black and red high-wheeler, powered by a two-cylinder air-cooled motor, from another collector at New Springfield in 1956. The 1909 Sears Surrey on which they are now at work they got in 1960 at Warren.

The chain - driven Sears, guided by a lever, shows clearly the adaptation of the gasoline motor to the horse - drawn wagon or buggy.

It was an early stage of the evolution of the automobile which brought more sophisticated motors, steering mechanisms, suspension systems and enclosed bodies.

The Schact Motor Buggy was obtained at Weirton in 1961 from the family of the original owner. The Schact firm at Cincinnati made cars from 1904 to 1912, then turned to building trucks.

PARTS ARE now being gathered to reassemble the Model T which they obtained five years ago from the original owner at Knoxville in Jefferson County. The 1911 auto and its four-cylindered motor — built only two years after Henry Ford's first "T" in 1909 —had been rusting in a field since 1935 and most collectors would have considered it past restoration. The chassis and motor had been mounted to pump an oil well.

Kenneth McArdle of Newell provided the 1917 Model T roadster—the first of the "black shell" radiator "T's" — previous models had brass radiator covers.

There were only 19,000 miles on the green and black Model A truck when they got it in 1960 from the Watson estate. Familiar to many in the district because Terry uses it in his cabinet business, the truck was the first Model A sold in Chester.

The Model A came out in January 1928, but Fred Temple, the Integration Battle Still Up In Air

Birmingham 'Pact' Stirs Varied Views By Rival Factions

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Jubilant Negro integration leaders mapped plans today for a voter registration drive on the heels of what they considered an overwhelming victory in Birmingham's six-week-long integration effort.

City officials, however, scoffed at a biracial citizen's committee agreement on proposals to end the conflict, which has seen more than 2,000 Negroes arrested and fire hoses and police dogs brought into play to control seething throngs of Negro demonstrators.

Integration forces — led by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta—had kept the city virtually under siege since April 3.

As the Negroes began gathering volunteers for a door-to-door registration campaign, city leaders were adamant in their statements that the agreement was not binding on them.

Staunch segregationist Police Commissioner Eugene Connor, who directed the arrests and repulsed the crowds, said the agreement was "the lyingest face-saving statement that ever was issued."

"We've licked them and licked them good," he declared.

Connor, however, said he would not interfere if businessmen wished to integrate their lunch counters—one of the key points King said was agreed upon by the group.

King said the agreement provided:

1. Desegregation of lunch counters, rest rooms, fitting rooms and drinking fountains in downtown stores in planned stages within the next 90 days.

2. The upgrading and hiring of Negroes on a nondiscriminatory basis, including the hiring of Negroes as clerks and salesmen within the next 60 days.

3. Arrangements for the release of all persons arrested during racial demonstrations on bond or personal recognizance.

4. Communications between Negroes and white persons to be re-established within the next two weeks.

Mayor Albert Boutwell says the agreement is not binding on the newly-chosen mayor and City Council.

Private Ends Up In Firing Zone

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — "At first I thought about retribution to the guy who left me there, but mostly I was just scared to death."

With these words, Pvt. Daniel J. Arthur, 17, described Friday his feelings during ten hours in a target area where thousands of rounds of live ammunition were falling.

Arthur was left to guard a phoney mine field as part of Exercise Coulee Crest, an Air Force-Army maneuver. The exercise began May 5 and ends May 20 on a million acres of central Washington.

The Los Angeles soldier, part of the "defending" Blue forces, was to be captured by elements of the "invading" Red forces. His captors failed to show up.

Gen. Paul D. Adams, commander in chief of the U.S. Strike Command and head of the exercise, said Arthur was erroneously accounted for as being out of the area.

At 6:09 a.m. Thursday the Red artillery opened fire. Arthur was asleep in his pup tent.

"When I first woke up I thought it was jets breaking the sound barrier," he said. "Then I looked out my tent. At first I just sat there and watched the show and wondered what was going to happen. I wasn't too worried.

"Then the firing got closer and the artillery opened up. I thought I might be sitting on one of their targets.

"I took all my white clothes—long underwear, shirts, shorts, a towel and things of this nature—and spread them out. I also made a small fire of sagebrush to try to attract the attention of the jets, but they couldn't see me at all."

"One artillery shell bounced off a hill and landed 100 yards from me. Their kill radius is 50 yards."

Arthur, who is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds, curled up into a ball to make as small a target as he could. He wore his metal helmet.

During intervals of the bombardment, he worked on a letter to his wife, Wanda, in Tacoma, Wash.

"It ain't so peaceful here any more," the letter started. "There are a bunch of jets tearing holy hell out of my hill."

A little later, he wrote: "The bombs and cannon didn't get me but now they've got the artillery after me. Boy, this could drive a guy nuts.

"Here it is about 3 o'clock. I'm shaking something fierce. I wish they'd stop."

At 3:30 p.m., the artillery fire was suspended and tanks began rolling into the area.

"I could see men coming over a hill," Arthur said in an interview. A tank fired a round which hit 75 or 100 yards up the hill from me. I was hit by rocks and dirt. The small arms fire was something else—I could hear bullets whizzing past me."

Arthur stood up and yelled. Someone called out, "Cease fire" and a jeep rumbled up the hill.

"What in the world are you doing here?" asked an officer.

"Sir," said Arthur, "I'm guarding a mine field."

Gen. Adams praised Arthur as "a brave man and faithful to his orders." He ordered an investigation and said new safety procedures would be instituted.

Progress Seen On Six Other Major Questions At Talks

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)— President Kennedy and Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada held the final formal meeting of their two-day conference today and promised an early pronouncement on the sticky U.S.-Canadian nuclear defense issue.

The President and Pearson began their windup conference at 10 a.m., at Kennedy's oceanfront home.

Agreement on a formal communique, which will deal with the defense issue, was one of the last items of business for the two leaders.

This 4-year-old problem, a major issue in the Canadian election that boosted Pearson to power last month, was discussed by the President and the prime minister during more than four hours of talks Friday.

In addition, both leaders announced at an impromptu press conference Friday night that progress had been made on six other major questions of mutual interest to their neighboring countries.

The touchy defense issue hinges around a proposal to provide American-controlled nuclear warheads for two Bomarc missile bases in Canada.

Pearson and Kennedy gave no advance clue to whether the new Canadian government will accept the warheads, spurned by the preceding administration of defeated Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker. The answer could come in a conference-ending communique later today.

The Kennedy-Pearson talks got under way at the President's summer home in this Cape Cod community less than 90 minutes after the two men arrived to the martial music of a military band at nearby Otis Air Force Base.

"We didn't waste any time getting to our discussion," Pearson said. And he agreed when Kennedy reported that "progress was made on all matters."

Pearson gave a rundown on the first-day topics and it was evident that the first issues tackled were the most difficult.

A question of broader world interest—the crisis in Laos—was discussed by the two heads of government during a general discussion Friday night of East-West relations. Canada is a member of the three-nation group set up to help insure the independence and neutrality of Communist-threatened Laos.

In addition to the Bomarc issue, Pearson said the initial talk before a roaring log fire in Kennedy's living room dealt with:

1. Proposals to develop and use expanded channels of communication between the American and

Astronaut Moves Into 'Ready Room'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. began his final 72-hour preparation today for his scheduled rendezvous with the stars next Tuesday.

He moved into the pilots' "ready room" at Cape Canaveral's Hangar S, where five previous U.S. astronauts spent their last days before their flights. Cooper will not be confined to Hangar S, but will spend much of his time there resting and studying the flight plan.

He started a low-residue diet designed to reduce excretion during the planned 34-hour mission in which he is to circle the globe 22 times. The diet, laced with ample protein, includes meat, rice, eggs, sugar, fruit juices, coffee and tea.

On Cooper's agenda today were a series of meetings to review the mission and discuss status of the Atlas booster rocket, the "Faith 7" spacecraft, the worldwide tracking network, weather and other flight phases.

Doctors were to make several medical checks in the final three days to obtain baseline data for comparison with information to be radioed during the flight.

Man's ability to perform during prolonged exposure to space weightlessness is a main objective of the flight and medical information therefore will be of primary concern.

Sunday the tracking network will be given a thorough communications checkout.

At Cleveland Hospital

Delicate Brain Operation Seen As 'Breakthrough'

CLEVELAND (AP)—At the climax of a rare and delicate brain operation lasting nine hours, doctors lowered the patient's body temperature to 54 degrees — and then suspended breathing, heart beat and blood circulation for 12 tense minutes.

The story of the pioneer operation at St. Vincent's Charity Hospital Wednesday on 63-year-old Mrs. Elma Adams of Cleveland was told Friday night by Dr. Edward J. Bishop. He was the chief neurosurgeon on the team of 15 specialists who performed the operation.

Ninety minutes after completing the operation to repair a ruptured aneurysm of the anterior communicating artery, Mrs. Adams was able to talk to relatives. She had no measurable ill effects, Dr. Bishop reported. She now is listed in good condition.

The blood vessel is so small—a drop of blood could hide it. This has made such a condition normally inoperable. It was considered dangerous because the vessel, in addition to being tiny, is over the optic nerve and in front of the pituitary gland. It is close to blood vessels which, if damaged, could bring paralysis to the extremities.

Dr. Bishop said the operation was a success because of hypothermia (lowering body temperature), berfusion techniques (introducing a fluid into the body), the heart-lung machine, and modern anesthesia. The operating group was able to support life artificially while organs or systems were cut off in their functioning.

Purpose of the cooling was to put the patient's brain into a state where the metabolism was slowed down sufficiently that it did not need much oxygen. Thus, the brain could do without blood for a period, and the surgeon was given more safe time to repair the rupture. The vessel was clamped off with two silver clips.

Prime Minister Out, Syria Eyes New Rule

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria's National Revolutionary Council announced today it had accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Salah Bitar and appointed Dr. Sami Jundi to form a new government.

The move appeared aimed at ending a week of political crisis and riotous demonstrations that threatened the coming federation of Syria with Iraq and President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The decrees were announced by Damascus radio after a fourth all-night session of the revolutionary council.

Rain Arrives With Colder Temperature

A cold front moved across the Tri-State District late Friday, bringing much - needed rain but tumbling temperatures after three days of mid-80 weather.

And it'll be colder — the low expected tonight will be 33 to 40 with the possibility of scattered frost. Sunday will be fair and warmer.

The first substantial rain in nearly two weeks arrived about 4:30 and while hard was brief. Occasional showers continued during the night. The mercury fell sharply as the storm arrived and tumbled steadily during the night to a cool 39 in the downtown this morning.

The Stratton Dam registered only a trace of precipitation, indicating the storm was more localized in this area.

The temperature fell 37 degrees from yesterday afternoon to 1 this morning, then steadied.

The high yesterday afternoon was 83, and the overnight low was 43. The day's high was expected to range between 50 and 56.

High winds preceded the storm front but the Ohio Valley escaped the hail that battered communities in mid-Ohio. Winds lashed the Cleveland area, however.

The rain apparently alleviated the dry conditions in woods and brushlands and probably will result in lifting the ban on outdoor fires.

Murder Filed For Stabbing

Weirton Man Held For Action Of Jury

WEIRTON — Leonard Brown, 31, was bound over to the fall term of the Hancock County Grand Jury on a general charge of murder in the fatal stabbing of a neighbor following a preliminary hearing Friday afternoon in Municipal Court.

Judge Norman D. Ferrari Jr. ordered Brown held without bond after hearing Police Lt. Edward Sikora and Detective Sgt. Edward Gialluco testify in the death of Floyd Cochrane, 36, last Sunday at Brown's home on 3rd St.

Lt. Sikora, Sgt. Gialluco and Patrolman David Mentzer also were witnesses at a coroner's inquest last night at City Hall.

Coroner John D. Herron of New Cumberland said the six - man jury's verdict was that Mr. Cochrane died of a stab wound in the lower abdomen "caused by a knife in the hands of one Leonard Brown."

Ex-Red Hero Gets Death In Spy Hearing

Russian Tribunal Sentences Briton To 8-Year Term

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet military tribunal today sentenced former Soviet official Oleg Penkovsky to death for espionage. His British codefendant, Greville Wynne, got an eight-year prison term.

The two were convicted by a military court after a five-day trial.

The verdict and sentence were read by the court president, Lt. Gen. Viktor Borisoglebsky.

Wynne's sentence was broken down to consist of three years in prison and the remainder in a corrective labor camp.

Penkovsky was stripped of all his medals, colonel's rank and World War II decorations.

The crowd broke into 30 seconds of applause as the sentences were read.

Wynne, a British businessman for whom the prosecution had asked a 10-year term, had asked the court for clemency, saying it was the 11th birthday of his son, Andrew.

"It will be such a shock for my little boy," Wynne told the three-judge military tribunal, "that I am not with him to wish him many happy returns."

"I ask you to remember my son, my wife and my aged father. I very much want my aged father to see me, but in England," Wynne added in concluding his

Cold Weather Strikes Many Parts Of U.S.

Heavy Snow Falls In Northeast; Hail Hits Some Areas

By The Associated Press

Hot spring temperatures beat a hasty retreat today as cold weather, snow, hail, storms and brisk winds belabored many parts of the country.

In the northeast, snow was reported from northern New York eastward over the New England area. A five-inch snowfall was reported in Rumford, Maine, in a six-hour period. Isolated thunderstorms which developed over Oklahoma dropped more than an inch of hail in the Taft area.

Lightning caused scattered damage in Massachusetts. Electrical transformers were struck, blacking out parts of Arlington Center and Lynnfield, suburbs of Boston. Some 200 homes were without power in Lynnfield.

The Great Lakes region—which sweltered with temperatures in the low 90s this week—went for the overcoat as the 30s prevailed.

The northeastern section of the country had cold, cloudy and wet weather. Severe thunderstorms prevailed over southeastern Missouri, in all of Kentucky, parts of Virginia and in some parts of Pennsylvania.

Duffy Leaves Bench, Terms Illness 'Minor'

Councilman Frank P. Duffy, 1623 Holiday St., Democratic nominee for mayor, left his bench at the Harker Pottery Co. and went home Friday after he was taken ill, but later termed the ailment "just a minor upset."

"I was a little sick at my stomach and had a headache, but I'm all right now," Duffy said yesterday afternoon. He was taken ill yesterday morning at Harker's, where he has worked many years.

Mrs. Duffy also termed her husband's illness minor, attributing it partly to the strain of the pre-primary campaign.

The Kennedy-Pearson talks got under way at the President's summer home in this Cape Cod community less than 90 minutes after the two men arrived to the martial music of a military band at nearby Otis Air Force Base.

"We didn't waste any time getting to our discussion," Pearson said. And he agreed when Kennedy reported that "progress was made on all matters."

Pearson gave a rundown on the first-day topics and it was evident that the first issues tackled were the most difficult.

A question of broader world interest—the crisis in Laos—was discussed by the two heads of government during a general discussion Friday night of East-West relations. Canada is a member of the three-nation group set up to help insure the independence and neutrality of Communist-threatened Laos.

In addition to the Bomarc issue, Pearson said the initial talk before a roaring log fire in Kennedy's living room dealt with:

Astronaut Moves Into 'Ready Room'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. began his final 72-hour preparation today for his scheduled rendezvous with the stars next Tuesday.

He moved into the pilots' "ready room" at Cape Canaveral's Hangar S, where five previous U.S. astronauts spent their last days before their flights. Cooper will not be confined to Hangar S, but will spend much of his time there resting and studying the flight plan.

He started a low-residue diet designed to reduce excretion during the planned 34-hour mission in which he is to circle the globe 22 times. The diet, laced with ample protein, includes meat, rice, eggs, sugar, fruit juices, coffee and tea.

On Cooper's agenda today were a series of meetings to review the mission and discuss status of the Atlas booster rocket, the "Faith 7" spacecraft, the worldwide tracking network, weather and other flight phases.

Doctors were to make several medical checks in the final three days to obtain baseline data for comparison with information to be radioed during the flight.

Man's ability to perform during prolonged exposure to space weightlessness is a main objective of the flight and medical information therefore will be of primary concern.

Sunday the tracking network will be given a thorough communications checkout.

At Cleveland Hospital

Delicate Brain Operation Seen As 'Breakthrough'

CLEVELAND (AP)—At the climax of a rare and delicate brain operation lasting nine hours, doctors lowered the patient's body temperature to 54 degrees — and then suspended breathing, heart beat and blood circulation for 12 tense minutes.

The story of the pioneer operation at St. Vincent's Charity Hospital Wednesday on 63-year-old Mrs. Elma Adams of Cleveland was told Friday night by Dr. Edward J. Bishop. He was the chief neurosurgeon on the team of 15 specialists who performed the operation.

Ninety minutes after completing the operation to repair a ruptured aneurysm of the anterior communicating artery, Mrs. Adams was able to talk to relatives. She had no measurable ill effects, Dr. Bishop reported. She now is listed in good condition.

It is believed the technique used in the operation represents a significant breakthrough in brain surgery.

The blood vessel is so small—a drop of blood could hide it. This has made such a condition normally inoperable. It was considered dangerous because the vessel, in addition to being tiny, is over the optic nerve and in front of the pituitary gland. It is close to blood vessels which, if damaged, could bring paralysis to the extremities.

Dr. Bishop said the operation was a success because of hypothermia (lowering body temperature), berfusion techniques (introducing a fluid into the body), the heart-lung machine, and modern anesthesia. The operating group was able to support life artificially while organs or systems were cut off in their functioning.

Purpose of the cooling was to put the patient's brain into a state where the metabolism was slowed down sufficiently that it did not need much oxygen. Thus, the brain could do without blood for a period, and the surgeon was given more safe time to repair the rupture. The vessel was clamped off with two silver clips.

Prime Minister Out, Syria Eyes New Rule

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria's National Revolutionary Council announced today it had accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Salah Bitar and appointed Dr. Sami Jundi to form a new government.

The move appeared aimed at ending a week of political crisis and riotous demonstrations that threatened the coming federation of Syria with Iraq and President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The decrees were announced by Damascus radio after a fourth all-night session of the revolutionary council.

Rain Arrives With Colder Temperature

A cold front moved across the Tri-State District late Friday, bringing much - needed rain but tumbling temperatures after three days of mid-80 weather.

And it'll be colder — the low expected tonight will be 33 to 40 with the possibility of scattered frost. Sunday will be fair and warmer.

The first substantial rain in nearly two weeks arrived about 4:30 and while hard was brief. Occasional showers continued during the night. The mercury fell sharply as the storm arrived and tumbled steadily during the night to a cool 39 in the downtown this morning.

The Stratton Dam registered only a trace of precipitation, indicating the storm was more localized in this area.

The temperature fell 37 degrees from yesterday afternoon to 1 this morning, then steadied.

The high yesterday afternoon was 83, and the overnight low was 43. The day's high was expected to range between 50 and 56.

High winds preceded the storm front but the Ohio Valley escaped the hail that battered communities in mid-Ohio. Winds lashed the Cleveland area, however.

The rain apparently alleviated the dry conditions in woods and brushlands and probably will result in lifting the ban on outdoor fires.

Weirton Man Held For Action Of Jury

WEIRTON — Leonard Brown, 31, was bound over to the fall term of the Hancock County Grand Jury on a general charge of murder in the fatal stabbing of a neighbor following a preliminary hearing Friday afternoon in Municipal Court.

Judge Norman D. Ferrari Jr. ordered Brown held without bond after hearing Police Lt. Edward Sikora and Detective Sgt. Edward Gialluco testify in the death of Floyd Cochrane, 36, last Sunday at Brown's home on 3rd St.

Lt. Sikora, Sgt. Gialluco and Patrolman David Mentzer also were witnesses at a coroner's inquest last night at City Hall.

Coroner John D. Herron of New Cumberland said the six - man jury's verdict was that Mr. Cochrane died of a stab wound in the lower abdomen "caused by a knife in the hands of one Leonard Brown."

Ex-Red Hero Gets Death In Spy Hearing

Russian Tribunal Sentences Briton To 8-Year Term

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet military tribunal today sentenced former Soviet official Oleg Penkovsky to death for espionage. His British codefendant, Greville Wynne, got an eight-year prison term.

The two were convicted by a military court after a five-day trial.

The verdict and sentence were read by the court president, Lt. Gen. Viktor Borisoglebsky.

Wynne's sentence was broken down to consist of three years in prison and the remainder in a corrective labor camp.

Penkovsky was stripped of all his medals, colonel's rank and World War II decorations.

The crowd broke into 30 seconds of applause as the sentences were read.

Wynne, a British businessman for whom the prosecution had asked a 10-year term, had asked the court for clemency, saying it was the 11th birthday of his son, Andrew.

"It will be such a shock for my little boy," Wynne told the three-judge military tribunal, "that I am not with him to wish him many happy returns."

"I ask you to remember my son, my wife and my aged father. I very much want my aged father to see me, but in England," Wynne added in concluding his

Cold Weather Strikes Many Parts Of U.S.

Heavy Snow Falls In Northeast; Hail Hits Some Areas

By The Associated Press

Hot spring temperatures beat a hasty retreat today as cold weather, snow, hail, storms and brisk winds belabored many parts of the country.

In the northeast, snow was reported from northern New York eastward over the New England area. A five-inch snowfall was reported in Rumford, Maine, in a six-hour period. Isolated thunderstorms which developed over Oklahoma dropped more than an inch of hail in the Taft area.

Lightning caused scattered damage in Massachusetts. Electrical transformers were struck, blacking out parts of Arlington Center and Lynnfield, suburbs of Boston. Some 200 homes were without power in Lynnfield.

The Great Lakes region—which sweltered with temperatures in the low 90s this week—went for the overcoat as the 30s prevailed.

The northeastern section of the country had cold, cloudy and wet weather. Severe thunderstorms prevailed over southeastern Missouri, in all of Kentucky, parts of Virginia and in some parts of Pennsylvania.

Elections Pledged

Duffy Leaves Bench, Terms Illness 'Minor'

Councilman Frank P. Duffy, 1623 Holiday St., Democratic nominee for mayor, left his bench at the Harker Pottery Co. and went home Friday after he was taken ill, but later termed the ailment "just a minor upset."

"I was a little sick at my stomach and had a headache, but I'm all right now," Duffy said yesterday afternoon. He was taken ill yesterday morning at Harker's, where he has worked many years.

Mrs. Duffy also termed her husband's illness minor, attributing it partly to the strain of the pre-primary campaign.

City Group Meets

Steps Approved On Master Plan

Additional steps toward a comprehensive master plan for East Liverpool and the city's participation in a regional planning organization being established in Columbiana County were taken at a meeting of the City Planning Commission Friday night at City Hall.

The commission decided to interview four engineering firms interested in preparing the master plan. The four sent letters expressing their interest after the organization notified firms that had submitted bids several years ago that it was reinstating the plan.

NO DATE HAS been set for the start of the interviews, which will be open to the public.

The commission also received formal notification from Council of an appropriation of $7,500 for the comprehensive plan.

It also voted to ask Council for an additional $250 for incidental expenses and discussed the need for filing cabinets and desk space. The commission decided to seek permission to use the engineer's office on the second floor at City Hall.

The commission also voted to send a resolution to county commissioners of the city's intent to participate in the regional planning organization after discussing Council's expressed intent to proceed with participation.

JUDGE LOUIS Tobin asked questions regarding the regional organization, representation and cost which were answered by other commission members. The organization will not be definitely established until the regional group is formed but the tentative cost has been set at one cent per capita, which would make East Liverpool's cost approximately $230.

E. L. Wheatley read an article from The Review regarding federal funds to another tri-county regional planning group and noted the availability of federal funds.

Tobin notified the commission any ideas it has on beautification of the riverfront will be considered when the Board of Thompson Park commissioners meets May 27 at 4:30 p. m. in Atty. William H. Vodrey Jr.'s law office to discuss the program.

ON A MOTION by George Steele, the commission decided to send a letter commending the Junior Chamber of Commerce for preparation of the "Charlie" booklets on a master plan.

The commission also agreed to invite the St. Clair Township Development Association and any other interested suburban groups to its meetings. Co-operation between the St. Clair and East Liverpool organizations also was discussed.

Richard Mattern represented the St. Clair group at the meeting and asked for 25 copies of the "Charlie" booklet for use in the township. Don Eckert, chairman, presided.

SPRING AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Surprising though it may seem, Spring, with its sunshine and showers, is just about the most critical time of the year for owners of septic tanks.

To correctly understand the aforementioned statement it is first necessary to anaylze the workings of septic tanks, and the effect of seasonal changes.

Your septic tank is a chamber wherein exists a complex of micro-organisms, each type equipped to handle and dispose of different types of waste material. Working as a team, these infinitestimal forms of life break down and liquefy the solids, leaving only a liquid which is free to run out for final disposal in your drainfield or drywell. Regularly activated, these living "garbage disposals" will normally keep up with the flow of waste, and your system will function properly. However, surveys show that during the spring season, more systems "back-up" and overflow than at any other time of year, creating expensive and highly unsanitary conditions.

WHY???

The answer to that question is simply "temperature". Bacterial life dislikes temperature changes, and, since your septic tank has no heating system to keep things cozy so that they can go about their work in comfort, they die off in the millions and billions when winter arrives, leaving only a "skeleton crew" of weakened bacteria to handle the heavy loads. Consequently, as winter months pass slowly by, a build-up of undigested grease and solids occurs, clogging the tank and passing through to the disposal fields. Grease congeals and deposits in the pores of the soil, almost to the point of being beyond repair. Melting ice, snow, and spring showers add to the problem by increasing the amount of water entering the system.

HOW SEA-CAL ENZYMES HELP

The powerful digestive powers of the enzymes contained in SEA-CAL rapidly liquefy the hard grease packs in the septic tanks and drainfields, changing such grease and other solids into available food for the bacteria. SEA-CAL also contains 80,000,000 anerobic bacteria per gram (28 grams in each ounce), and with each bacteria reproducing itself many times a day, the micro-organism population is rapidly built up to adequate numbers, with the ultimate return of full operating efficiency.

Lisbon Area Man Held To Grand Jury Action

SALEM — Kenneth Leroy McVay of Lisbon R.D. 1, charged with breaking and entering, was bound over to the Grand Jury under $500 bond Friday by County Judge Luther Donbar.

He pleaded innocent to the charge of breaking into Stewart's Recreation in Homeworth this spring and taking cigars, candy, money, cigarettes and razor blades.

McVay was committed to the County Jail at Lisbon in lieu of bond.

Chester Father And Son Rebuild Antique Autos

dealer, was unable to get delivery until August because of the great demand through the nation. And the first vehicle Temple got was a truck!

A 13-INCH long motor powers the unassembled 1938 Bantam roadster, built by the Bantam Motor Car Co. of Butler, Pa., which first developed the Jeep. The Jeep, of course, was taken over by Willys and made into one of the most famous vehicles in the world.

Terry says the Bantam firm made the little Austens of 1930-35, then came out with the Bantam which it produced until 1940. He said it was the first "economy car," preceding the tiny Crosley and the ill-fated Henry J.

Terry drove all the way to Dansville, N.Y., in 1961 to get the 1908 Sears, now disassembled, after reading about it in a magazine ad.

Storage has become a critical problem for the two car fanciers. That's one reason why some of the cars remain in pieces — there isn't room enough to house them along with the tools, other cars and their current projects.

Ted Senior does all the mechanical repairs and part replacements while the junior partner is in charge of the woodwork and body repairs. Most of the early autos had wooden bodies.

Ted has had to make some of his own tools in meeting the challenge of mechanical problems of 50 years ago. One is a spreader device used to place the hard rubber tires onto the spoked wheel rims of the motorized buggies. Previously the Martins had to take the wheels to Amish workmen — such as those at Hartville — to have the tires mounted and wired in place.

ANY PARTS which cannot be bought or swapped have to be manufactured by casting and forming, Terry points out. In the West Virginia Region of the Antique Auto Club of America — to which they belong — there is a craftsman at Charleston who does speciality work on restoring motors.

This buff rebuilt the motor in the Schact for the Martins in exchange for construction of an entire wooden car body by Terry.

The only project the Martins won't take on is replacing the upholstered seats and tops. This is done either by a man at Beardstown, Ill., who caters to the antique car trade, or by another craftsman at Youngstown.

Terry served for two years as director of the West Virginia AACA unit and was editor of the group's newsletter. The car fancier, the father of a son and two daughters, declares the primary reward for the hours and expense involved in the hobby is seeing the pleasure the public gets from the old-time autos.

Ted, a native of Pughtown who worked for 18 years on a bread truck route before joining Crucible, says he is in the hobby "just for the fun, just to see the cars brought in here in baskets and a year later to go putt-putting away."

Both lament the loss of auto parts by people who have thrown them away from garages and basements without realizing how useful or valuable they might be.

THE PUBLIC, generally, has a misconception about the price of the vintage cars which are in the original shape or are restored.

Most of the old cars, because they are impractical for heavy or long - distance driving, are worth far less than a new modern car even if in good reconditioned shape.

Some extremely rare cars in top condition, of course, may command higher prices. But most of the vehicles, especially if worn out and rusted, are not worth much until they are given the long hours of work and expensive new parts in the process of restoration.

But whatever the price and whatever the style of car, the Martins have the envy of almost every district resident who retains the American's traditional love for his auto.

The high-gaited, clattering ancesters of today's modern, low-slung gasoline gulpers may not climb St. Clair Ave. faster than 5 miles an hour.

But there are few who cannot admire the basic utilitarian beauty of autos which withstood the test of time, technical advance and the raucus call of "Get a horse!"

Lisbon Council Set

East End Post Host

Bert Keck Of Glenmoor Heads County Legion

Bert Keck of Glenmoor Post 736 was elected commander of the Columbiana County American Legion Council at its annual meeting Friday night with Post 374 in East End as host. Fifty attended. Installation will be June 14. He succeeds Al Hayes of Columbiana Post 290.

Other officers elected were James Cregar of Post 374, first vice commander; Olan Sanor of North Georgetown Post 574, second vice commander; J. V. Hughes of Wellsville Post 70, finance officer; John Bartholow of Post 736, chaplain, and William Grate of Post 290, sergeant-at-arms.

Cregar reminded members to make their reservations for the past commanders banquet to be held in East Liverpool June 8.

Stuart Luginbuhl, State Department commander, will be guest speaker. This will be part of the program of the 10th District at the East End Post June 8-9. Kenny Nichols' band will play for dancing following the banquet. Sunday's meeting will be held at East Junior High School with a parade scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Cregar also reported the election of Bowling League officers, including Hayes, president; Sanor, finance officer, and Mrs. Ella Mae McCoy of Lisbon, secretary.

He said an organization meeting was held at Lisbon April 28 for the Columbiana County American Legion junior baseball League. Five teams represented were Salem, East Liverpool, Columbiana, Lisbon and Hanoverton. Leetonia may enter a team. Another meeting will be held in Lisbon May 22 at 2:20 p.m. to complete the organization.

Harmon Zeppernick of Salem Post 56 suggested legionnaires offer their services in their communities to help promote the Civil Defense program.

Keck reported the council is 20 members short of the quota with a total enrollment of 2,686. He urged that posts low in membership to intensify their efforts to put the council over the top before the district convention.

Dwight Bush of North Georgetown Post 574, district first vice commander, thanked the council for its work on membership and urged posts to provide names of their newly - elected officers, delegates and alternates for the department headquarters. He reported that open house will be held in department headquarters in Columbus June 23.

Kenneth Brooks of Post 374 reported that Armed Forces Week begins Monday and that open house will be held at the Reserve Armories throughout the state.

Hayes said Frank Beane of Canton Post 204, past district commander, will install the new council officers at the Glenmoor post affair June 14 and urged all posts to initiate their new members, have their color guards attend the district session here.

Final Concert To Be Tuesday At New Cumberland School

NEW CUMBERLAND — A concert entitled "Finale Magnifique" will be presented by the New Cumberland High School music department Tuesday night at 8 in the auditorium.

It will feature the high school band directed by Floyd Lancia. This will mark the final concert by the music department as New Cumberland students will attend the new consolidated high school at Pughtown with Chester and Newell students.

The band was organized in February 1941 by the New Cumberland Parent - Teacher Association. Don Bradfield of East Liverpool, who attended Geneva College, was called in to work on a part-time basis with the band. Musicians in the first band wore white duck trousers, white shirts and royal blue ties, each purchased by the individual student.

The PTA purchased uniforms later. Henry E. Moody was named the first full-time director in September 1941. He died that December. Ralph Stopp served as director from 1942 to 1945. He resigned and a Miss Deeds instructed the students for six months.

Miss Vivian Landfear then directed the band for a year and during part of the 1945 term the band was without a director. Miss Helen Stobinsky took over in September 1946 and under her direction the band increased from 24 to 65 students. The Band Mothers was organized during Miss Stobinsky's tenure.

Lancia was named in September 1962.

Soloists for the program will be Sandy Lyons, trumpet, and Anita Caine, piano.

Selections will include "Springtime Festival" (Olivadoti), "Londonderry Air" (Dedrick), "Rienzi, Excerpts From the Opera" (Wagner-Osterling arr.), "Deep Purple" (arr. Yoder), "Harbor Lights" (arr. Warrington), "Autumn Leaves" (arr. Nelson), "Apple Blossom Time" (arr. Leonard), "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" (arr. Reed).

"Shangri-La" (arr. Hawkins), "Switzerland of America March" (Dorsey), "West Virginia Centennial Overture" (Dorsey), "Theme from the Apartment" (arr. Werle), "Variation Overture" (Williams), "Casa Grande" (Gass), and "Climb Ev'ry Mountain" (arr. Warrington).

Red Chinese Tighten Control Over Forces

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today it had clamped absolute party control over its armed forces in new regulations which appeared to indicate it does not yet have nuclear weapons.

Peking radio broadcast a summary of the nine new regulations carried by the Liberation Army Daily. They place Red China's armed forces, estimated at 2.5 million men, under the absolute control of the party and Chairman Mao Tze-tung.

Snyder PTA Ends Season

The final meeting of the term for the Ray Snyder Parent-Teacher Association was held Thursday night in the school in Industry, following a dinner for teachers and their husbands and wives.

Mrs. Jack Carland, outgoing president, presided and received a miniature gavel from Mrs. Homer Paul, who installed the following officers, Mrs. Woodrow Pflugh, president; Mrs. George Kelly, first vice president; Mrs. Phillip Graham, second vice president; Mrs. George Anderson, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Camp, secretary.

It was decided to donate any money left in the treasury to a public address system in the school cafeteria.

Mrs. Carland announced that the St. George Tamburitzens will appear May 28 in the new high school for the benefit of the dental clinic.

The attendance banner was won by Miss Nancy George's second grade. This class also won the book for the best yearly attendance.

Mrs. Virginia McGaffick won a prize.

A life membership in the Beaver County PTA was awarded Mrs. Homer Gifford on her retirement from teaching and a donation made to the PTA scholarship fund in her name.

Mrs. Harry Walker, member of the inter-faith committee for decency, spoke on "Obscene Literature."

Lisbon Area Man Held To Grand Jury Action

SALEM — Kenneth Leroy McVay of Lisbon R.D. 1, charged with breaking and entering, was bound over to the Grand Jury under $500 bond Friday by County Judge Luther Donbar.

He pleaded innocent to the charge of breaking into Stewart's Recreation in Homeworth this spring and taking cigars, candy, money, cigarettes and razor blades.

McVay was committed to the County Jail at Lisbon in lieu of bond.

700 At Spring Concert Of City School Choirs

Over 700 attended the "Springtime Serenade" of East Liverpool High School choirs Friday night at the Westgate School auditorium and the group was given a standing ovation for the finale, "Climb Every Mountain."

Another performance will be given tonight at 8. Miss Arletta Helfrich is director.

Chester Father And Son Rebuild Antique Autos

dealer, was unable to get delivery until August because of the great demand through the nation. And the first vehicle Temple got was a truck!

A 13-INCH long motor powers the unassembled 1938 Bantam roadster, built by the Bantam Motor Car Co. of Butler, Pa., which first developed the Jeep. The Jeep, of course, was taken over by Willys and made into one of the most famous vehicles in the world.

Terry says the Bantam firm made the little Austens of 1930-35, then came out with the Bantam which it produced until 1940. He said it was the first "economy car," preceding the tiny Crosley and the ill-fated Henry J.

Terry drove all the way to Dansville, N.Y., in 1961 to get the 1908 Sears, now disassembled, after reading about it in a magazine ad.

Storage has become a critical problem for the two car fanciers. That's one reason why some of the cars remain in pieces — there isn't room enough to house them along with the tools, other cars and their current projects.

Ted Senior does all the mechanical repairs and part replacements while the junior partner is in charge of the woodwork and body repairs. Most of the early autos had wooden bodies.

Ted has had to make some of his own tools in meeting the challenge of mechanical problems of 50 years ago. One is a spreader device used to place the hard rubber tires onto the spoked wheel rims of the motorized buggies. Previously the Martins had to take the wheels to Amish workmen — such as those at Hartville — to have the tires mounted and wired in place.

ANY PARTS which cannot be bought or swapped have to be manufactured by casting and forming, Terry points out. In the West Virginia Region of the Antique Auto Club of America — to which they belong — there is a craftsman at Charleston who does speciality work on restoring motors.

This buff rebuilt the motor in the Schact for the Martins in exchange for construction of an entire wooden car body by Terry.

The only project the Martins won't take on is replacing the upholstered seats and tops. This is done either by a man at Beardstown, Ill., who caters to the antique car trade, or by another craftsman at Youngstown.

Terry served for two years as director of the West Virginia AACA unit and was editor of the group's newsletter. The car fancier, the father of a son and two daughters, declares the primary reward for the hours and expense involved in the hobby is seeing the pleasure the public gets from the old-time autos.

Ted, a native of Pughtown who worked for 18 years on a bread truck route before joining Crucible, says he is in the hobby "just for the fun, just to see the cars brought in here in baskets and a year later to go putt-putting away."

Both lament the loss of auto parts by people who have thrown them away from garages and basements without realizing how useful or valuable they might be.

THE PUBLIC, generally, has a misconception about the price of the vintage cars which are in the original shape or are restored.

Most of the old cars, because they are impractical for heavy or long - distance driving, are worth far less than a new modern car even if in good reconditioned shape.

Some extremely rare cars in top condition, of course, may command higher prices. But most of the vehicles, especially if worn out and rusted, are not worth much until they are given the long hours of work and expensive new parts in the process of restoration.

But whatever the price and whatever the style of car, the Martins have the envy of almost every district resident who retains the American's traditional love for his auto.

The high-gaited, clattering ancesters of today's modern, low-slung gasoline gulpers may not climb St. Clair Ave. faster than 5 miles an hour.

But there are few who cannot admire the basic utilitarian beauty of autos which withstood the test of time, technical advance and the raucus call of "Get a horse!"

Lisbon Council Set

East End Post Host

Bert Keck Of Glenmoor Heads County Legion

Bert Keck of Glenmoor Post 736 was elected commander of the Columbiana County American Legion Council at its annual meeting Friday night with Post 374 in East End as host. Fifty attended. Installation will be June 14. He succeeds Al Hayes of Columbiana Post 290.

Other officers elected were James Cregar of Post 374, first vice commander; Olan Sanor of North Georgetown Post 574, second vice commander; J. V. Hughes of Wellsville Post 70, finance officer; John Bartholow of Post 736, chaplain, and William Grate of Post 290, sergeant-at-arms.

Cregar reminded members to make their reservations for the past commanders banquet to be held in East Liverpool June 8.

Stuart Luginbuhl, State Department commander, will be guest speaker. This will be part of the program of the 10th District at the East End Post June 8-9. Kenny Nichols' band will play for dancing following the banquet. Sunday's meeting will be held at East Junior High School with a parade scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Cregar also reported the election of Bowling League officers, including Hayes, president; Sanor, finance officer, and Mrs. Ella Mae McCoy of Lisbon, secretary.

He said an organization meeting was held at Lisbon April 28 for the Columbiana County American Legion junior baseball League. Five teams represented were Salem, East Liverpool, Columbiana, Lisbon and Hanoverton. Leetonia may enter a team. Another meeting will be held in Lisbon May 22 at 2:20 p.m. to complete the organization.

Harmon Zeppernick of Salem Post 56 suggested legionnaires offer their services in their communities to help promote the Civil Defense program.

Keck reported the council is 20 members short of the quota with a total enrollment of 2,686. He urged that posts low in membership to intensify their efforts to put the council over the top before the district convention.

Dwight Bush of North Georgetown Post 574, district first vice commander, thanked the council for its work on membership and urged posts to provide names of their newly - elected officers, delegates and alternates for the department headquarters. He reported that open house will be held in department headquarters in Columbus June 23.

Kenneth Brooks of Post 374 reported that Armed Forces Week begins Monday and that open house will be held at the Reserve Armories throughout the state.

Hayes said Frank Beane of Canton Post 204, past district commander, will install the new council officers at the Glenmoor post affair June 14 and urged all posts to initiate their new members, have their color guards attend the district session here.

Final Concert To Be Tuesday At New Cumberland School

NEW CUMBERLAND — A concert entitled "Finale Magnifique" will be presented by the New Cumberland High School music department Tuesday night at 8 in the auditorium.

It will feature the high school band directed by Floyd Lancia. This will mark the final concert by the music department as New Cumberland students will attend the new consolidated high school at Pughtown with Chester and Newell students.

The band was organized in February 1941 by the New Cumberland Parent - Teacher Association. Don Bradfield of East Liverpool, who attended Geneva College, was called in to work on a part-time basis with the band. Musicians in the first band wore white duck trousers, white shirts and royal blue ties, each purchased by the individual student.

The PTA purchased uniforms later. Henry E. Moody was named the first full-time director in September 1941. He died that December. Ralph Stopp served as director from 1942 to 1945. He resigned and a Miss Deeds instructed the students for six months.

Miss Vivian Landfear then directed the band for a year and during part of the 1945 term the band was without a director. Miss Helen Stobinsky took over in September 1946 and under her direction the band increased from 24 to 65 students. The Band Mothers was organized during Miss Stobinsky's tenure.

Lancia was named in September 1962.

Soloists for the program will be Sandy Lyons, trumpet, and Anita Caine, piano.

Selections will include "Springtime Festival" (Olivadoti), "Londonderry Air" (Dedrick), "Rienzi, Excerpts From the Opera" (Wagner-Osterling arr.), "Deep Purple" (arr. Yoder), "Harbor Lights" (arr. Warrington), "Autumn Leaves" (arr. Nelson), "Apple Blossom Time" (arr. Leonard), "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" (arr. Reed).

"Shangri-La" (arr. Hawkins), "Switzerland of America March" (Dorsey), "West Virginia Centennial Overture" (Dorsey), "Theme from the Apartment" (arr. Werle), "Variation Overture" (Williams), "Casa Grande" (Gass), and "Climb Ev'ry Mountain" (arr. Warrington).

Red Chinese Tighten Control Over Forces

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today it had clamped absolute party control over its armed forces in new regulations which appeared to indicate it does not yet have nuclear weapons.

Peking radio broadcast a summary of the nine new regulations carried by the Liberation Army Daily. They place Red China's armed forces, estimated at 2.5 million men, under the absolute control of the party and Chairman Mao Tze-tung.

Snyder PTA Ends Season

The final meeting of the term for the Ray Snyder Parent-Teacher Association was held Thursday night in the school in Industry, following a dinner for teachers and their husbands and wives.

Mrs. Jack Carland, outgoing president, presided and received a miniature gavel from Mrs. Homer Paul, who installed the following officers, Mrs. Woodrow Pflugh, president; Mrs. George Kelly, first vice president; Mrs. Phillip Graham, second vice president; Mrs. George Anderson, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Camp, secretary.

It was decided to donate any money left in the treasury to a public address system in the school cafeteria.

Mrs. Carland announced that the St. George Tamburitzens will appear May 26 in the new high school for the benefit of the dental clinic.

The attendance banner was won by Miss Nancy George's second grade. This class also won the book for the best yearly attendance.

Mrs. Virginia McGaffick won a prize.

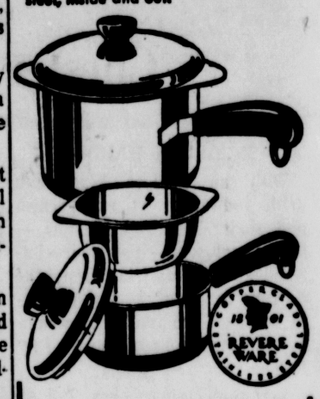

A life membership in the Beaver County PTA was awarded Mrs. Homer Gifford on her retirement from teaching and a donation made to the PTA scholarship fund in her name.

Mrs. Harry Walker, member of the inter-faith committee for decency, spoke on "Obscene Literature."

SPRING AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Surprising though it may seem, Spring, with its sunshine and showers, is just about the most critical time of the year for owners of septic tanks.

To correctly understand the aforementioned statement it is first necessary to anaylze the workings of septic tanks, and the effect of seasonal changes.

Your septic tank is a chamber wherein exists a complex of micro-organisms, each type equipped to handle and dispose of different types of waste material. Working as a team, these infinitesimal forms of life break down and liquefy the solids, leaving only a liquid which is free to run out for final disposal in your drainfield or drywell. Regularly activated, these living "garbage disposals" will normally keep up with the flow of waste, and your system will function properly. However, surveys show that during the spring season, more systems "back-up" and overflow than at any other time of year, creating expensive and highly unsanitary conditions.

WHY???

The answer to that question is simply "temperature". Bacterial life dislikes temperature changes, and, since your septic tank has no heating system to keep things cozy so that they can go about their work in comfort, they die off in the millions and billions when winter arrives, leaving only a "skeleton crew" of weakened bacteria to handle the heavy loads. Consequently, as winter months pass slowly by, a build-up of undigested grease and solids occurs, clogging the tank and passing through to the disposal fields. Grease congeals and deposits in the pores of the soil, almost to the point of being beyond repair. Melting ice, snow, and spring showers add to the problem by increasing the amount of water entering the system.

HOW SEA-CAL ENZYMES HELP

The powerful digestive powers of the enzymes contained in SEA-CAL rapidly liquefy the hard grease packs in the septic tanks and drainfields, changing such grease and other solids into available food for the bacteria. SEA-CAL also contains 80,000,000 anerobic bacteria per gram (28 grams in each ounce), and with each bacteria reproducing itself many times a day, the micro-organism population is rapidly built up to adequate numbers, with the ultimate return of full operating efficiency.

IMPORTANT ! ! ! ! !

FOR THE BEST PROTECTION DURING SPRING, DOUBLE YOUR SEA-CAL TREATMENTS. PARTICULARLY WHERE TANKS ARE UNDERSIZE OR ARE SUBJECT OVERLOADS AND/OR AMOUNTS OF DETERGENTS AND BLEACHES.

Mrs. Marian Rowe

WEIRTON — Mrs. Marian L. Rowe, widow of Joseph L. Rowe, died Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Weirton General Hospital, after suffering a heart attack earlier at the home. She was 73.

Mrs. Rowe was born Nov. 6, 1889, at Salamanca, N.Y., to the late George S. Brown and Millie Josephine Farquharson Brown, and resided in Weirton for 38 years, coming from Sebring. She was married in Niles March 20, 1912. Her husband died April 3, 1960. She was a member of the First Methodist Church of Weirton and the Ida McKinley Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at Niles.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John (Marie) Rinehart of Weirton; a brother, George S. Brown Jr. of Youngstown, and six grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. A daughter, Mrs. Mildred Freeland, died Dec. 9, 1949.

Services will be held Monday at 1 p.m. at the Steel-Wolfe Funeral Home by Dr. A. R. Mansberger, pastor of the Pleasant Valley Methodist Church. Burial will be in Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 7:30 tonight.

Spy

10-minute plea for mercy behind closed doors.

The prosecution Friday demanded 10 years in prison for Wynne and execution for Penkovsky, also charged with passing Soviet secrets to Washington and London. Both are 44.

The court agreed to hear 11th-hour appeals from the pair before handing down the verdicts.

The public was barred from the courtroom but Wynne's words were reported to Western newsmen later by the businessman's Soviet lawyer, Nikolai Borovik.

Wynne was arrested last November while on a trip through the Soviet bloc. He was accused of helping Penkovsky pass secrets to the West.

Borovik said Wynne repeated his allegations that British officials had threatened and blackmailed him when he tried to get out of the business of contacting Penkovsky.

"He said," Borovik reported, "that he was never a spy and had not intended to become one, and that he did not understand that it was spying at first."

Borovik told newsmen the prosecutor had not been able to prove Wynne was an active spy. If he had, the prosecutor would have demanded a 15-year sentence, instead of only 10, Borovik asserted.

Borovik said Wynne has decided to appeal any sentence, and Borovik added that this will be done—to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

The lawyer said the pleas of Wynne and Penkovsky were made behind closed doors so as to give Penkovsky a chance to talk in detail about the secrets he allegedly passed on. Details about Penkovsky's plea could not be learned.

Rich, Poor Division Termed 'Explosive'

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) "The division of the world between rich and poor is ultimately more explosive than the division between East and West," U.N. Secretary-General U Thant says.

Thant was interviewed Friday by the Yugoslav news agency, Tanjug, at President Tito's secluded vacation island of Brioni. Thant said his talks with Tito have been fruitful.

The 'Little Services' Mean So Much

Sunday will be Mother's Day and once more comes the time to pay tribute to one of the most deserving persons in the world.

Over the years, the tributes have taken many forms. And all the nice things that could — and should — be said about mothers have been expressed in one way or another.

Fortunately, a letter from a reader with a refreshing approach to Mother's Day came to our attention a few days ago. It had such a down-to-earth appeal that we're going to pass along some of its thoughts as our "gift" to mothers all over the tri-state district as they prepare once more for their "day". The letter reads in part as follows:

"Mother's Day is drawing near and I would like to make a suggestion as to what to get for the mother who lives alone and who has 'everything'.

"The one thing she does not have is strength for the many tasks she would love to have done. Perhaps she asked you, but you have been 'too busy' and neglected it. There's the leaky faucet that is so annoying, the door that sticks, the shelf she would like up, the mattress that needs turning and the flower beds that need attention, among other things.

"I wonder if children ever stop to think how mother, being the excellent housekeeper she always was, feels when she can't turn her mattresses as usual, or manage to move the furniture for a thorough cleaning? It worries them, but they don't like to ask favors.

"I think it would be fine this Mother's Day if the children would make their gift one of loving, cheerful service. And for the folks whose parents have passed on, what better memorial than to have that widow or widower to share your home and dinner for a few hours; or even a drive to break the monotony of every-day living.

"Mother was never too busy when you were small to help you, so please look around for those little services that mean so much to her. Your thoughtfulness will express your love as nothing else can and will warm her heart . . ."

'Go To It!'

As one who has "plugged" the district's scenic beauty for years, The Review says "Go to it, fellows!" in the cooperative effort of the Columbiana County Motor Club and the Chamber of Commerce to encourage tourism in the East Liverpool area.

Such a campaign fits in well with any overall program to promote progress.

Talk of encouraging tourists to come here immediately brings to mind a project that ties in closely with this thinking—beautification of our river-front area.

If the tourists are coming, let's make it easy for them to drink in our scenic beauties. Tree-cutting, grass - planting, comfortable benches and the many other things that can be done along the river should be speeded.

There's no time like the present to launch the long-overdue beautification.

It Can Happen Again And Again

The bill is dead but the memory lingers on.

We're talking about House Bill 364 that presumably would have given Ohio's director of natural resources authority to sell or lease state park land for "removal of mineral resources."

Yoy may remember it breezed through the Ohio House with one dissenting vote, then was killed in the Senate Conservation Committee after newspaper accounts touched off an explosion of indignation.

House members who voted for the bill pleaded innocent by virtue of ignorance. The bill wasn't fully explained on the floor, they say, in fact, it wasn't even debated.

Others defended their vote on the basis the provision for coal removal wasn't in the bill when it got to the floor — just sand, stone, gas, oil, gravel, etc. In other words, strip-mining of coal hadn't been mentioned at that point.

BOTH CLAIMS are factually correct, but they hardly constitute a defense. Coal wasn't in the bill when it hit the floor, but it's a safe bet that few realized it at the time. Why? Because few had bothered to read the bill before they voted.

If they had read the bill and still voted for it, how would they defend granting permission for a gravel pit, stone quarry or oil well on the same state land? These, too, are insightly.

If there's a point to be made in the H.B. 346 episode it's this: Aside from major legislation or proposals that are controversial on their face, few legislators are self-informed when they vote.

They rely on sponsors to fill them in. They place their trust in committee members who recommend bills for passage. They don't have time to keep up with everything that's doing on in the demanding world of the General Assembly.

LOOK AT another example.

Would you expect your representatives to vote for a bill that closes public records to the public? Well, they did.

Just two weeks after H.B. 346 slithered out of the House, along came H.B. 586 which, among other things, closes to the public railroad accident reports filed with the Public Utilities Commission. This one passed 119-1.

So goes it.

Providing The 'Homey Touch'

An adhesive bandage on a presidential finger has caused inquiries that may generate more warm feeling for the Kennedy household than Caroline, herself.

The bandaged finger, it was revealed, resulted from an accident while the President was cutting bread. This led to the disclosure he likes to send the servants home early when he is "batching it" in the White House and dish up whatever has been prepared himself, sometimes inviting in a few friends.

Everybody who visits the White House wonders about the life upstairs — what it is like to live in this public monument — what luck the occupants have in creating a home-life atmopshere in a place under the staring scrutiny of every person who lives in or visits Washington.

It's a happy thought that White House occupants find ways to simulate what the rest of us sometimes over-romanticize as "the homelike atmosphere." A chief executive makes a botch of cutting bread and slices his own finger. Friends share pot luck. It might even happen that someone might make a yummy sandwich out of left-over dog food in the refrigerator. That one has been told so often if it hasn't happened in the White House yet it should — to give that austere dwelling the clinching "homey touch."

Rickover Unheeded On Sub Faults

By Victor Riesel

For more than six months this nation has ignored grim warnings of impending submarine disasters. This alarm was voiced loudly and bluntly by a man with the guts to make a Billy Mitchell kind of fight —Vice Admiral H. G. Rickover.

Victor Riesel

As long ago as Oct. 29 in New York City, the admiral, who just a few days ago took a new submarine down for testing, revealed that he himself had been in undersea fighters which had barely survived. He put the blame for all this squarely on faulty welding, defective parts, untested materials, bad industrial management, poor workmanship, mislabeling of equipment ingredients and a virtual disintegration of some factory inspection systems.

The admiral still feels as strongly today as he did then, when he said:

"On more than one occasion I have been in a deeply submerged submarine when a failure occured in a sea-water system because a fitting was of the wrong material.

"But for the prompt action of the crew, the consequences would have been disastrous. In fact I might not be here today."

EVER SINCE Rickover said that publicly, undramatically but with quiet anger and understatement, I have been dogging some Washington bureaus. I learned there have been investigations of damaged cables, fires, malfunctioning in the intricate innards of the atomic submarines.

It now can be positively reported that the security forces have not found a bit of evidence of sabotage.

Therefore the responsibility for poor equipment must rest on some of those who have been taking government orders for supplies and on those whom Rickover accuses of "poor workmanship" and faulty inspection.

Certainly a swift creation of a Congressional Select Committee to investigate the entire supply system should be the first order of business at the first possible sessions of both houses.

What almost sent Rickover and one of his crews to a crushing deep sea-bottom death was the use of incorrect materials welded into submarine equipment.

THE ADMIRAL said this was one of many such occurrences. During the last few years, he revealed, hundreds of major conventional components such as pressure vessels and steam generators have been bought by the Navy for nuclear propulsion plants. For the laymen, these are atomic engines.

"Less than 10 per cent," said Rickover, "have been delivered on time. Thirty per cent were delivered six months to a year or more later than promised.

"Even so, reinspection of these components after delivery showed that more than 50 per cent of them had to be further reworked in order to meet contract specification requirements."

Other parts, which are "welds," are examined by a system of radiography.

Rickover said that when parts were reinspected by a special task force and their industrial trainees, a "high percentage — up to 90 per cent — of the welds were found unacceptable."

He was bitter about "fatigue in materials." This "fatigue life" of materials has been an important factor in much equipment going into routine civilian production.

NOW IT EXISTS in the reactor field. Knowledge of this fatigue under thermal cycling stress is meager. So the Admiral and his staff have developed a special set of tests. But why has the story of fatigue of equipment not been brought up to date?

In another instance, Rickover and his team found that one manufacturer was still sending along material which was being subjected to test formulas 10 years old.

He said, too, that it has been difficult getting certain "large valve castings" for the subs. When the Navy finally does receive "acceptable castings, this is only after 200 to 300 weld repairs" on each casting.

He indicated there are scores of such cases of waste of huge sums, vital time and grim threat to life of young crews.

"In the case of submarines," Arm. Rickover said, "the crew lives and works between two dangerous environments — the intense sea pressure outside the hull . . . and the hot, high pressure primary and secondary systems of the propulsion plant. If the boundaries of either of these pressure containments should fail, serious consequences would result. . . ."

Obviously there can be no margin for error. Every part, every tiny bolt and welding, all must work perfectly all the time. Obviously some parts are not.

Just as obviously a Congressional Select Committee probe is overdue.

Riches To Rags

Mountainous Haiti, troubled and impoverished, once was the most productive of New World colonies.

At the height of its economic heyday, the Caribbean republic supplied Europe with all its sugar and France with half its revenue, the National Geographic Society says. In the extravagant court of Louis XV, Haiti's spend-thrift planters were regarded with envy bordering on distaste.

Colonial Haiti's combined import and export trade reached an estimated $140 million a year. In 1960, more than 150 years after its independence, the nation's total was half that figure.

Haiti's estimated 4,300,000 Negro and mulatto inhabitants struggle for a marginal survival, beset by economic difficulties and the heavy hands of a long line of dictators.

Haiti's 10,714 square miles occupy the western third of Hispaniola, the world's only two-nation island, one shared with the Dominican Republic.

Kindergarten was so named by its founder, Friedrich Froebel (1782-1852), to express his idea of the school as a garden in which children are comparable to unfolding plants. Froebel began the first kindergarten in 1837, making use of plays, games and songs to illustrate his belief that a child should learn by doing rather than by merely reading.

Constitutional Rights

By David Lawrence

Kennedy Overlooks Freedom To Amend

Impromptu statements by a president of the United States at a news conference can evoke widespread criticism, especially if the answers show that they have not been thought through.

David Lawrence

Thus, President Kennedy over nation-wide TV and radio networks told a large section of the American people on last Wednesday that, in effect, there is something wrong in trying to amend the Constitution of the United States.

That document itself prescribes the methods of amendment, and the fact is that the Constitution has been amended 22 times since the founding of the Republic.

Mr. Kennedy has right to oppose particular amendments that he doesn't like. But he will be regarded as out of bounds when he declares that people who want to amend the Constitution are not "defending" the Constitution, particularly when their purpose in the instance referred to is to secure the adoption of specific amendments that will preserve and defend the basic principles of the Constitution itself against usurpation and abuse of power.

The President's words, as they appear in the White House transcript of Wednesday's news conference, were as follows:

"It has always seemed to me remarkable that those people and organizations who are founded in order to defend the Constitution should seek to change it, and particularly to change it in such a basic way, either to affect the power of the Congress to amend the Constitution and put severe limitations upon the Congress, which, after all, represents the people most directly, or otherwise to affect the power of the Supreme Court, which is one of the most important protections of individual rights and one of the most important securities we have for an amicable settlement of disputes, and which, after all, became such a significant part of our American constitutional development under the leadership of an American who is usually heralded—Mr. John Marshall. So I would think that the efforts will come to nothing, and I will be glad when they do not."

MR. KENNEDY failed to tell his audience that the current movement to amend certain parts of the Constitution has grown out of the controversy over who should apportion the voting districts in a state and other instances of alleged usurpation of power by the Supreme Court—which has no right to amend the Constitution.

The proper methods at present for making changes in the Constitution are specified in the document itself.

Mr. Kennedy apparently hasn't looked into the proposals which have been made recently by various organizations of citizens and which already have received the support of several state legislatures.

First of all, it is important to emphasize something which the general public may not realize and which perhaps high officials in our government have brushed aside—namely, that the Constitution can be amended in other ways than by a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress and ratification by three-fourths of the done directly by the people.

State Legislatures. It can be

For Article V of the Constitution provides that Congress, "on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress."

IT SO HAPPENS that the famous prohibition amendment was repealed and the Twenty - First Amendment substituting for it was adopted without being submitted to the legislatures of the states. It was ratified instead by conventions in two-thirds of the states summoned by the State Legislatures. It took only nine months to accomplish ratification by the convention method, and established a record for quick ratification.

The present movement—which Mr. Kennedy calls, in effect, an attack on the Constitution— is sponsoring three amendments. The first would clarify the language of Article V and simplify ever two-thirds of the State Legislatures submitted identical texts of a particular amendment to be voted on and it was then approved by three-fourths of the State Legislatures, the amendment would be automatically certified as having been adopted.

The second amendment proposed would preclude federal consideration of matters relating to reapportionment of State Legislatures.

The third proposes the creation of a "court of the union" which would have the final say in matters of conflicting state-federal claims of power under the Constitution.

These three amendments would, of course, be valid only if adopted under either of the two existing methods now prescribed in the Constitution. A dozen State Legislatures have already approved the first amendment, another dozen the second and three the third.

The National Council of State Governments—composed of official representatives of each state in the Union—adopted a resolution last year proposing the three amendments described above.

The council said that there had been a strong shift toward the extension of federal powers and that various federal court decisions "carry a strong bias on the federal side."

HERE, THEREFORE, is a creditable movement by citizens who are proceeding in a constitutional manner. Yet Mr. Kennedy, with a sweeping denunciation that reveals he hasn't really studied the problem, puts the presidential finger of discredit on them as somehow having an improper attitude toward amending the Constitution, even though the method they are using to make the change is specifically prescribed in the Constitution itself.

U.N. Financial Problem

By Richard Spong

The 110-nation United Nations General Assembly meets on Tuesday in a special session on solving the United Nation's financial problems.

By the end of June it may be anywhere from $110 million to $127 million in debt. Thus far U.N. Congo and Middle East have been underwritten largely by a special bond issue of $200 million, of which the United States agreed to buy half on a dollar matching basis. But even if all the bonds are sold, the issue would merely cover about 80 per cent of the U.N. cash deficit by the end of 1963.

A 21-nation special committee on the deficit reported on April 1 that it had been unable to agree on how to finance the peacemaking functions. Although committee sessions were closed to press and public, a change in U.S. policy enunciated there was well publicized.

The United States is assessed 32.02 per cent of the U.N. budget. It pays at the same rate for peacekeeping operations. But in addition it has been making voluntary contributions to the extent that it has been paying about 47½ per cent of the $300 million cost in the Congo.

U.S. Ambassador Francis T. P. Plimpton told the special committee that from now on this nation will pay only its assessed share of peacekeeping operations —with a proviso. If a substantial number of the 75 countries that are behind on Congo send in good faith payments, we will consider future gifts.

Policing the Congo alone has been costing the United Nations about $10 million a month. Secretary Gen. U. Thant hopes that, now that the secession of Katanga has been brought to a halt, the 19,000-man U.N. Congo Force can be cut back by the end of the year.

This would permit a saving of about $5 million a month. Even so, the special General Assembly session this month will have to find some $30 to $40 million to keep the reduced force in the Congo for the remainder of the year.

The Soviet Union is a principal U.N. defaulter. As of March 1 it owed more than $16½ million on its regular budget account, almost $16½ million on its Middle East emergency account.

The entire Communist bloc is in arrears, as are France, Belgium.

For more than six months this nation has ignored grim warnings of impending submarine disasters. This alarm was voiced loudly and bluntly by a man with the guts to make a Billy Mitchell kind of fight —Vice Admiral H. G. Rickover.

Victor Riesel

As long ago as Oct. 29 in New York City, the admiral, who just a few days ago took a new submarine down for testing, revealed that he himself had been in undersea fighters which had barely survived. He put the blame for all this squarely on faulty welding, defective parts, untested materials, bad industrial management, poor workmanship, mislabeling of equipment ingredients and a virtual disintegration of some factory inspection systems.

The admiral still feels as strongly today as he did then, when he said:

"On more than one occasion I have been in a deeply submerged submarine when a failure occured in a sea-water system because a fitting was of the wrong material.

"But for the prompt action of the crew, the consequences would have been disastrous. In fact I might not be here today."

EVER SINCE Rickover said that publicly, undramatically but with quiet anger and understatement, I have been dogging some Washington bureaus. I learned there have been investigations of damaged cables, fires, malfunctioning in the intricate innards of the atomic submarines.

It now can be positively reported that the security forces have not found a bit of evidence of sabotage.

Therefore the responsibility for poor equipment must rest on some of those who have been taking government orders for supplies and on those whom Rickover accuses of "poor workmanship" and faulty inspection.

Certainly a swift creation of a Congressional Select Committee to investigate the entire supply system should be the first order of business at the first possible sessions of both houses.

What almost sent Rickover and one of his crews to a crushing deep sea-bottom death was the use of incorrect materials welded into submarine equipment.

THE ADMIRAL said this was one of many such occurrences. During the last few years, he revealed, hundreds of major conventional components such as pressure vessels and steam generators have been bought by the Navy for nuclear propulsion plants. For the laymen, these are atomic engines.

"Less than 10 per cent," said Rickover, "have been delivered on time. Thirty per cent were delivered six months to a year or more later than promised.

"Even so, reinspection of these components after delivery showed that more than 50 per cent of them had to be further reworked in order to meet contract specification requirements."

Other parts, which are "welds," are examined by a system of radiography.

Rickover said that when parts were reinspected by a special task force and their industrial trainees, a "high percentage — up to 90 per cent — of the welds were found unacceptable."

He was bitter about "fatigue in materials." This "fatigue life" of materials has been an important factor in much equipment going into routine civilian production.

NOW IT EXISTS in the reactor field. Knowledge of this fatigue under thermal cycling stress is meager. So the Admiral and his staff have developed a special set of tests. But why has the story of fatigue of equipment not been brought up to date?

In another instance, Rickover and his team found that one manufacturer was still sending along material which was being subjected to test formulas 10 years old.

He said, too, that it has been difficult getting certain "large valve castings" for the subs. When the Navy finally does receive "acceptable castings, this is only after 200 to 300 weld repairs" on each casting.

He indicated there are scores of such cases of waste of huge sums, vital time and grim threat to life of young crews.

"In the case of submarines," Arm. Rickover said, "the crew lives and works between two dangerous environments — the intense sea pressure outside the hull . . . and the hot, high pressure primary and secondary systems of the propulsion plant. If the boundaries of either of these pressure containments should fail, serious consequences would result. . . ."

Obviously there can be no margin for error. Every part, every tiny bolt and welding, all must work perfectly all the time. Obviously some parts are not.

Just as obviously a Congressional Select Committee probe is overdue.

Down Through The Years

From The Review Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO — W. S. McCord, Clark Thompson and Linn Moore were elected deacons of the Emmanuel Presbyterian Church.

Miss Buena Vista Fultz was named president of the Missionary Guild of the Wellsville First Christian Church.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — A school operations budget for 1943-44 of $238,392 was adopted by the Midland Board of Education.

Georgiana Stern retained her post as president of the Girls Cosmo Bowling League. Lois Merriman was named vice president and Mary Lewis secretary-treasurer.

TEN YEARS AGO — Charles Wilfing of the Garfield School was elected president of the Wellsville City Teachers Association.

Raymond Griffiths, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Griffiths of Wyoming Ave., was named "outstanding Junior boy" at Bethany College.

Patricia Cowl was valedictorian and Robert Garrison salutatorian for the graduating class at New Cumberland High School.

Riches To Rags

Mountainous Haiti, troubled and impoverished, once was the most productive of New World colonies.

At the height of its economic heyday, the Caribbean republic supplied Europe with all its sugar and France with half its revenue, the National Geographic Society says. In the extravagant court of Louis XV, Haiti's spendthrift planters were regarded with envy bordering on distaste.

Colonial Haiti's combined import and export trade reached an estimated $140 million a year. In 1960, more than 150 years after its independence, the nation's total was half that figure.

Haiti's estimated 4,300,000 Negro and mulatto inhabitants struggle for a marginal survival, beset by economic difficulties and the heavy hands of a long line of dictators.

Haiti's 10,714 square miles occupy the western third of Hispaniola, the world's only two-nation island, one shared with the Dominican Republic.

Kindergarten was so named by its founder, Friedrich Froebel (1782-1852), to express his idea of the school as a garden in which children are comparable to unfolding plants. Froebel began the first kindergarten in 1837, making use of plays, games and songs to illustrate his belief that a child should learn by doing rather than by merely reading.

Constitutional Rights

Kennedy Overlooks Freedom To Amend

Impromptu statements by a president of the United States at a news conference can evoke widespread criticism, especially if the answers show that they have not been thought through.

David Lawrence

Thus, President Kennedy over nation-wide TV and radio networks told a large section of the American people on last Wednesday that, in effect, there is something wrong in trying to amend the Constitution of the United States.

That document itself prescribes the methods of amendment, and the fact is that the Constitution has been amended 22 times since the founding of the Republic.

Mr. Kennedy has right to oppose particular amendments that he doesn't like. But he will be regarded as out of bounds when he declares that people who want to amend the Constitution are not "defending" the Constitution, particularly when their purpose in the instance referred to is to secure the adoption of specific amendments that will preserve and defend the basic principles of the Constitution itself against usurpation and abuse of power.

The President's words, as they appear in the White House transcript of Wednesday's news conference, were as follows:

"It has always seemed to me remarkable that those people and organizations who are founded in order to defend the Constitution should seek to change it, and particularly to change it in such a basic way, either to affect the power of the Congress to amend the Constitution and put severe limitations upon the Congress, which, after all, represents the people most directly, or otherwise to affect the power of the Supreme Court, which is one of the most important protections of individual rights and one of the most important securities we have for an amicable settlement of disputes, and which, after all, became such a significant part of our American cconstitutional development under the leadership of an American who is usually heralded—Mr. John Marshall. So I would think that the efforts will come to nothing, and I will be glad when they do not."

MR. KENNEDY failed to tell his audience that the current movement to amend certain parts of the Constitution has grown out of the controversy over who should apportion the voting districts in a state and other instances of alleged usurpation of power by the Supreme Court—which has no right to amend the Constitution.

The proper methods at present for making changes in the Constitution are specified in the document itself.

Mr. Kennedy apparently hasn't looked into the proposals which have been made recently by various organizations of citizens and which already have received the support of several state legislatures.

First of all, it is important to emphasize something which the general public may not realize and which perhaps high officials in our government have brushed aside—namely, that the Constitution can be amended in other ways than by a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress and ratification by three-fourths of the done directly by the people.

State Legislatures. It can be

For Article V of the Constitution provides that Congress, "on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress."

IT SO HAPPENS that the famous prohibition amendment was repealed and the Twenty - First Amendment substituting for it was adopted without being submitted to the legislatures of the states. It was ratified instead by conventions in two-thirds of the states summoned by the State Legislatures. It took only nine months to accomplish ratification by the convention method, and established a record for quick ratification.

The present movement—which Mr. Kennedy calls, in effect, an attack on the Constitution— is sponsoring three amendments. The first would clarify the language of Article V and simplify ever two-thirds of the State Legislatures submitted identical texts of a particular amendment to be voted on and it was then approved by three-fourths of the State Legislatures, the amendment would be automatically certified as having been adopted.

The second amendment proposed would preclude federal consideration of matters relating to reapportionment of State Legislatures.

The third proposes the creation of a "court of the union" which would have the final say in matters of conflicting state-federal claims of power under the Constitution.

These three amendments would, of course, be valid only if adopted under either of the two existing methods now prescribed in the Constitution. A dozen State Legislatures have already approved the first amendment, another dozen the second and three the third.

The National Council of State Governments—composed of official representatives of each state in the Union—adopted a resolution last year proposing the three amendments described above.

The council said that there had been a strong shift toward the extension of federal powers and that various federal court decisions "carry a strong bias on the federal side."

HERE, THEREFORE, is a creditable movement by citizens who are proceeding in a constitutional manner. Yet Mr. Kennedy, with a sweeping denunciation that reveals he hasn't really studied the problem, puts the presidential finger of discredit on them as somehow having an improper attitude toward amending the Constitution, even though the method they are using to make the change is specifically prescribed in the Constitution itself.

U.N. Financial Problem

By Richard Spong

The 110-nation United Nations General Assembly meets on Tuesday in a special session on solving the United Nation's financial problems.

By the end of June it may be anywhere from $110 million to $127 million in debt. Thus far U.N. Congo and Middle East have been underwritten largely by a special bond issue of $200 million, of which the United States agreed to buy half on a dollar matching basis. But even if all the bonds are sold, the issue would merely cover about 80 per cent of the U.N. cash deficit by the end of 1963.

A 21-nation special committee on the deficit reported on April 1 that it had been unable to agree on how to finance the peacemaking functions. Although committee sessions were closed to press and public, a change in U.S. policy enunciated there was well publicized.

The United States is assessed 32.02 per cent of the U.N. budget. It pays at the same rate for peacekeeping operations. But in addition it has been making voluntary contributions to the extent that it has been paying about 47½ per cent of the $300 million cost in the Congo.

U.S. Ambassador Francis T. P. Plimpton told the special committee that from now on this nation will pay only its assessed share of peacekeeping operations —with a proviso. If a substantial number of the 75 countries that are behind on Congo send in good faith payments, we will consider future gifts.

Policing the Congo alone has been costing the United Nations about $10 million a month. Secretary Gen. U. Thant hopes that, now that the secession of Katanga has been brought to a halt, the 19,000-man U.N. Congo Force can be cut back by the end of the year.

This would permit a saving of about $5 million a month. Even so, the special General Assembly session this month will have to find some $30 to $40 million to keep the reduced force in the Congo for the remainder of the year.

The Soviet Union is a principal U.N. defaulter. As of March 1 it owed more than $16½ million on its regular budget account, almost $16½ million on its Middle East emergency account.

The entire Communist bloc is in arrears, as are France, Belgium.

AMOS HAMILTON
Will Play At Columbus.

All-State Boys' Band To Include Amos Hamilton

Amos Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hamilton, 1611 Pennsylvania Ave., and a sophomore at East Liverpool High School, has been selected among 300 students to participate in the All-Ohio Boys Band in Columbus Aug. 21-Sept. 1.

The event will be in conjunction with the Ohio State Fair.

The boys will rehearse in Columbus before the fair and will give about four concerts, daily. All expenses are paid by the state.

Hamilton was notified by Lewis E. Pete of Ashland, director of the All-Ohio Boys Band. He plays the clarinet.

Grange Program Honors Mothers

Olive Witherow read "Memories;" Kay McKenzie, "Only One Mother," and Lynette Hays, "What a Friend We Have in Mother."

Corsages were presented Mrs. Irene Baker, youngest mother, and Mrs. Hazel Smith, oldest.

In the contests, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Kay Hays were winners in the orange-nut bread; Mrs. Evelyn McIntosh, dirndl skirt, and Marjorie Witherow and Jay Hays, members of the Juvenile Grange, fudge contest.

Members decided to conduct silent festivals as a fund-raising project.

Inspection, followed by a covered-dish dinner, will be held May 23.

Historical Society Gives Flag To VFW

LISBON — W. L. Stewart of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, guest at the Columbiana County Historical Association's meeting Thursday night, presented the Lisbon VFW Post a 9-x-12-foot flag in appreciation for use of the post home for the association's meetings.

George Swetnam, writer for the Pittsburgh Press, also was a guest.

Commemorative plates for the Morgan Raid celebration were ordered and contracts let for concessions at the battle spot.

A letter advised that approximately 700 Midwest Historical Society members will attend the celebration July 28.

Next meeting is May 23. Foster Shattuck of Lisbon, president, presided.

SALINEVILLE—Leonard Ketchum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ketchum of R. D. 2, has completed a course in barbering at the Andrew-Columbus Barbering School at Columbus. He is a 1962 graduate of Carrollton High School.

Lure For 'New' Dollars

Chamber Joins Auto Club In Tourism Promotion

A Chamber of Commerce committee agreed Friday afternoon to co-operate with the Columbiana County Motor Club in its recently expanded program to encourage tourism in the East Liverpool area, citing as the principal attractions the unique appeal of the ceramic industry and the unequalled scenic beauty of the Ohio Valley.

The business relations committee of the Chamber pledged its aid after hearing a report from H. J. English, assistant manager of the auto club. As an example of tours the auto club is promoting, English cited a visit to the area made Thursday by 60 "senior citizens" from Niles, traveling in two chartered buses.

The Niles group had dinner at an area restaurant, a tour along the riverfront between East Liverpool and Wellsville and a look over the wide expanse of the valley from a vantage point on the Pleasant Heights bluff.

The group was taken on a guided tour of the Hall China Co., where each received a souvenir, then visited the East Liverpool Historical Society Museum in the Carnegie Public Library.

After visiting Hall China, many members of the group expressed a desire to take home pieces of pottery as souvenirs and as gifts for friends. So English arranged a halt for the 60 travelers at a dinnerware and glassware outlet in California Hollow.

The Chamber committee pointed out it has been interested in a program to encourage tourism in the area and will join the auto club in supporting and promoting the project. The members cited as an indirect advantage the "new dollars" tourism attracts to the area in the form of spending for meals, souvenirs and other items.

The Chamber explained it receives many mail queries from persons interested in the area, including those planning sight-seeing visits. It has prepared a brochure of "things to see in the area" which it furnishes in response to queries.

English appeared yesterday at the request of the committee as part of its study of improving tourism and the business opportunities in the area.

The Chamber committee continued work on plans to hold another discussion course on "Freedom vs. Communism." A similar series of classes was held in 1962.

The course consists of eight weekly two-hour classes. The committee said it will invite Chamber members and others interested to participate.

The committee also continued investigation of the possibility of holding a panel discussion on economics at the local level for high school students. Chamber members would serve as panelists in the program, tentatively set for next fall.

The committee aired other projects, including plans to increase the public's awareness of community assets.

Lions Club To Open Annual Broom Sale Tuesday Night

The Lions Club's annual broom sale to raise funds for sight-saving and other charitable work will begin Tuesday night, Fred Yonz, general chairman, announced at the meeting Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

George McCullough is co-chairman with John T. Smith, Ed Shingler, Charles Huddleston, Fred Kane and Charles Haugh as team captains.

The club has 45 dozen brooms for sale with headquarters in the Ohio Valley Gas Co. building.

William Smith, vice president of the Smith & Phillips Co., and Frank Fluno, an insurance agent, spoke on the presidential prayer breakfast they attended in Washington in February.

Smith pointed out a two-day conference is held in conjunction with the breakfast.

The prayer breakfast originated in April 1935 in Seattle to combat corruption in municipal government. The presidential prayer breakfast was inaugurated by President Eisenhower and was continued by President Kennedy. It now has spread to international meetings.

Fluno discussed some of the personalities who attended and spoke at the breakfast, explaining all faiths were represented. The common thought of those attending was belief in a divine being.

"I believe East Liverpool needs a moral rearmament and spiritual growth," Fluno said.

Fluno and Smith were introduced by Howard E. Tice, program chairman. John Smith, president, presided.

2 Young Motorists Fined In Traffic Court

LISBON — Two drivers were fined, a third was given a license suspension and a fourth was ordered not to apply for a permit until 1964 at traffic hearings at the Courthouse this week.

Henry L. Good, 16, of Salem received a 30-day suspension for speeding.

Thomas E. Shannon, 16, of 825 Broadway, Wellsville, was fined $25 for driving without an operator's license and is not to apply for a license until July 1.

Robert Ohlmstead, 15, of 817 Baxter St., East Liverpool, is not allowed to apply for license until Jan. 1, 1964. He was cited for driving without a license.

Irwin C. Gembick, 17, of Twinsburg was fined $20 for passing at an intersection. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

Valley Metals Group Plans Weirton Tour

The Upper Ohio Valley Chapter of the American Society of Metals will end its program for the season with a dinner and plant tour Tuesday.

Following dinner at 6:30 p. m., members will tour the plant of the Signode Steel Strapping Co. in Weirton at approximately 8. The firm utilizes the latest equipment for the manufacture of steel strapping used in unit packaging.

Safety Unit To Meet

LISBON — Safety car checks and a driver improvement clinic will be discussed when the Columbiana County Traffic Safety Committee meets Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the village hall. H. Judson English of East Liverpool, is president.

Southern Local Board Will Air Renewal Of Levy

Renewal of a 5-mill levy, due to expire this year, and the possibility of seeking additional revenue as a result of decreasing state aid, are scheduled for discussion at a meeting of the Board of Education of the Southern Local School District Monday night at 7 at the Highlandtown School.

Jack Baker, executive head, said the state foundation program of cutting back local aid has resulted in a $10,000 loss of funds this year over 1962, and further cuts are expected in 1964.

Meanwhile, he pointed out, school services have been increasing.

Baker said discussion is planned on a proposed addition at the new high school to provide for seventh and eighth grade classes and for increased enrollment of the secondary students.

The need for a new well at Wayne School is also on the agenda, he said. The present well was sunk only about 25 feet when the water demand was only for drinking, he said but restrooms and a cafeteria have since been added, and the water supply is inadequate.

Student Nurses Eligible For Aid

Student nurses in area nursing schools may be eligible for financial assistance from the Army, according to Sgt. Edward P. Vallor, local recruiter.

The Army student nurse program is available to qualified male and female student nurses and is designed to assist them to complete their nursing education without financial worry.

Several assistance plans have been established to cover the needs of students in both three-year diploma schools of nursing and degree (collegiate) programs. Diplomas school students can received financial assistance for their senior year while degree students are eligible for assistance for both junior and senior years.

Sgt. Vallor said interested student nurses may contact him at the recruiting center in the Post Office, or phone FU. 6-4262 for an appointment.

AMOS HAMILTON
Will Play At Columbus.

All-State Boys' Band To Include Amos Hamilton

Amos Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hamilton, 1611 Pennsylvania Ave., and a sophomore at East Liverpool High School, has been selected among 300 students to participate in the All-Ohio Boys Band in Columbus Aug. 21-Sept. 1.

The event will be in conjunction with the Ohio State Fair.

The boys will rehearse in Columbus before the fair and will give about four concerts, daily. All expenses are paid by the state.

Hamilton was notified by Lewis E. Pete of Ashland, director of the All-Ohio Boys Band. He plays the clarinet.

Grange Program Honors Mothers

Olive Witherow read "Memories;" Kay McKenzie, "Only One Mother," and Lynette Hays, "What a Friend We Have in Mother."

Corsages were presented Mrs. Irene Baker, youngest mother, and Mrs. Hazel Smith, oldest.

In the contests, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Kay Hays were winners in the orange-nut bread; Mrs. Evelyn McIntosh, dirndl skirt, and Marjorie Witherow and Jay Hays, members of the Juvenile Grange, fudge contest.

Members decided to conduct silent festivals as a fund-raising project.

Inspection, followed by a covered dish dinner, will be held May 23.

Historical Society Gives Flag To VFW

LISBON — W. L. Stewart of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, guest at the Columbiana County Historical Association's meeting Thursday night, presented the Lisbon VFW Post a 9-x-12-foot flag in appreciation for use of the post home for the association's meetings.

George Swetnam, writer for the Pittsburgh Press, also was a guest.

Commemorative plates for the Morgan Raid celebration were ordered and contracts let for concessions at the battle spot.

A letter advised that approximately 700 Midwest Historical Society members will attend the celebration July 28.

Chamber Joins Auto Club In Tourism Promotion

A Chamber of Commerce committee agreed Friday afternoon to co-operate with the Columbiana County Motor Club in its recently expanded program to encourage tourism in the East Liverpool area, citing as the principal attractions the unique appeal of the ceramic industry and the unequalled scenic beauty of the Ohio Valley.

The business relations committee of the Chamber pledged its aid after hearing a report from H. J. English, assistant manager of the auto club. As an example of tours the auto club is promoting, English cited a visit to the area made Thursday by 60 "senior citizens" from Niles, traveling in two chartered buses.

The Niles group had dinner at an area restaurant, a tour along the riverfront between East Liverpool and Wellsville and a look over the wide expanse of the valley from a vantage point on the Pleasant Heights bluff.

The group was taken on a guided tour of the Hall China Co., where each received a souvenir, then visited the East Liverpool Historical Society Museum in the Carnegie Public Library.

After visiting Hall China, many members of the group expressed a desire to take home pieces of pottery as souvenirs and as gifts for friends. So English arranged a halt for the 60 travelers at a dinnerware and glassware outlet in California Hollow.

The Chamber committee pointed out it has been interested in a program to encourage tourism in the area and will join the auto club in supporting and promoting the project. The members cited as an indirect advantage the "new dollars" tourism attracts to the area in the form of spending for meals, souvenirs and other items.

The Chamber explained it receives many mail queries from persons interested in the area, including those planning sight-seeing visits. It has prepared a brochure of "things to see in the area" which it furnishes in response to queries.

English appeared yesterday at the request of the committee as part of its study of improving tourism and the business opportunities in the area.

The Chamber committee continued work on plans to hold another discussion course on "Freedom vs. Communism." A similar series of classes was held in 1962.

The course consists of eight weekly two-hour classes. The committee said it will invite Chamber members and others interested to participate.

The committee also continued investigation of the possibility of holding a panel discussion on economics at the local level for high school students. Chamber members would serve as panelists in the program, tentatively set for next fall.

The committee aired other projects, including plans to increase the public's awareness of community assets.

Lions Club To Open Annual Broom Sale Tuesday Night

The Lions Club's annual broom sale to raise funds for sight-saving and other charitable work will begin Tuesday night, Fred Yonz, general chairman, announced at the meeting Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

George McCullough is co-chairman with John T. Smith, Ed Shingler, Charles Huddleston, Fred Kane and Charles Haugh as team captains.

The club has 45 dozen brooms for sale with headquarters in the Ohio Valley Gas Co. building.

William Smith, vice president of the Smith & Phillips Co., and Frank Fluno, an insurance agent, spoke on the presidential prayer breakfast they attended in Washington in February.

Smith pointed out a two-day conference is held in conjunction with the breakfast.

The prayer breakfast originated in April 1935 in Seattle to combat corruption in municipal government. The presidential prayer breakfast was inaugurated by President Eisenhower and was continued by President Kennedy. It now has spread to international meetings.

Fluno discussed some of the personalities who attended and spoke at the breakfast, explaining all faiths were represented. The common thought of those attending was belief in a divine being.

"I believe East Liverpool needs a moral rearmament and spiritual growth," Fluno said.

Fluno and Smith were introduced by Howard E. Tice, program chairman. John Smith, president, presided.

2 Young Motorists Fined In Traffic Court

LISBON — Two drivers were fined, a third was given a license suspension and a fourth was ordered not to apply for a permit until 1964 at traffic hearings at the Courthouse this week.

Henry L. Good, 16, of Salem received a 30-day suspension for speeding.

Thomas E. Shannon, 16, of 825 Broadway, Wellsville, was fined $25 for driving without an operator's license and is not to apply for a license until July 1.

Robert Ohlmstead, 15, of 817 Baxter St., East Liverpool, is not allowed to apply for license until Jan. 1, 1964. He was cited for driving without a license.

Irwin C. Gembick, 17, of Twinsburg was fined $20 for passing at an intersection. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

Valley Metals Group Plans Weirton Tour

The Upper Ohio Valley Chapter of the American Society of Metals will end its program for the season with a dinner and plant tour Tuesday.

Following dinner at 6:30 p. m., members will tour the plant of the Signode Steel Strapping Co. in Weirton at approximately 8. The firm utilizes the latest equipment for the manufacture of steel strapping used in unit packaging.

Safety Unit To Meet

LISBON — Safety car checks and a driver improvement clinic will be discussed when the Columbiana County Traffic Safety Committee meets Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the village hall. H. Judson English of East Liverpool, is president.

Southern Local Board Will Air Renewal Of Levy

Renewal of a 5-mill levy, due to expire this year, and the possibility of seeking additional revenue as a result of decreasing state aid, are scheduled for discussion at a meeting of the Board of Education of the Southern Local School District Monday night at 7 at the Highlandtown School.

Jack Baker, executive head, said the state foundation program of cutting back local aid has resulted in a $10,000 loss of funds this year over 1962, and further cuts are expected in 1964.

Meanwhile, he pointed out, school services have been increasing.

Baker said discussion is planned on a proposed addition at the new high school to provide for seventh and eighth grade classes and for increased enrollment of the secondary students.

The need for a new well at Wayne School is also on the agenda, he said. The present well was sunk only about 25 feet when the water demand was only for drinking, he said but restrooms and a cafeteria have since been added, and the water supply is inadequate.

Group Spends $75,784 On Projects At Hospital

The East Liverpool City Hospital Women's Auxiliary has spent $75,784 on hospital projects since the addition of the new wing in 1954, Mrs. James N. Porter Jr., president, announced today.

The financial report was released prior to National Hospital Week, which will begin Monday, to acquaint the public with the extent of the auxiliary's role in supporting the hospital, Mrs. Porter said.

She pointed out that all money spent by the group has been earned by volunteer help, women who serve without recompense for a minimum of 50 hours each year.

Mrs. Porter reported the following expenditures: Building fund, $25,000; furniture and redecorating, $46,511; Pinkie project, $1,473; student nurses' entertainment, $1,700, and memorial chapel, $1,100.

An annual feature of Hospital Week is the Friendship Tea for auxiliary and twig members which is scheduled for Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the social rooms of the First Methodist church on W. 5th St.

Mrs. William Horger, program chairman, will present Mrs. Marion Foster Smith of Saxonburg, Pa., as guest speaker. Mrs. Smith is a member of the International Association of Lecturers, the Pittsburgh Women's Press club, Butler Daughters of the American Revolution and the Business and Professional Women's club.

She is past-president of the Butler County Federation of Women's clubs, Saxonsburg Women's club and Music club. Mrs. Smith has authored several books of verses and has written a newspaper column for the Butler Eagle for 30 years.

Awards for recognition of service hours will be given by Mrs. Harold Kaufman, recorder. Mrs. James Batey Jr. will report on auxiliary projects and activities.

Committees for the tea follow: Table, Mrs. William Christopher and Mrs. John M. Roberts; coffee and tea, Mrs. Arthur Turner, Mrs. John McLaren, Mrs. Fred Banfield and Mrs. R. C. Martin; cookies, Mrs. Richard Lee, Mrs. Robert Wells, Mrs. Charles Hartt and Mrs. John Boyd.

Mrs. Porter will preside during a brief business meeting.

New Legal Round Due In Trade Law Battle

CLEVELAND (AP)—Revco Discount Drug centers have taken new court action that is expected to start another legal round in the battle against the controversial Ohio Fair Trade Law.

Revco Friday sought a court order restraining manufacturers from enforcing higher prices here, and asked that seven pending suits testing the law be advanced for trial.

The Upjohn Co. and the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. were named defendants in the new action filed in common pleas court. The cases will be heard May 29.

The drug firm's attempt to block higher prices follows an Ohio Supreme Court decision earlier this week. The law was upheld, although four of the seven judges found it unconstitutional.

Women's Club Plans Signs At Summitville

SUMMITVILLE — Ordering of new metal street signs for the village was authorized by the Women's Civic Club at a dinner meeting Thursday at Timberlane's at Salem.

Village officials have indicated they will install the signs.

Thirteen members and four guests attended the meeting at which Mrs. Fred A. Rogers, president, and other new officers were installed.

Mrs. Lewis McCullough, retiring president, presented gifts to her officers, and gave favors of nylon dishcloths from a "scrub tree." The club will meet Sept. 12, suspending sessions during the summer.

Music Boosters Club To Elect At Fairfield

MIDDLETON — The Music Boosters Club will elect officers at a coverdish meeting Monday night at 6:30 at the Fairfield School. Rolls, butter and coffee will be provided.

Instruments will be displayed and questions answered regarding the program for teaching pupils to play.

Other activities slated this month in the schools include a junior high party Friday, a meeting of the Waterford Parent - Teacher Organization May 20, the annual spring concert May 24, baccalaureate May 26 and commencement May 29 — the last day of the school term.

South Side PTA Sets Meeting For Monday

"What Should Johnny Read This Summer?" will be the topic of Harlan Hood, former Upper St. Clair Township school principal, at a meeting of the South Side Parent-Teacher Association Monday night at 8 at the elementary school at Hookstown.

Mrs. Franklin Walker, president, will be in charge. Refreshments will be served. Hood will hold a question-and-answer period after his talk.

Goodballet Proclaims MS Fund Drive Dates

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet has issued a proclamation calling attention to the annual fund drive of the Tru-Mah-Col Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, which will open Sunday and continue through June 16.

The mayor's proclamation designated the campaign dates as "MS Hope Chest Weeks" in East Liverpool. The area chapter serves Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull Counties.

The mayor's proclamation pointed out that multiple sclerosis generally affects young adults 20-40 with a crippling disease of the central nervous system. He estimated there are 500 MS sufferers in the three-county area. The mayor called upon all East Liverpool residents to support the campaign as a way of providing funds for research to eliminate the chronic, crippling disease.

Minister To Address Grange Demeter Club

LISBON — The Rev. H. L. Hoy, pastor of the Canal Lewisville Methodist Church, near Coshocton, and past chaplain of the Ohio State Grange, will be guest speaker at the annual Demeter Club banquet of Columbiana County Granges June 3 at the Calcutta Grange Hall.

Rev. Hoy is active in rural organizations in his area and has been "The Country Parson Ponders" columnist in the Ohio Farmer since 1945.

A report on progress made at the County Home, readings and Hawaiian music also are on the program.

Tickets may be obtained from any County Grange secretary, according to Mrs. George Walton of Winona, secretary of the club.

New Hope Baptists Will Honor Mothers

The Mothers' Board of the New Hope Baptist Church will sponsor a Mother's Day program Sunday at 3:30 p. m.

The program is "This Is Your Life." Music will be provided by the Community Chorus and the Lee's Chapel Choir of Wellsville.

Roosevelt Suggs of East Liverpool will be speaker Thursday at 7:30 p. m. A program will be presented by the pastor's aid committee. Special singing will be featured.

Class Plans Service For Mother's Day

The Three G's Class, taught by Mrs. Earl Shaw, will be in charge of the Mother's Day program Sunday at the Second Church of Christ in East End.

It will be presented during opening exercises and will consist of readings and special music.

W. Earl Shaw is minister.

Goodballet Proclaims MS Fund Drive Dates

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet has issued a proclamation calling attention to the annual fund drive of the Tru-Mah-Col Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, which will open Sunday and continue through June 16.

The mayor's proclamation designated the campaign dates as "MS Hope Chest Weeks" in East Liverpool. The area chapter serves Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull Counties.

The mayor's proclamation pointed out that multiple sclerosis generally affects young adults 20-40 with a crippling disease of the central nervous system. He estimated there are 500 MS sufferers in the three-county area. The mayor called upon all East Liverpool residents to support the campaign as a way of providing funds for research to eliminate the chronic, crippling disease.

Wetzel Backs Winning Bills

State Rep. Clarence Wetzel of Lisbon voted in favor of a bill to raise the population minimum for city health districts and two other bills which were passed in the Ohio House this week.

Wetzel supported the measure which calls for a 25,000 population minimum for city health districts and, if approved by the Senate, would terminate districts at East Liverpool, Salem, East Palestine, Wellsville, and 38 other cities with less than 25,000.

Supporters of the measure say smaller districts generally lack the tax revenue to support an efficient district, and the larger districts would provide more and better services.

Wetzel also supported bills to permit biweekly pay for county employes, which passed 92-30, to increase the powers of the State Board of Cosmetoloty, which failed 66-57 and to reorganize the Department of Natural Resources, which passed 84-38.

State Sen. Edmund Sargus of St. Clairsville voted against a bill to create a Board of Trustees for university branch districts, which was approved 17-14.

Heads Sweet Adelines

Vocalists Elect Mrs. Sonya Rose

Mrs. Sonya Rose was named president of Sweet Adelines, Inc., at the annual dinner meeting Friday night at the Hookstown Grange Hall with 60 members and guests attending.

A member of the baritone section, she has served as vice president and chairman of the bylaws and attendance committees and was a member of the uniform committee. She also designed the current program booklets. She is the wife of Howard Rose of Lisbon and has a small daughter, Julie.

OTHERS ELECTED were Mrs. Jan Dietz, vice president; Mrs. Doris Cameron, recording secretary; Mrs. Sally Lynn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Phyllis Moore, treasurer, and council members, Mrs. Dietz, senior, and Mrs. Ruth Rinehart, junior.

Glenn Woods, director, conducted the candlelight installation ceremony, citing the goals and directives of the chapter. He was assisted by Miss Thea McSwegin, who pinned corsages on the officers.

Mrs. Bette Damaska, retiring president, was presented with a past president's pin and gift. Mrs. Madalyn Mack, immediate past president, made the presentation with poetry written by Mrs. Rinehart.

WOODS RECEIVED a director's trophy inscribed "To Glenn—Our Guy from His Gal," along with several other gifts from the chorus. He summarized the evaluation chart from the recent regional competition in Baltimore announcing the chapter was sixth among 44 choruses.

MRS. SONYA ROSE
Succeeds Mrs. Betty Damaska.

Mrs. Damaska thanked the unit for co-operaton during her term and presented the new president with the gavel.

Mrs. Rinehart, charter president, was mistress of ceremonies for the entertainment. A new quartet, Mrs. Juanita Garver, Mrs. Nancy Beaver, Mrs. Dietz and Mrs. Loretta Willoughby, sang "Basin Street Blues" and "All Alone."

Scotty Young and his orchestra played several selections. Tommy Miller sang "Canadian Sunset" and "Lonesome Road." Mrs. Marge Reed, Miss Jo Ann Vannoy and Mrs. Lynn, chapter members, provided a harmonizing background for his numbers, "Wishing Star" and "Bop-A-Doodle", which were written and arranged by Gene Jenkins.

WOODS DIRECTED the chorus in their competition numbers, "Sunnyside Up" and "You're Nobody's Sweetheart Now." Mrs. Reed led audience participation songs.

It was announced the chorus is singing tonight at the New Stanton Local High School in Hammondsville and Tuesday for the New Cumberland Lions Club.

Mrs. Reed, general chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Lorida Harvey, Miss Nancy McBrien, Mrs. Damaska, Mrs. Beverly McKenzie and Miss McSwegin. The tables were decorated with sprays of blossoms and baskets of lilacs and tulips. Floating candles completed the setting. Placecards were construction paper mannequins. John Mostoller, minister of the First Church of Christ, gave the invocation.

Deadline Falls Aug. 7

First 3 Candidates Enter Township, School Races

Still cleaning up details of the municipal primaries Tuesday, the County Election Board has received the first three candidates' filings for non-partisan offices in 12 school districts, 18 townships and six villages under 2,000 population.

The deadline falls Aug. 7 at 4 p.m. for filing of the non-partisan candidates, whose names will be on the ballot at the Nov. 5 general election, along with the tickets nominated in party primaries this week.

The three "early bird" candidates are: W. Clayton Aughinbaugh of Maple Dr., Calcutta, for a seat on the Board of Education of the Beaver Local School District; Leroy Harsh of East Rochester, for West Township clerk, and Clyde E. Bjorkman of Homeworth, for Knox Township trustee.

Generally speaking, the school districts will name two or three members to their boards of education, according to Frank R. O.'Hanlon, clerk of the Election Board.

With the exception of Liverpool, the townships will elect a clerk and one trustee. The election of the Liverpool clerk falls in a different year because of procedure established when the township and East Liverpool city were "divorced" from an administrative standpoint in the mid-1940's.

The six so-called "smaller villages" that will elect officials on the non-partisan ballot are Salineville, Washingtonville, Summitville, Rogers, New Waterford and Hanoverton.

The Aug. 7 deadline also will apply if new petitions seeking a test at the polls are filed by opponents of the city income tax, O'Hanlon said. City officials have not indicated what action they contemplate on a ruling from the 7th District Court of Appeals last week ordering that the question be placed on the ballot as a result of contested petitions filed in August 1962.

The Aug. 7 deadline also will apply to petitions for local option votes, O'Hanlon said. It applies to some tax levy proposals. Subdivisions which propose levies should indicate in the resolution the section of state law under which they are filed so that the board can compute the vote per centage required for approval, O'Hanlon said.

'Big Daddy's' Death Linked To Narcotics

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb is dead, the apparent victim of an overdose of narcotics.

The hulking, fun-loving defensive tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers was found unconscious in a west Baltimore apartment early Friday morning following a rollicking night on the town. He was dead on arrival at Lutheran Hospital.

Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner for Baltimore, said the "presumption is that this man is dead as a result of an overdose of narcotics, and by that we mean heroin, possibly accidently injected."

Fisher said there were at least three needle marks above veins on both elbows of the 34-year-old Negro athlete and a home-made syringe was found near his unconscious form.

Lipscomb's companion of the night, Timothy Black, 25, in whose apartment Lipscomb was found, was being held for investigation.

Black told police he and Big Daddy had gone riding in Lipscomb's new yellow Cadillac convertible about midnight, taken two girls drinking, then returned to Black's apartment. Black said he went out for breakfast and returned to find Lipscomb slumped over a kitchen table. When he couldn't revive the 290-pound, 6-foot-6 athlete, Black called an ambulance.

Boy's Not Jubilant Over His Baby Sister

MEMPHIS (AP) — A 4-year-old Memphis boy was less than jubilant when introduced to his brand new baby sister.

"Call me," he said, turning away with a bored look, "when she starts to talk."

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Animals Should Be Treated Kindly

Surveys have shown that any given period approximately one fourth of our adult population is on a reducing diet, temporarily. In our land of good living, we need a new attitude toward food. The weight control secret is this—enjoy good food, simply do not overeat at any one meal.

Ida Jean Kain

Let no twinge of dietitis creep in. Dietitis is a peculiar malady that keeps you feeling uneasy about the fattening effects of good food even while you are eating it. Such mealtime casuistry takes the joy out of eating but without curbing calories. This food-into-fat frustration no doubt makes for a lot of compulsive eating.

Change the timing on your meals. The modern way of eating virtually no breakfast, going light at lunch and gorging at dinner, is fattening practice. Calories count by the meal. When you overeat at any meal, nature handles the excess in an abnormal way, and the overload is converted into fat.

MILLIONS OF Americans enjoy good food and keep their weight normal. Having trained their appetites, they do not regard good eating as synonymous with overeating. Only overeating leads to embonpoint.

Cut your food portions and leave off rich desserts and you can slim down and control your weight, without dieting. Regard protective foods in terms of glowing health and more joie de vivre and you will want to make them the backbone of your menus.

Here's a promise: By eating smaller meals you lessen your food capacity, then you do not crave to overeat. To control hunger, supplement meals with scientific protein pick - ups between meals. Science indicts overeating and approves purposeful pick-ups.

What about exercise? There is a mistaken notion that any exercise increases appetite unduly. We confuse better appetite with bigger appetite.

Dr. Jean Mayer of Harvard emphasizes that exercise is an effective means of controlling weight, for exercise is the big variable in calorie burning. A modern amount of exercise can enhance your true enjoyment of food and help you to feel alert and alive.

You can live happily slim ever after!

Advertising Use Ended In Weekly Paper Of Union

Commercial advertising no longer will be published in The Potters Herald, official union newspaper, the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters announced.

The union said letters have been sent to 11 long - time advertisers explaining the change, thanking them for their patronage and pointing out that the "no-advertising" policy has been adopted by publications of many international unions.

The IBOP said the action was taken "especially due to the nonprofit status given labor unions by the Treasury Department."

Wetzel Backs Winning Bills

State Rep. Clarence Wetzel of Lisbon voted in favor of a bill to raise the population minimum for city health districts and two other bills which were passed in the Ohio House this week.

Wetzel supported the measure which calls for a 25,000 population minimum for city health districts and, if approved by the Senate, would terminate districts at East Liverpool, Salem, East Palestine, Wellsville, and 38 other cities with less than 25,000.

Supporters of the measure say smaller districts generally lack the tax revenue to support an efficient district, and the larger districts would provide more and better services.

Wetzel also supported bills to permit biweekly pay for county employes, which passed 92-30, to increase the powers of the State Board of Cosmetoloty, which failed 66-57 and to reorganize the Department of Natural Resources, which passed 84-38.

State Sen. Edmund Sargus of St. Clairsville voted against a bill to create a Board of Trustees for university branch districts, which was approved 17-14.

Democratic Women Re-Elect President

Mrs. Iris Applegate was re-elected president of the East Liverpool Women's Democrat Club at its meeting Thursday night at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex.

Other officers named were Mrs. Freda Skvarka, vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Winters, secretary, and Mrs. Lillian Smith, treasurer.

Plans were made to help staff the Democratic party's booth at the Beaver Local spring festival.

Two new members were enrolled. Next meeting is June 13.

Trucker Forfeits

NEW CUMBERLAND — Ralph Ahlborn, 43, Imperial truck driver, forfeited a $115 appearance bond Friday in Squire John D. Herron's court on charges of reckless driving and failure to report an accident. Ahlborn left on foot after his pickup truck crashed into an embankment early Thursday morning on Hardins Run Rd. He was traced through the license plate number.

Heads Sweet Adelines

Vocalists Elect Mrs. Sonya Rose

Mrs. Sonya Rose was named president of Sweet Adelines, Inc., at the annual dinner meeting Friday night at the Hookstown Grange Hall with 60 members and guests attending.

A member of the baritone section, she has served as vice president and chairman of the bylaws and attendance committees and was a member of the uniform committee. She also designed the current program booklets. She is the wife of Howard Rose of Lisbon and has a small daughter, Julie.

OTHERS ELECTED were Mrs. Jan Dietz, vice president; Mrs. Doris Cameron, recording secretary; Mrs. Sally Lynn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Phyllis Moore, treasurer, and council members, Mrs. Dietz, senior, and Mrs. Ruth Rinehart, junior.

Glenn Woods, director, conducted the candlelight installation ceremony, citing the goals and directives of the chapter. He was assisted by Miss Thea McSwegin, who pinned corsages on the officers.

Mrs. Bette Damaska, retiring president, was presented with a past president's pin and gift. Mrs. Madalyn Mack, immediate past president, made the presentation with poetry written by Mrs. Rinehart.

WOODS RECEIVED a director's trophy inscribed "To Glenn—Our Guy from His Gal," along with several other gifts from the chorus. He summarized the evaluation chart from the recent regional competition in Baltimore announcing the chapter was sixth among 44 choruses.

MRS. SONYA ROSE
Succeeds Mrs. Betty Damaska.

Mrs. Damaska thanked the unit for co-operaton during her term and presented the new president with the gavel.

Mrs. Rinehart, charter president, was mistress of ceremonies for the entertainment. A new quartet, Mrs. Juanita Garver, Mrs. Nancy Beaver, Mrs. Dietz and Mrs. Loretta Willoughby, sang "Basin Street Blues" and "All Alone."

Scotty Young and his orchestra played several selections. Tommy Miller sang "Canadian Sunset" and "Lonesome Road." Mrs. Marge Reed, Miss Jo Ann Vannoy and Mrs. Lynn, chapter members, provided a harmonizing background for his numbers, "Wishing Star" and "Bop-A-Doodle", which were written and arranged by Gene Jenkins.

WOODS DIRECTED the chorus in their competition numbers, "Sunnyside Up" and "You're Nobody's Sweetheart Now." Mrs. Reed led audience participation songs.

It was announced the chorus is singing tonight at the New Stanton Local High School in Hammondsville and Tuesday for the New Cumberland Lions Club.

Mrs. Reed, general chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Lorida Harvey, Miss Nancy McBrien, Mrs. Damaska, Mrs. Beverly McKenzie and Miss McSwegin. The tables were decorated with sprays of blossoms and baskets of lilacs and tulips. Floating candles completed the setting. Placecards were construction paper mannequins. John Mostoller, minister of the First Church of Christ, gave the invocation.

Deadline Falls Aug. 7

First 3 Candidates Enter Township, School Races

Still cleaning up details of the municipal primaries Tuesday, the County Election Board has received the first three candidates' filings for non-partisan offices in 12 school districts, 18 townships and six villages under 2,000 population.

The deadline falls Aug. 7 at 4 p.m. for filing of the non-partisan candidates, whose names will be on the ballot at the Nov. 5 general election, along with the tickets nominated in party primaries this week.

The three "early bird" candidates are: W. Clayton Aughinbaugh of Maple Dr., Calcutta, for a seat on the Board of Education of the Beaver Local School District; Leroy Harsh of East Rochester, for West Township clerk, and Clyde E. Bjorkman of Homeworth, for Knox Township trustee.

Generally speaking, the school districts will name two or three members to their boards of education, according to Frank R. O.'Hanlon, clerk of the Election Board.

With the exception of Liverpool, the townships will elect a clerk and one trustee. The election of the Liverpool clerk falls in a different year because of procedure established when the township and East Liverpool city were "divorced" from an administrative standpoint in the mid-1940's.

The six so-called "smaller villages" that will elect officials on the non-partisan ballot are Salineville, Washingtonville, Summitville, Rogers, New Waterford and Hanoverton.

The Aug. 7 deadline also will apply if new petitions seeking a test at the polls are filed by opponents of the city income tax, O'Hanlon said. City officials have not indicated what action they contemplate on a ruling from the 7th District Court of Appeals last week ordering that the question be placed on the ballot as a result of contested petitions filed in August 1962.

The Aug. 7 deadline also will apply to petitions for local option votes, O'Hanlon said. It applies to some tax levy proposals. Subdivisions which propose levies should indicate in the resolution the section of state law under which they are filed so that the board can compute the vote per centage required for approval, O'Hanlon said.

'Big Daddy's' Death Linked To Narcotics

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb is dead, the apparent victim of an overdose of narcotics.

The hulking, fun-loving defensive tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers was found unconscious in a west Baltimore apartment early Friday morning following a rollicking night on the town. He was dead on arrival at Lutheran Hospital.

Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner for Baltimore, said the "presumption is that this man is dead as a result of an overdose of narcotics, and by that we mean heroin, possibly accidently injected."

Fisher said there were at least three needle marks above veins on both elbows of the 34-year-old Negro athlete and a home-made syringe was found near his unconscious form.

Lipscomb's companion of the night, Timothy Black, 25, in whose apartment Lipscomb was found, was being held for investigation.

Black told police he and Big Daddy had gone riding in Lipscomb's new yellow Cadillac convertible about midnight, taken two girls drinking, then returned to Black's apartment. Black said he went out for breakfast and returned to find Lipscomb slumped over a kitchen table. When he couldn't revive the 290-pound, 6-foot-6 athlete, Black called an ambulance.

Boy's Not Jubilant Over His Baby Sister

MEMPHIS (AP) — A 4-year-old Memphis boy was less than jubilant when introduced to his brand new baby sister.

"Call me," he said, turning away with a bored look, "when she starts to talk."

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Animals Should Be Treated Kindly

Surveys have shown that any given period approximately one fourth of our adult population is on a reducing diet, temporarily. In our land of good living, we need a new attitude toward food. The weight control secret is this —enjoy good food, simply do not overeat at any one meal.

Ida Jean Kain

Let no twinge of dietitis creep in. Dietitis is a peculiar malady that keeps you feeling uneasy about the fattening effects of good food even while you are eating it. Such mealtime casuistry takes the joy out of eating but without curbing calories. This food-into-fat frustration no doubt makes for a lot of compulsive eating.

Change the timing on your meals. The modern way of eating virtually no breakfast, going light at lunch and gorging at dinner, is fattening practice. Calories count by the meal. When you overeat at any meal, nature handles the excess in an abnormal way, and the overload is converted into fat.

MILLIONS OF Americans enjoy good food and keep their weight normal. Having trained their appetites, they do not regard good eating as synonymous with overeating. Only overeating leads to embonpoint.

Cut your food portions and leave off rich desserts and you can slim down and control your weight, without dieting. Regard protective foods in terms of glowing health and more joie de vivre and you will want to make them the backbone of your menus.

Here's a promise: By eating smaller meals you lessen your food capacity, then you do not crave to overeat. To control hunger, supplement meals with scientific protein pick - ups between meals. Science indicts overeating and approves purposeful pick-ups.

What about exercise? There is a mistaken notion that any exercise increases appetite unduly. We confuse better appetite with bigger appetite.

Advertising Use Ended In Weekly Paper Of Union

Commercial advertising no longer will be published in The Potters Herald, official union newspaper, the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters announced.

The union said letters have been sent to 11 long - time advertisers explaining the change, thanking them for their patronage and pointing out that the "no-advertising" policy has been adopted by publications of many international unions.

The IBOP said the action was taken "especially due to the non-profit status given labor unions by the Treasury Department."

3 Records Fall, Columbiana Nips Salem In County Meet

Ward, Murphy, Beery Set Marks

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The 60th Columbiana County Track and Field meet long will be remembered as three athletes went on a record-breaking binge.

Three records fell and another was tied Friday night before some 2,000 fans at Salem's wind-swept and rain-threatened Reilly Stadium.

COLUMBIANA played its role as the favorite perfectly and its star Jim Ward was at his excellent best as the Clippers rolled up an early lead to outlast the fast-finishing Salem Quakers, 58 7-10 to 56.

East Palestine was a distant third with 31, while East Liverpool finished fourth with 19 7-10, followed by Wellsville 18, United 17 3-5, Leetonia 14, Beaver Local 7 and Crestview 3.

Ward, who is the son of Waldo Ward, successful coach of the Columbiana track team, duplicated his feat of a year ago by being named outstanding performer of the 1963 meet and high point man.

The smooth-striding Ward, who streaks over the cinders like a jet stream across a clear blue sky, shattered a 44-year-old record in the 220-yard dash when he whistled across the finish line in 21.8.

THE CLOCKING was two-tenths of a second better than the mark set by George (Chalk) Gaines back in 1919 at the Lisbon Fairgrounds.

In the afternoon trials, Ward had equaled Gaines' 100 - yard dash record of 10 flat. He came back to win the 100 in the finals in a 10.1 clocking, but his trial time of 10 seconds gave him the right to share the official record with Gaines, who by the way is also from Columbiana.

BESIDES breaking a record and matching another, Ward won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet, 8 inches which is shy of the meet record of 22 feet, 4¾ inches. He also anchored the 880-yard relay team which finished second to Salem in that event.

Ward is only a junior, but already must go down as one of the greatest runners in Columbiana County history.

WHILE WARD was stealing the show, teammate Dale Murphy, Columbiana's all - around athletic star who is headed for Dartmouth University, cracked the 11-year-old 180-yard low hurdle record set by Tony Conkle of East Palestine in 1952.

Murphy toured the distance in 20.9, bettering Conkle's old mark of 21.3. Murphy also won the shot put with a heave of 52 feet, 3½ inches, which is just short of Conkle's mark of 52 feet, 9 inches, and was second in the discus event won by Jim Bush of East Palestine with a toss of 138 feet, 3½ inches.

BILL BEERY, Salem High's football and basketball star, put his name in the record books under the 440-yard dash. Beery sprinted to a 51.4 clocking to snap a 12-year-old mark of 51.8 set by Earl Herrington of East Palestine in 1951.

Beery was close to Ward in the scoring when he took another first in the high jump, going over the bar at 5 feet, 9 inches, and was a member of the winning 880 - yard relay team.

In all, Columbiana took first place in six of the 14 events. Besides Murphy and Ward, Fred Gosney grabbed a first in the 120-yard high hurdles with a reading of 15.7 and was a very close second to Murphy in the 180-yard low hurdles.

OTHER FIRST-PLACE spots went to Salem's John Tarleton, who covered the mile in 4:37.8; Gene Metzgar of United, who ran the half mile in 2:06, and Dave Watt of East Palestine with a height of 10 feet, 4 inches in the pole vault.

Salem took both relay events with a 1:33.5 in the 880-yard relay and 3:40.7 in the mile relay.

THE BEST any East Liverpool performers could do was second. Curt Battestelli came home second in the 120-yard high hurdles and was fifth in the 180 - yard lows. Ron Roush, who had been injured for the past two weeks, came up with a tie for second place in the 440-yard dash with Tom Cope of Columbiana and Ed Loy made a good effort in the mile, but finished second to Salem's Tarleton.

Other Potter points were scored by Ed Hedrick, fourth in the 440, Bob Parsons, who was fourth in the 120-yard highs, Monte Waite and Frank McComas, who were tied for fourth in the high jump.

WELLSVILLE was paced by Andy Dash, who was second in the shot put, and Terry Flesch, who gained a runnerup spot in the high jump.

Ron Daniels was fifth in the mile, Dan Corbisello fifth in the 220-yard dash and Mark Leyda fourth in the 180-yard lows.

The best performance by a Beaver Local entrant was turned in by George Gaydos, who finished second in the pole vault. Warren Bradley also took third in the 120-yard highs.

United Local won the Class A trophy with 17 3-5 points.

Drysdale Checks Giants; Pirates Nosed Out, 1-0

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League champion San Francisco Giants and the runner-up Dodgers met Friday night for the first time since last year's playoff and Los Angeles came away with a 2-1 victory.

Don Drysdale, who had been unable to post a victory in almost a month, checked the Giants on six hits and retired 13 batters in order at one stretch.

The victory pulled the Dodgers to within four games of the pacesetting Giants and cut the Giants' edge to one game over the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, who edged Pittsburgh 1-0 on Curt Simmons' pitching and George Altman's ninth inning homer.

Dick Farrell allowed only two hits as Houston ended the Chicago Cubs' winning streak at six, 4-1; the New York Mets won their fifth in a row by defeating Cincinnati 3-2 on Jim Hickman's homer, and Milwaukee downed Philadelphia 4-1 in a game called in the seventh inning due to rain.

A crowd of 50,407 turned out at Los Angeles for the first meeting between the Dodgers and Giants since last Oct. 3, when San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 6-4 in the third and deciding game of the NL playoffs.

Altman's homer with two out in the ninth ended a pitcher's duel between Card southpaw Simmons and Pittsburgh's Bob Friend. Simmons scattered nine hits for his fifth victory without a loss while Friend absorbed his second defeat in five hits. It was the first time the Pirates had been shut out this season.

Farrell pitched perfect ball for six innings, but the Cubs put both their hits together for a run in the seventh inning on Lou Brock's single and a triple by Billy Williams. Rusty Staub, 19-year-old Colts rookie, collected three singles in four at-bats and drove in two runs in support of Farrell, who struck out 13 and squared his record at 3-3. Glen Hobbie lost it.

STRAINING EVERY MUSCLE. Jim Ward, Columbiana's sensational junior star is ready to break the tape and crack a 44-year-old record in the 220-yard dash as timers at the left get set to stop their watches on the new mark. Ward covered the distance in 21.8 to feature the 60th running of the Columbiana County Track and Field meet Friday night at Salem.

ONE OF THE FIRST persons to congratulate Jim Ward Friday night on his record-breaking performance in the 220 and his matching of the 100-yard dash mark was George (Chalk) Gaines, who for 44 years had held both records. Gaines, who served as an official timer at last night's county meet at Salem, set both records back in 1919.

BLONDE CHERYL WALTER presents first place medals to two other record - breakers. Bill Beery of Salem (left) accepts his award for setting a new mark in the 440-yard dash of 51.4 and Dale Murphy of Columbiana is the new record-holder in the 180-yard low hurdles, which he won in 20.9.

White Sox Win Again, Retain Lead

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox took on 112 minutes Friday night to polish off the Los Angeles Angels 2-0, with Juan Pizarro pitching a three-hitter and driving in both runs, one with a homer.

That was one minute longer than the Sox took the night before to trim the New York Yankees by the same score. They have now won five straight games during which they have allowed the opposition five runs, and are a full game in front in the American League.

The Baltimore Orioles kept pace in second place by whipping the Yankees 6-3. It was the fourth straight loss for the world champions.

Phil Regan threw a three-hitter for the Detroit Tigers who bombed the Cleveland Indians 14-0, and Camilo Pascual did the same job for the Minnesota Twins over the Kansas City Athletics, 2-0. The Boston Red Sox dropped the Washington Senators 6-3.

Pizarro, the 26-year-old southpaw, struck out six Angels and walked only one as he gained his second victory. He homered in the third inning and batted home the insurance run in the fifth with a single, after catcher J. C. Martin had tripled.

Ken McBride, who brought a string of 29 scoreless innings against Chicago into the game and had never lost to his old Sox mates, was the loser.

Luis Aparicio and Al Smith slugged solo homers off Yankee starter Whitey Ford, and Baltimore starter Mike McCormick was nursing a two-run lead when his arm stiffened in the eighth inning. Relief pitcher Dick Hall came just before rain had held up play for 35 minutes, and eventually gave up a two-run single to Clete Boyer that tied the score.

The Orioles came right back with three runs off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff in the eighth, on two walks, Jackie Brandt's run-producing double and John Orsino's two-run single.

Dick McAuliffe drove in six runs for the Tigers, four on a grand slam homer, and Rocky Colavito and Regan also homered. It was Regan's first in the majors. The Tiger right-hander, working in 36-degree weather, struck out eight.

Kress Given Scholarship In Kentucky

Jim Kress, 6-7, 210-pound Leetonia star, has inked a basketball grant-in-aid at Eastern Kentucky State College, Coach Jim Baechtold announced today.

Kress is the fifth outstanding schoolboy cager to be awarded a basketball scholarship by Eastern.

"Jim is one of the finest prospects we've signed," Baechtold said. "We think he's one of the best shooters we have seen all year, and he is an outstanding college basketball prospect."

Kress, who averaged 28 points and 20 rebounds per game his senior year and connected on 54 per cent of his field goal attempts while playing for Crestview High School.

The big Crestview star averaged 20 points and 18 rebounds per contest during his junior year when he hit on better than 60 per cent of his field goal tries.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Kress of near Leetonia. His high school coach is Bruce Weber.

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The 60th Columbiana County Track and Field meet long will be remembered as three athletes went on a record-breaking binge.

Three records fell and another was tied Friday night before some 2,000 fans at Salem's wind-swept and rain-threatened Reilly Stadium.

COLUMBIANA played its role as the favorite perfectly and its star Jim Ward was at his excellent best as the Clippers rolled up an early lead to outlast the fast-finishing Salem Quakers, 58 7-10 to 56.

East Palestine was a distant third with 31, while East Liverpool finished fourth with 19 7-10, followed by Wellsville 18, United 17 3-5, Leetonia 14, Beaver Local 7 and Crestview 3.

Ward, who is the son of Waldo Ward, successful coach of the Columbiana track team, duplicated his feat of a year ago by being named outstanding performer of the 1963 meet and high point man.

The smooth-striding Ward, who streaks over the cinders like a jet stream across a clear blue sky, shattered a 44-year-old record in the 220-yard dash when he whistled across the finish line in 21.8.

THE CLOCKING was two-tenths of a second better than the mark set by George (Chalk) Gaines back in 1919 at the Lisbon Fairgrounds.

In the afternoon trials, Ward had equaled Gaines' 100 - yard dash record of 10 flat. He came back to win the 100 in the finals in a 10.1 clocking, but his trial time of 10 seconds gave him the right to share the official record with Gaines, who by the way is also from Columbiana.

BESIDES breaking a record and matching another, Ward won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet, 8 inches which is shy of the meet record of 22 feet, 4¾ inches. He also anchored the 880-yard relay team which finished second to Salem in that event.

Ward is only a junior, but already must go down as one of the greatest runners in Columbiana County history.

WHILE WARD was stealing the show, teammate Dale Murphy, Columbiana's all - around athletic star who is headed for Dartmouth University, cracked the 11-year-old 180-yard low hurdle record set by Tony Conkle of East Palestine in 1952.

Murphy toured the distance in 20.9, bettering Conkle's old mark of 21.3. Murphy also won the shot put with a heave of 52 feet, 3½ inches, which is just short of Conkle's mark of 52 feet, 9 inches, and was second in the discus event won by Jim Bush of East Palestine with a toss of 138 feet, 3½ inches.

BILL BEERY, Salem High's football and basketball star, put his name in the record books under the 440-yard dash. Beery sprinted to a 51.4 clocking to snap a 12-year-old mark of 51.8 set by Earl Herrington of East Palestine in 1951.

Beery was close to Ward in the scoring when he took another first in the high jump, going over the bar at 5 feet, 9 inches, and was a member of the winning 880 - yard relay team.

In all, Columbiana took first place in six of the 14 events. Besides Murphy and Ward, Fred Gosney grabbed a first in the 120-yard high hurdles with a reading of 15.7 and was a very close second to Murphy in the 180-yard low hurdles.

OTHER FIRST-PLACE spots went to Salem's John Tarleton, who covered the mile in 4:37.8; Gene Metzgar of United, who ran the half mile in 2:06, and Dave Watt of East Palestine with a height of 10 feet, 4 inches in the pole vault.

Salem took both relay events with a 1:33.5 in the 880-yard relay and 3:40.7 in the mile relay.

THE BEST any East Liverpool performers could do was second. Curt Battestelli came home second in the 120-yard high hurdles and was fifth in the 180 - yard lows. Ron Roush, who had been injured for the past two weeks, came up with a tie for second place in the 440-yard dash with Tom Cope of Columbiana and Ed Loy made a good effort in the mile, but finished second to Salem's Tarleton.

Other Potter points were scored by Ed Hedrick, fourth in the 440, Bob Parsons, who was fourth in the 120-yard highs, Monte Waite and Frank McComas, who were tied for fourth in the high jump.

WELLSVILLE was paced by Andy Dash, who was second in the shot put, and Terry Flesch, who gained a runnerup spot in the high jump.

Ron Daniels was fifth in the mile, Dan Corbisello fifth in the 220-yard dash and Mark Leyda fourth in the 180-yard lows.

The best performance by a Beaver Local entrant was turned in by George Gaydos, who finished second in the pole vault. Warren Bradley also took third in the 120-yard highs.

United Local won the Class A trophy with 17 3-5 points.

Drysdale Checks Giants; Pirates Nosed Out, 1-0

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League champion San Francisco Giants and the runner-up Dodgers met Friday night for the first time since last year's playoff and Los Angeles came away with a 2-1 victory.

Don Drysdale, who had been unable to post a victory in almost a month, checked the Giants on six hits and retired 13 batters in order at one stretch.

The victory pulled the Dodgers to within four games of the pace-setting Giants and cut the Giants' edge to one game over the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, who edged Pittsburgh 1-0 on Curt Simmons' pitching and George Altman's ninth inning homer.

Dick Farrell allowed only two hits as Houston ended the Chicago Cubs' winning streak at six, 4-1; the New York Mets won their fifth in a row by defeating Cincinnati 3-2 on Jim Hickman's homer, and Milwaukee downed Philadelphia 4-1 in a game called in the seventh inning due to rain.

A crowd of 50,407 turned out at Los Angeles for the first meeting between the Dodgers and Giants since last Oct. 3, when San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 6-4 in the third and deciding game of the NL playoffs.

Altman's homer with two out in the ninth ended a pitcher's duel between Card southpaw Simmons and Pittsburgh's Bob Friend. Simmons scattered nine hits for his fifth victory without a loss while Friend absorbed his second defeat in five hits. It was the first time the Pirates had been shut out this season.

Farrell pitched perfect ball for six innings, but the Cubs put both their hits together for a run in the seventh inning on Lou Brock's single and a triple by Billy Williams. Rusty Staub, 19-year-old Colts rookie, collected three singles in four at-bats and drove in two runs in support of Farrell, who struck out 13 and squared his record at 3-3. Glen Hobbie lost it.

STRAINING EVERY MUSCLE. Jim Ward, Columbiana's sensational junior star is ready to break the tape and crack a 44-year-old record in the 220-yard dash as timers at the left get set to stop their watches on the new mark. Ward covered the distance in 21.8 to feature the 60th running of the Columbiana County Track and Field meet Friday night at Salem.

ONE OF THE FIRST persons to congratulate Jim Ward Friday night on his record-breaking performance in the 220 and his matching of the 100-yard dash mark was George (Chalk) Gaines, who for 44 years had held both records. Gaines, who served as an official timer at last night's county meet at Salem, set both records back in 1919.

BLONDE CHERYL WALTER presents first place medals to two other record - breakers. Bill Beery of Salem (left) accepts his award for setting a new mark in the 440-yard dash of 51.4 and Dale Murphy of Columbiana is the new record-holder in the 180-yard low hurdles, which he won in 20.9.

White Sox Win Again, Retain Lead

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox took on 112 minutes Friday night to polish off the Los Angeles Angels 2-0, with Juan Pizarro pitching a three-hitter and driving in both runs, one with a homer.

That was one minute longer than the Sox took the night before to trim the New York Yankees by the same score. They have now won five straight games during which they have allowed the opposition five runs, and are a full game in front in the American League.

The Baltimore Orioles kept pace in second place by whipping the Yankees 6-3. It was the fourth straight loss for the world champions.

Phil Regan threw a three-hitter for the Detroit Tigers who bombed the Cleveland Indians 14-0, and Camilo Pascual did the same job for the Minnesota Twins over the Kansas City Athletics, 2-0. The Boston Red Sox dropped the Washington Senators 6-3.

Pizarro, the 26-year-old southpaw, struck out six Angels and walked only one as he gained his second victory. He homered in the third inning and batted home the insurance run in the fifth with a single, after catcher J. C. Martin had tripled.

Ken McBride, who brought a string of 29 scoreless innings against Chicago into the game and had never lost to his old Sox mates, was the loser.

Luis Aparicio and Al Smith slugged solo homers off Yankee starter Whitey Ford, and Baltimore starter Mike McCormick was nursing a two-run lead when his arm stiffened in the eighth inning. Relief pitcher Dick Hall came just before rain had held up play for 35 minutes, and eventually gave up a two-run single to Clete Boyer that tied the score.

The Orioles came right back with three runs off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff in the eighth, on two walks, Jackie Brandt's run-producing double and John Orsino's two-run single.

Dick McAuliffe drove in six runs for the Tigers, four on a grand slam homer, and Rocky Colavito and Regan also homered. It was Regan's first in the majors. The Tiger right-hander, working in 36-degree weather, struck out eight.

Kress Given Scholarship In Kentucky

Jim Kress, 6-7, 210-pound Leetonia star, has inked a basketball grant-in-aid at Eastern Kentucky State College, Coach Jim Baechtold announced today.

Kress is the fifth outstanding schoolboy cager to be awarded a basketball scholarship by Eastern.

"Jim is one of the finest prospects we've signed," Baechtold said. "We think he's one of the best shooters we have seen all year, and he is an outstanding college basketball prospect."

Kress, who averaged 28 points and 20 rebounds per game his senior year and connected on 54 per cent of his field goal attempts while playing for Crestview High School.

The big Crestview star averaged 20 points and 18 rebounds per contest during his junior year when he hit on better than 60 per cent of his field goal tries.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Kress of near Leetonia. His high school coach is Bruce Weber.

Niles Airman Helps Save Planes In Fire

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force says an enlisted man drove a burning tanker filled with 5,000 gallons of jet fuel safely away from two F104 Starfighter jets, saving them both.

Two other airmen also were credited with helping save the planes after leaking fuel exploded during re-fueling Thursday. None was hurt.

Airman 2.C. John W. Dickey, 20, Merced, Calif., singed his hair and eyebrows when he rushed to the trailer and drove it away.

Airman 2.C. Samuel S. Ryder, 21, Niles, Ohio, doused the flames with a fire extinguisher.

The third man, Airman 1. C. Kendall E. Bauer, 24, Hutchinson, Kan., alerted the control tower from a radio-equipped truck. Then he grabbed an extinguisher and put out flames burning on a pool of fuel left by the tanker.

Fuel leaking from the tanker exploded when Dickey, the driver, turned off the engine. The Air Force is investigating.

Jackie Will Be Ready If Clipper Gets Smart

WASHINGTON (AP) — German Shepherds grow up to be menacingly big dogs and Mrs. John F. Kennedy is making sure her year-old Clipper isn't a big menace.

It was learned Friday the First Lady had taken four lessons or so from Washington police K9 corps trainers so she could teach Clipper to be obedient.

Police Lt. William Wright said Mrs. Kennedy was an apt student. There was no word on how apt a student Clipper is.

Niles Airman Helps Save Planes In Fire

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force says an enlisted man drove a burning tanker filled with 5,000 gallons of jet fuel safely away from two F104 Starfighter jets, saving them both.

Two other airmen also were credited with helping save the planes after leaking fuel exploded during re-fueling Thursday. None was hurt.

Airman 2.C. John W. Dickey, 20, Merced, Calif., singed his hair and eyebrows when he rushed to the trailer and drove it away.

Airman 2.C. Samuel S. Ryder, 21, Niles, Ohio, doused the flames with a fire extinguisher.

The third man, Airman 1. C. Kendall E. Bauer, 24, Hutchinson, Kan., alerted the control tower from a radio-equipped truck. Then he grabbed an extinguisher and put out flames burning on a pool of fuel left by the tanker.

Fuel leaking from the tanker exploded when Dickey, the driver, turned off the engine. The Air Force is investigating.

Jackie Will Be Ready If Clipper Gets Smart

WASHINGTON (AP) — German Shepherds grow up to be menacingly big dogs and Mrs. John F. Kennedy is making sure her year-old Clipper isn't a big menace.

It was learned Friday the First Lady had taken four lessons or so from Washington police K9 corps trainers so she could teach Clipper to be obedient.

Police Lt. William Wright said Mrs. Kennedy was an apt student. There was no word on how apt a student Clipper is.

MORT'S Real Estate

We sell homes but what is home without Mother:

Mother's Day!

On Mother's Birthday

Oh Mother dear, we're gathered here
To honor you today,
To pay respect and show our love
To one we can't repay.

You gave us life, you bore each one,
A noble work well done,
May God bless you, as you have us,
You are my dearest One.

You nursed us in the cradle stage
And watched us day and night,
Your nimble hands they cared for us
You taught us wrong from right.

What you went through, and what you did
A Mother only knows,
Your work, your needs, and everything,
From a Mother's heart, Love flows.

You led us with a guiding hand,
You gave us many toys,
Your caressing ways they meant so much,
You shared our sorrows and our joys.

You watched us from little tots
To men and women grow,
I know Your heart goes right with us
When from you we do go.

No matter how we treated you
No matter what we do,
I know sometimes it hurts your heart,
But still your love is true.

Of all the people on this earth
I know there is no other,
Who loves us all and we can trust
As you, Our own dear Mother.

Your love shines out to guide us on
No matter where we go.
We should do right with all our might
And show respect to you.

Let us help you on any Real Estate Problem Mr. G.I. We will help you get a home at no cost to you. Call office or any of our salesmen.

MORT'S Real Estate

We sell homes but what is home without Mother:

Mother's Day!

On Mother's Birthday

Oh Mother dear, we're gathered here
To honor you today,
To pay respect and show our love
To one we can't repay.

You gave us life, you bore each one,
A noble work well done,
May God bless you, as you have us,
You are my dearest One.

You nursed us in the cradle stage
And watched us day and night,
Your nimble hands they cared for us
You taught us wrong from right.

What you went through, and what you did
A Mother only knows,
Your work, your needs, and everything,
From a Mother's heart, Love flows.

You led us with a guiding hand,
You gave us many toys,
Your caressing ways they meant so much,
You shared our sorrows and our joys.

You watched us from little tots
To men and women grow,
I know Your heart goes right with us
When from you we do go.

No matter how we treated you
No matter what we do,
I know sometimes it hurts your heart,
But still your love is true.

Of all the people on this earth
I know there is no other,
Who loves us all and we can trust
As you, Our own dear Mother.

Your love shines out to guide us on
No matter where we go.
We should do right with all our might
And show respect to you.

Let us help you on any Real Estate Problem Mr. G.I. We will help you get a home at no cost to you. Call office or any of our salesmen.

Junior Editors Quiz on SEWING MACHINES

QUESTION: How did the sewing machine come to be invented?

ANSWER: One evening in 1845, a young machinist, Elias Howe, sat watching his wife sewing. There were three children to be fed and his wages were small, so his wife took in sewing to make extra money they needed. It was tedious work and Howe suddenly got the idea that a machine could be made to lighten that kind of labor. He started to build a model but found the materials too expensive. Fortunately a friend helped him out by providing some money and a workshop. Howe completed his machine and obtained a patent on it. He sewed several suits of clothes to prove it would work. But tailors to whom he tried to sell his invention were afraid it would ruin their business. Howe became discouraged.

Meanwhile others tried to steal his idea, but he defended his patent and by 1850 started to manufacture sewing machines. Many others were now making them too. Isaac M. Singer made very useful improvements and patented the first rigid - arm sewing machine which brought him a fortune. Howe lived to secure payments for his right to the basic patent, amounting to as much as $200,000 a year.

FOR YOU TO DO: Try to work out some helpful and useful invention in your own home, even if it's only a new way to keep the floor clean. Don't expect to make a fortune by it — on the other hand, who knows? You might possibly hit the jackpot!

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I clean playing cards?

A. All that the plastic type of cards need, of course, is a wiping over with a damp cloth. To clean the paper variety of cards, wipe them carefully with a bit of cotton moistened with spirits of ammonia, then dry with another piece of dry cotton.

Q. How can I do a good job of cleaning the white side walls of my automobile tires?

A. One of the easiest and most effective methods is to use the kind of steel wool pads that are filled with soap.

Q. How can I mend broken chinaware?

A. Try using a cement made by mixing plaster-of-paris with the white of an egg until it is creamy, apply this as you would any commercial cement.

How can I wash a girdle properly?

A. Use mild soapsuds and lukewarm water. Do not wring or twist if it contains elastic. Roll in a turkish towel to remove moisture, then dry flat on a dry towel away from artificial heat and sunlight. Wash latex rubber girdles after each wearing; dry and dust generously with talcum powder. Fabric panels of girdles may be ironed with a warm iron, but don't press the elastic portion.

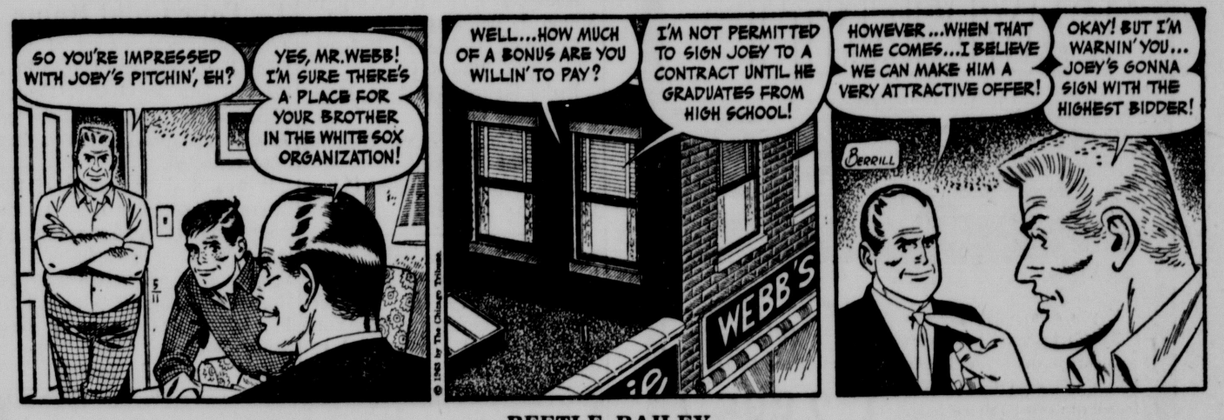

How can I remove airplane cement from fabrics?

A. On all fabrics, except acetate rayon or vinyon, airplane cement can be removed with acetone (fingernail polish remover). On rayon, amyl acetate (banana oil) can be used.

Q. How can I eliminate "carpenter ants"?

A. Carpenter ants, sometimes found inside a house, can be destroyed by locating their nest and spraying it with carbon tetrachloride.

Mailbox Improvement Week Due For City, Rural Routes

The week of May 20-25 has been designated by the Post Office Department as Mailbox Improvement Week and Postmaster Sam Brown said it coincides with the local campaign of cleanup and paintup during May.

Mailboxes on mounted city routes, rural routes and city delivery service should receive attention.

Postmaster Brown said that all patrons should furnish mail receptacles which are convenient and safe to use, neat appearing and protect the mail. Boxes that are properly erected and maintained contribute to efficient, speedy delivery of mail.

On mounted city routes, a patron's name and address must be shown on the box and must be on the side from which the vehicle approaches. All patrons on mounted carrier routes, to aid delivery, should use their street and M.C. Route number to save rehandling of mail locally. Boxes should be painted white.

Rural route patrons are required to provide mailboxes of the standard approved type. Patrons who are still using boxes that are in need of painting, or repair or do not have names on the boxes must see that his situation is taken care of in the very near future, he said. Here again the names must be on the side that shows as the driver approaches the box.

The supports should also be kept painted and the approach to the box must be in good condition. State laws require that mailboxes on rural routes should be located on the right side of the road in the direction of travel of the carrier, wherever traffic conditions are such that it would be dangerous for the carriers to drive to the left in order to serve the boxes, or where there doing so would constitute a violation of state or local traffic laws or regulations.

The postmaster said in many communities 4-H Clubs and similar groups have adopted cleaning up mail boxes as their program and have done a very good job.

"Let us all get behind this project as another way of improving and aiding the looks of the city and countryside in our area, during this month of May," Brown appealed.

Oglebay Park Trip Planned For Senior Citizen's Group

Plans to charter a bus to visit the Garden Center at Oglebay Park near Wheeling for an "Old Time" Fair May 18 were discussed at a meeting of the Senior Citizens Group Thursday afternoon at the Parish Hall of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Rozella Hickenbottom, councilor, conducted business.

Reservations for the trip are to be turned in to Mrs. Nell Pelley by Thursday.

Mrs. Hickenbottom also announced that the City Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring an auction soon and volunteers are needed. Mrs. Hazel Nichols was appointed in charge of the refreshment booth.

A Mother's Day program was featured, with John N. Mostoller, minister of the First Church of Christ, singing several selections, accompanied by Miss Jo Ann Vannoy. The minister also read a Mother's Day poem.

Arthur Hollis sang "Mother" and Mrs. Sadie Whitney and Mrs. Martha Carney sang "Whispering Hope."

The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer, followed with the flag salute and "America," led by Frank Shone, president.

Mrs. John Gray, 93, a member, won a gift certificate donated to the group.

Community singing and cards were featured.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eugene Hogenfield and committee. Special Mother's Day favors were made by Mrs. Louise Belaney and Mrs. Edna Manor.

The meeting closed with benediction by Mostoller.

Highlandtown PTA's New Officers Inducted

Final plans were made for a carnival May 24.

The group agreed to sponsor Brownie Troop 60.

Mrs. Anna McDole's third grade won the attendance banner.

Next meeting will be Sept. 12.

South Side Auxiliary To Tour Child Home

The Junior Auxiliary of the South Side American Legion Post 952 will tour the Beaver County Children's Home in New Brighton June 10, and deliver the toys they have collected.

It was also announced at the meeting Wednesday night at the post home at Hookstown that members have completed the scrapbook to be presented to the Deshon Veterans Hospital in Butler. Lunch was served by Miss Sandy Doak.

Next meeting is June 3.

9 Candidates File Reports On Expenses

Nine East Liverpool and Wellsville men who sought party nominations in the primaries Tuesday have filed the required sworn statements of campaign expenses with the County Election Board.

The local list is topped by E. Allan McKeever, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for city auditor, who said he spent $160.

Councilman Kenneth C. Berg, renominated in the Second Ward on the GOP slate, said he spent $11. Councilman Edward B. Massey of the Fourth Ward, who lost a bid for renomination on the Democratic slate, said he spent $16.

The other three local candidates reported no expenses. They are: Robert W. Sample Jr., renominated for councilman-at-large on the GOP ticket; Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, unopposed for renomination on the Democratic ticket, and Leo Payne, unopposed Democratic nominee for city treasurer.

Three Wellsville GOP candidates filed the reports.

Aguin Bowling, nominee for First Ward councilman, reported expenses of $1.50. Thomas H. Grafton, treasurer nominee, and William L. Bush, renominated for solicitor, reported no expenses.

June 21 at 4 p. m. is the deadline for the reports. They are required under the "corrupt practices act," which puts a ceiling on campaign spending. Reports must be filed by all candidates, whether or not they were successful, and by individuals or committees which supported or opposed any candidate or issue.

State law provides a possible fine for failure to file a report. In addition, a candidate can be disqualified from running for public office again for five years.

Mailbox Improvement Week Due For City, Rural Routes

The week of May 20-25 has been designated by the Post Office Department as Mailbox Improvement Week and Postmaster Sam Brown said it coincides with the local campaign of cleanup and paintup during May.

Mailboxes on mounted city routes, rural routes and city delivery service should receive attention.

Postmaster Brown said that all patrons should furnish mail receptacles which are convenient and safe to use, neat appearing and protect the mail. Boxes that are properly erected and maintained contribute to efficient, speedy delivery of mail.

On mounted city routes, a patron's name and address must be shown on the box and must be on the side from which the vehicle approaches. All patrons on mounted carrier routes, to aid delivery, should use their street and M.C. Route number to save rehandling of mail locally. Boxes should be painted white.

Rural route patrons are required to provide mailboxes of the standard approved type. Patrons who are still using boxes that are in need of painting, or repair or do not have names on the boxes must see that his situation is taken care of in the very near future, he said. Here again the names must be on the side that shows as the driver approaches the box.

The supports should also be kept painted and the approach to the box must be in good condition. State laws require that mailboxes on rural routes should be located on the right side of the road in the direction of travel of the carrier, wherever traffic conditions are such that it would be dangerous for the carriers to drive to the left in order to serve the boxes, or where there doing so would constitute a violation of state or local traffic laws or regulations.

The postmaster said in many communities 4-H Clubs and similar groups have adopted cleaning up mail boxes as their program and have done a very good job.

"Let us all get behind this project as another way of improving and aiding the looks of the city and countryside in our area, during this month of May," Brown appealed.

Oglebay Park Trip Planned For Senior Citizen's Group

Plans to charter a bus to visit the Garden Center at Oglebay Park near Wheeling for an "Old Time" Fair May 18 were discussed at a meeting of the Senior Citizens Group Thursday afternoon at the Parish Hall of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Rozella Hickenbottom, councilor, conducted business.

Reservations for the trip are to be turned in to Mrs. Nell Pelley by Thursday.

Mrs. Hickenbottom also announced that the City Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring an auction soon and volunteers are needed. Mrs. Hazel Nichols was appointed in charge of the refreshment booth.

A Mother's Day program was featured, with John N. Mostoller, minister of the First Church of Christ, singing several selections, accompanied by Miss Jo Ann Vannoy. The minister also read a Mother's Day poem.

Arthur Hollis sang "Mother" and Mrs. Sadie Whitney and Mrs. Martha Carney sang "Whispering Hope."

The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer, followed with the flag salute and "America," led by Frank Shone, president.

Mrs. John Gray, 93, a member, won a gift certificate donated to the group.

Community singing and cards were featured.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eugene Hogenfield and committee. Special Mother's Day favors were made by Mrs. Louise Belaney and Mrs. Edna Manor.

The meeting closed with benediction by Mostoller.

Highlandtown PTA's New Officers Inducted

Final plans were made for a carnival May 24.

The group agreed to sponsor Brownie Troop 60.

Mrs. Anna McDole's third grade won the attendance banner.

Next meeting will be Sept. 12.

South Side Auxiliary To Tour Child Home

The Junior Auxiliary of the South Side American Legion Post 952 will tour the Beaver County Children's Home in New Brighton June 10, and deliver the toys they have collected.

It was also announced at the meeting Wednesday night at the post home at Hookstown that members have completed the scrapbook to be presented to the Deshon Veterans Hospital in Butler. Lunch was served by Miss Sandy Doak.

Next meeting is June 3.

9 Candidates File Reports On Expenses

Nine East Liverpool and Wellsville men who sought party nominations in the primaries Tuesday have filed the required sworn statements of campaign expenses with the County Election Board.

The local list is topped by E. Allan McKeever, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for city auditor, who said he spent $160.

Councilman Kenneth C. Berg, renominated in the Second Ward on the GOP slate, said he spent $11. Councilman Edward B. Massey of the Fourth Ward, who lost a bid for renomination on the Democratic slate, said he spent $16.

The other three local candidates reported no expenses. They are: Robert W. Sample Jr., renominated for councilman-at-large on the GOP ticket; Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, unopposed for renomination on the Democratic ticket, and Leo Payne, unopposed Democratic nominee for city treasurer.

Three Wellsville GOP candidates filed the reports.

Aguin Bowling, nominee for First Ward councilman, reported expenses of $1.50. Thomas H. Grafton, treasurer nominee, and William L. Bush, renominated for solicitor, reported no expenses.

June 21 at 4 p. m. is the deadline for the reports. They are required under the "corrupt practices act," which puts a ceiling on campaign spending. Reports must be filed by all candidates, whether or not they were successful, and by individuals or committees which supported or opposed any candidate or issue.

State law provides a possible fine for failure to file a report. In addition, a candidate can be disqualified from running for public office again for five years.

The Story Behind Mother's Day

An old brick church in Grafton, W. Va., was the site of the first commemorative service for mothers; today that modest church is being made into a shrine

By WILLIAM WALLACE BARRON
Governor of West Virginia

Church in Grafton, W. Va., will be shrine (left) to Mother's Day, originated by Anna Jarvis in 1908.

MOTHER'S DAY is a very special day all over the world, but nowhere more so than in my own state of West Virginia. For it was here that the holiday began.

In 1868, soon after the Civil War ended, an inspired, God-fearing woman named Anna Reeves Jarvis organized a committee of mothers living in Grafton, W. Va. Their object: to sponsor a Mother's Friendship Day to help heal the wounds of the war by reuniting families and friends.

Friendship appeals were sent to the families of all veterans—both Union and Confederate. And the records tell what an inspiring sight it was when former enemies met and shook hands.

For many years, Mrs. Jarvis taught Sunday school at the Andrews Methodist Episcopal Church in Grafton. One of her lessons was titled, "Mothers of the Bible," and she voiced the hope that "Someone, sometime, will found a memorial mother's day, commemorating her for the service she renders to humanity in every field of life."

After Mrs. Jarvis's death, her daughter—Anna M. Jarvis—vowed to establish the sort of memorial her mother had envisioned. In 1907 Miss Jarvis invited some friends to her home on the second Sunday in May to commemorate the anniversary of her mother's death. At that gathering she told of her plans for a nationwide observance in honor of all mothers, living or dead.

The church in Grafton was quick to cooperate. On May 10, 1908, the first official Mother's Day church service was held there. Miss Jarvis sent hundreds of carnations, her mother's favorite flower, for presentation to every mother and child who attended.

Mother's Day was off to a good start as Miss Jarvis continued her efforts to broaden the day into one honoring not just her own mother but all mothers everywhere. She sent a stream of letters to churchmen, merchants, editors, Congressmen, even to the White House.

In 1910 the Governor of West Virginia, William E. Glasscock, made the observance statewide by issuing the first Mother's Day proclamation. The following year, every state in the union recognized the holiday. In 1914 President Woodrow Wilson made the observance national by signing a Congressional resolution declaring the second Sunday in May to be an annual observance of Mother's Day.

Over the years, the holiday has spread far beyond the borders of the United States. Today people in more than 40 nations pause on this day to honor the women who gave them birth.

Through the years, people from all over America have been coming to Grafton to attend holiday worship at the "Mother Church of Mother's Day." But only recently have we been working on a plan to return the spirit of the holiday to the place where it was born.

Launched by the local Kiwanis Club, an effort is being made through a nonprofit corporation to establish an International Mother's Day Shrine in Grafton. Funds are being raised to acquire the Andrews Church and adjacent property, restore the church, erect a Motherhood Museum, and landscape the site with formal gardens.

LAST YEAR we received a touching gift from the mother of our first astronaut to orbit the earth, Mrs. John Glenn, Sr., who was named "Mother of the World" by the American Mothers Committee. Mrs. Glenn gave the shrine a sundial to be placed in the gardens that will surround the 90-year-old brick church.

Since West Virginia is celebrating its centennial of statehood in 1963, we hope this International Mother's Day Shrine will become a reality before the year is over. When completed, it will bear fitting testimony to the undying love and respect we all feel for our mothers—not just on the second Sunday of May but every day of our lives.

If You Want to Help

Readers interested in contributing to the Mother's Day Shrine in West Virginia may send donations to the International Mother's Day Shrine, Inc., P.O. Box 307, Grafton, W.Va.

Donors of $1 or more will be mailed, on request, an artificial carnation—symbol of Mother's Day—in either red or white. Those donating $5 or more will have their names listed on Shrine publications as members of the Board of Advisory.

COVER:

A little garden helper is always welcome, especially on Mother's Day—as Vivienne Lapham's scene attests. In West Virginia right now, a tribute is being planned to mothers the world over. See story above.

"Shift" into Summer

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

■ ONCE a gad-about-the-house dress, the shift, like 20th-century woman, has finally been emancipated.

Seen strolling, shopping, patio hopping—even making short car trips—it has become a shoo-in to win the female vote this year.

The cotton-knit shifts shown here, all from Alamac in Permathal Everglaze finish, parlay dazzling good looks and wrinkle-shedding powers into cool, comfortable coverups for the beach beauty or the social butterfly.

These knits go to any length to prove their ubiquitous natures: mid-thigh, to the knee, or just below the knee. They come hooded, flowered, printed, striped, or plain pretty.

Ann Fogarty loves a shower of white polka dots on a blue ground. Her sissy shift has a peter-pan collar and is finished with white piping. About $23.

Wear a knee-length hooded shift for a quick spin to the shore or nearest patio. Swirling red checks are on a white ground. Jeanine Originals. $12.

At last—the secrets of the world's greatest money golfer

SAM SNEAD SHOWS YOU HOW TO PLAY TO WIN

SAMUEL JACKSON SNEAD started golfing in the hills of Virginia with a club carved from a swamp maple. He was so poor that "money thought I was dead." But today, after winning 110 tournaments, he has collected a fortune in prize money.

What makes Sammy win? He tells you in his new book, THE EDUCATION OF A GOLFER. He tells you, for example

- What the #1 Golf Disease is and how to cure it
- Why you should think with your swing and not ahead of it
- How to overcome the "yips" in putting, and why the prime rule in putting doesn't hold water
- What to beware of when you gamble in golf

Here, for the first time, is the colorful story of golf's most successful player. There has never been a golf book like it. Only Sam Snead could take you behind the scenes of top tournament play, tell you how he solves golf problems, and (at the end of each chapter) show you precisely how his experience can be applied to pare strokes off your score:

- How he took a tip from Vic Ghezzi and blazed home with a pair of 67's to overcome an 8-stroke deficit and win the Masters
- The worst experience he's had in 25 golfing years — and how you can benefit from it
- What he said to President Eisenhower that made the Secret Service man blanch — but took five strokes off the presidential game
- Why Sam has never lost to Ben Hogan in a playoff
- How he corrected his early hooking and smothering
- Golf Course Diplomacy: "The Brazil Story"
- The putting mistake that lost him a National Open playoff — and how even a beginner can avoid it

Sam not only gives you priceless "how-to" instruction — more important, you get the thinking behind his game: winner-thinking. And he regales you with pungent inside-golf anecdotes, never before in a book — every one of which contains golf savvy from which you can profit.

How to improve your game sitting down!

As you enjoy Sam's unretouched stories of the exciting moments in his career (see the table of contents at right) an extraordinary amount of his hard-won education becomes yours.

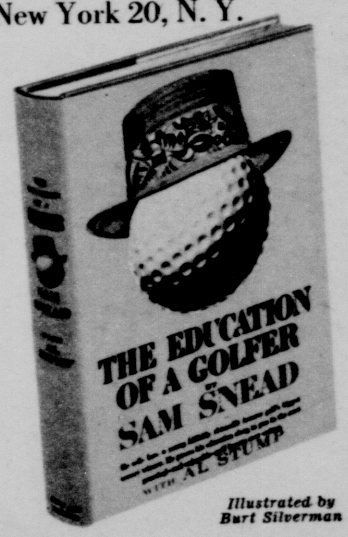

You learn how to shrug off an opponent's needling — and perhaps do some of your own . . . why footwork is so important . . . how to get better distance on woodshots . . . how to correct knee and wrist tension . . . when to underclub your irons.

You'll find out Sam's special techniques on tricky lies, dog-legs, water holes, rough . . . how to play a sand trap better, and how to avoid an almost universal error in trap strategy . . . 4 common putting situations and how to play them . . . how to stay "cool-mad when hexed" . . . and much, much more.

What it adds up to is this: it doesn't matter whether your present handicap is 2 or 22 — what Professor Snead knows how to do is improve your game.

Send for your GUARANTEED copy today

Read Sam's book for thirty days. Try out all the tips he gives you. At the end of that time, if you are not a better player, return the book and pay nothing. Otherwise, we'll bill you for only $4.50 (plus postage). THE EDUCATION OF A GOLFER is guaranteed to help you or it costs you nothing. "Shift" into Summer

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

■ ONCE a gad-about-the-house dress, the shift, like 20th-century woman, has finally been emancipated.

Seen strolling, shopping, patio hopping—even making short car trips—it has become a shoo-in to win the female vote this year.

The cotton-knit shifts shown here, all from Alamac in Permathal Everglaze finish, parlay dazzling good looks and wrinkle-shedding powers into cool, comfortable coverups for the beach beauty or the social butterfly.

These knits go to any length to prove their ubiquitous natures: mid-thigh, to the knee, or just below the knee. They come hooded, flowered, printed, striped, or plain pretty.

Prediction: shifts will touch off a fashion landslide for summer '63.

Sweda designs a slip of a shift in a hand-screened floral print that buttons at the shoulders. Swimsuit travelers will adore its instant cover-up. About $8.

Borrowing the look of India's Nehru, Hartog "3" designs a slim cardigan shift in red and white stripes. About $13. Contrasting red pants, about $9.

Ann Fogarty loves a shower of white polka dots on a blue ground. Her sissy shift has a peter-pan collar and is finished with white piping. About $23.

Wear a knee-length hooded shift for a quick spin to the shore or nearest patio. Swirling red checks are on a white ground. Jeanine Originals. $12.

Make a Feather Mobile

By Garna Silke

Here's a way of using the bird feathers you find on the ground when the different flocks of birds fly north for the summer and south for the winter. Make a ball of plastilene or buy a ball of styrofoam at the variety store. Thread a small bolt to the end of a piece of string, then run the needle and string through the ball and attach the other end with a piece of tape to the ceiling light fixture in your room or the side of an open doorway, where it won't hit anyone. Then as you find the various feathers, stick them in the ball, and you will soon have a beautiful and colorful mobile.

SAM SNEAD SHOWS YOU HOW TO PLAY TO WIN

SAMUEL JACKSON SNEAD started golfing in the hills of Virginia with a club carved from a swamp maple. He was so poor that "money thought I was dead." But today, after winning 110 tournaments, he has collected a fortune in prize money.

What makes Sammy win? He tells you in his new book, THE EDUCATION OF A GOLFER. He tells you, for example

- What the #1 Golf Disease is and how to cure it
- Why you should think with your swing and not ahead of it
- How to overcome the "yips" in putting, and why the prime rule in putting doesn't hold water
- What to beware of when you gamble in golf

Here, for the first time, is the colorful story of golf's most successful player. There has never been a golf book like it. Only Sam Snead could take you behind the scenes of top tournament play, tell you how he solves golf problems, and (at the end of each chapter) show you precisely how his experience can be applied to pare strokes off your score:

- How he took a tip from Vic Ghezzi and blazed home with a pair of 67's to overcome an 8-stroke deficit and win the Masters
- The worst experience he's had in 25 golfing years — and how you can benefit from it
- What he said to President Eisenhower that made the Secret Service man blanch — but took five strokes off the presidential game
- Why Sam has never lost to Ben Hogan in a playoff
- How he corrected his early hooking and smothering
- Golf Course Diplomacy: "The Brazil Story"
- The putting mistake that lost him a National Open playoff — and how even a beginner can avoid it

Sam not only gives you priceless "how-to" instruction — more important, you get the thinking behind his game: winner-thinking. And he regales you with pungent inside-golf anecdotes, never before in a book — every one of which contains golf savvy from which you can profit.

How to improve your game sitting down!

As you enjoy Sam's unretouched stories of the exciting moments in his career (see the table of contents at right) an extraordinary amount of his hard-won education becomes yours.

You learn how to shrug off an opponent's needling — and perhaps do some of your own . . . why footwork is so important . . . how to get better distance on woodshots . . . how to correct knee and wrist tension . . . when to underclub your irons.

You'll find out Sam's special techniques on tricky lies, dog-legs, water holes, rough . . . how to play a sand trap better, and how to avoid an almost universal error in trap strategy . . . 4 common putting situations and how to play them . . . how to stay "cool-mad when hexed" . . . and much, much more.

What it adds up to is this: it doesn't matter whether your present handicap is 2 or 22 — what Professor Snead knows how to do is improve your game.

Does the President Have

Prying eyes have driven the Kennedys out of Hyannis Port; ugly publicity has made the First Lady dread the day Caroline learns to read; it's a situation that makes thoughtful Americans wonder

A NEW fieldstone-and-wood house stands in a lonely, hilly region of Virginia, miles from any sizable settlement. The family who will use the one-story, seven-bedroom home as a weekend retreat chose the spot with care.

It had to be close enough to the husband's job; it had to provide the kind of recreation his wife preferred—but most of all, the place had to offer the occupants a maximum of privacy.

The new family in the neighborhood, of course, are the John F. Kennedys, and their house atop Rattlesnake Mountain meets their three specifications. It's less than 45 miles from Washington, it's in the middle of Jackie Kennedy's beloved fox-hunting country, and it permits them a few blessed moments out of the goldfish bowl in which they live virtually every moment of every day.

This is not the first time the President has sought seclusion for himself and his family. Last year they abandoned their home at Hyannis Port, Mass., as a summer White House because even a new stockade fence didn't protect them from prying eyes. Their moving into tenor Morton Downey's house on a tourist-free island off the mainland was a sacrifice for the President, who prefers to be close to his brothers and parents—but he had no choice.

Certainly such developments should make thoughtful Americans ask: are we invading the privacy of the President and his family too much? Have we exceeded the bounds of good taste in our eagerness to know as much as we can about him? Are we actually hindering him by forcing him to live constantly in the blinding spotlight of publicity?

Lack of privacy is a fact of life every President had to face, but Mr. Kennedy and his family are being subjected to unprecedented public attention. There is an insatiable demand to see them, hear them, know all about their every doing. The prying eye of the television camera follows them wherever it can. Magazine articles "reveal" so-called sensational facts about the First Lady, her children, and her background. The Kennedys are lampooned via tv, records, coloring books, and parlor games.

Matters have progressed to the point where many observers are shocked and dismayed. As one high official told me: "The intrusion into their private lives is almost intolerable."

And things are not about to improve. Such an astute observer of the political scene as James A. Farley, former postmaster general in Franklin D. Roosevelt's cabinet, told me: "The situation is bound to worsen for the President as time goes on. The spotlight will shine even more brightly, and Mr. Kennedy's successor in the White House will find himself with even less privacy, if that is conceivable."

Where He Goes, He's the Show

The Presidential family has had little personal privacy since 1960. Recently, for example, Mr. Kennedy went to New York for a weekend with his family. When he attended the theater, he was the show. When he went to a restaurant, what he and the First Lady ate was duly recorded—as was the news that the President was a $10 tipper.

On Sunday morning, Mr. Kennedy decided to take a stroll in Central Park with his five-year-old daughter Caroline and her young cousin. As soon as he stepped from the apartment house where he was staying, crowds bore down on him. The President took one look and retreated into the building with the children. "Why are we going back, Daddy?" Caroline wanted to know.

The President's reply was not heard, but he could have been thinking of the time last summer when he was mobbed by bikini-clad bathers at Santa Monica, Calif. While visiting his brother-in-law, movie actor Peter Lawford, the Presi-

Churchill kept feeding his huge cat, Nelson, pieces of smoked salmon, which was our first course. He did it very surreptitiously, but finally handsome, white-haired Mrs. Churchill caught him at it and said reproachfully, "Winston, you're spoiling that cat frightfully!" The Prime Minister looked as sheepish as a boy caught with his hand in the apple barrel.

Churchill talked about motion pictures he had seen. "The film people send me three or four pictures each week. Last week they sent a Marx Brothers picture. I've seen it five times, and each time I see it I roar with laughter."

Hopkins said that President Roosevelt was a great movie fan and that he had had a projector installed in the White House.

Everyone at the table seemed so relaxed that it was difficult to realize this may have been Britain's darkest hour.

THAT AFTERNOON I worked with Hopkins on his speech. We were just finishing when Mrs. Churchill came into Hopkins' room. "The Prime Minister and I hope you can stay for dinner," she said graciously. "Averell will be driving to London afterward, and he can drop you off."

The Churchill household observed the rationing laws meticulously. We had the same kind of meal that millions of English families were sitting down to. And again, there was only incidental mention of the war. Finally, Mrs. Churchill left us to our coffee, and now the atmosphere changed. Churchill talked with Hopkins and Harriman about problems of getting more tanks and aircraft to England. He talked freely—I was a friend of Hopkins and therefore could be trusted not to reveal anything of significance outside the room. Churchill passed his famous cigars around the table. As he smoked the huge but mild Cuban exports, he finally talked of the war in terms of the recent reverses.

"WE'VE HAD our setbacks this past month — serious ones," he said grimly. "But I'm not one bit discouraged. We have a long way to go, but with help from our friends across the sea," he nodded to Hopkins and Harriman, "we'll win out in the end.

"I'm sure the Luftwaffe will continue to harass London," he continued; even at his dinner table his voice was the same sonorous voice we had heard so often on the radio. "But every time they come over, our night fighters take big chunks out of them. Their bombers have crews of four or five. Every time we down 20 of their bombers, it means they have lost nearly 100 trained men. They can replace planes but not men.

"Max Beaverbrook is turning out Spitfires fast." (Beaverbrook was then in charge of producing aircraft.) "The balance of air power will soon be in our favor. You notice it has been a long time since they attempted any day raids." He chuckled. "They know it is suicide to come over this island by day.

"Do you want to know something?" his whole face smiled. "That evil man Hitler knows that he is beaten. I say this even now when his submarines are sinking our vessels in the Atlantic, even now when his troops seem to have the upper hand in the desert. But we are growing stronger every day, and he knows it. You correspondents," he turned to me, "have been writing about how well England can take it. In a few months, believe me, you will be writing—if I may use American slang—about how well England can dish it out. We'll be on the offensive soon, and Hitler knows it."

He lit a fresh cigar and gazed reflectively through the cloud of blue-gray smoke. He was thinking aloud now, seemingly making a pledge to some unseen power. Then he pointed to the empty chair at the foot of the table, where Mrs. Churchill had sat.

"Hitler would like to be sitting in that chair right now," he said solemnly. "He'd like to be talking to me, asking me if there wasn't some way out for him. I would tell him that his type of political philosophy would have to be stamped out and him with it. I would tell him that if my allies agree, I would be in favor of trying him in an international court, and if he were found guilty of being an international criminal, as I know he would be, I would be in favor of having him exterminated."

I think we were all hypnotized by this magnetic, confident figure who thought only in terms of eventual victory. "Our President feels exactly as you do, Mr. Churchill," Hopkins said.

"I know," Churchill chuckled. "I speak to him two or three times a week by phone. We both know it will take time and entail sacrifices, but we are both confident that we will bring that evil man to his knees."

AS HIS strong voice vibrated through the room, I found myself completely captivated. The Germans were threatening Tobruk, were about to swallow Russia, and were leveling war factories all over England. But what of it? Churchill wasn't worried. His voice and indomitable spirit filled the room. Suddenly I realized that there were some 44 million lesser Churchills in England, and he was voicing their own tremendous confidence. After months of hearing nothing but ominous talk about how England was being weakened, I was awestruck—and I, too, felt confident. An hour listening to Churchill had changed my thinking completely.

I left with Harriman an hour later. Churchill walked to the front door with us. He shook hands and said good-bye. We climbed into the car. Churchill stood there in the huge Gothic doorway, and the dim light inside silhouetted him—sturdy, rock-like, immovable. His cigar was stuck in the corner of his mouth at a jaunty angle. As we left, he grinned and waved.

Now all my doubts were gone. His absolute confidence in eventual victory had rubbed off on me, had completely inspired me, and now I felt as he did. The next day I wrote an article and sent it to the magazine for which I worked. I called it, "England Won't Lose."

SARAKA SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF "AFTER 45" IRREGULARITY

As we grow older, our systems may often need outside aid to help maintain a normal regularity pattern. Continued use of strong drug laxatives can be irritating, even dangerous. That's why many doctors recommend SARAKA, the pure, all-vegetable bulk stimulant laxative for middle age and over. SARAKA supplies the moist, bland bulk that is so essential to healthy bowel function. And only SARAKA has a gentle stimulant action to help ease this bulk through your system plus Vitamin B_1.

Special note to weight watchers: Lack of sufficient bulk in 900 calorie liquids can lead to constipation. If this occurs, supplement your daily diet with all-vegetable SARAKA.

Does the President Have

Prying eyes have driven the Kennedys out of Hyannis Port; ugly publicity has made the First Lady dread the day Caroline learns to read; it's a situation that makes thoughtful Americans wonder

A NEW fieldstone-and-wood house stands in a lonely, hilly region of Virginia, miles from any sizable settlement. The family who will use the one-story, seven-bedroom home as a weekend retreat chose the spot with care.

It had to be close enough to the husband's job; it had to provide the kind of recreation his wife preferred—but most of all, the place had to offer the occupants a maximum of privacy.

The new family in the neighborhood, of course, are the John F. Kennedys, and their house atop Rattlesnake Mountain meets their three specifications. It's less than 45 miles from Washington, it's in the middle of Jackie Kennedy's beloved fox-hunting country, and it permits them a few blessed moments out of the goldfish bowl in which they live virtually every moment of every day.

This is not the first time the President has sought seclusion for himself and his family. Last year they abandoned their home at Hyannis Port, Mass., as a summer White House because even a new stockade fence didn't protect them from prying eyes. Their moving into tenor Morton Downey's house on a tourist-free island off the mainland was a sacrifice for the President, who prefers to be close to his brothers and parents—but he had no choice.

Certainly such developments should make thoughtful Americans ask: are we invading the privacy of the President and his family too much? Have we exceeded the bounds of good taste in our eagerness to know as much as we can about him? Are we actually hindering him by forcing him to live constantly in the blinding spotlight of publicity?

Lack of privacy is a fact of life every President had to face, but Mr. Kennedy and his family are being subjected to unprecedented public attention. There is an insatiable demand to see them, hear them, know all about their every doing. The prying eye of the television camera follows them wherever it can. Magazine articles "reveal" so-called sensational facts about the First Lady, her children, and her background. The Kennedys are lampooned via tv, records, coloring books, and parlor games.

Matters have progressed to the point where many observers are shocked and dismayed. As one high official told me: "The intrusion into their private lives is almost intolerable."

And things are not about to improve. Such an astute observer of the political scene as James A. Farley, former postmaster general in Franklin D. Roosevelt's cabinet, told me: "The situation is bound to worsen for the President as time goes on. The spotlight will shine even more brightly, and Mr. Kennedy's successor in the White House will find himself with even less privacy, if that is conceivable."

Where He Goes, He's the Show

The Presidential family has had little personal privacy since 1960. Recently, for example, Mr. Kennedy went to New York for a weekend with his family. When he attended the theater, he was the show. When he went to a restaurant, what he and the First Lady ate was duly recorded—as was the news that the President was a $10 tipper.

On Sunday morning, Mr. Kennedy decided to take a stroll in Central Park with his five-year-old daughter Caroline and her young cousin. As soon as he stepped from the apartment house where he was staying, crowds bore down on him. The President took one look and retreated into the building with the children. "Why are we going back, Daddy?" Caroline wanted to know.

The President's reply was not heard, but he could have been thinking of the time last summer when he was mobbed by bikini-clad bathers at Santa Monica, Calif. While visiting his brother-in-law, movie actor Peter Lawford, the Presi-

MY MOST INSPIRING MOMENT

A famed war correspondent recalls a visit with Winston Churchill during England's darkest hour—and the words that were a prelude to glory

The Secret of Victory

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS

Author of "London Diary," "Dress Rehearsal," "Courtroom," "Known But to God," and the forthcoming autobiography, "By Quentin Reynolds"

ANY REASONABLY sane man who was in London in October, 1941, had to come to the reluctant conclusion that England was almost finished.

The Luftwaffe was chipping away at London nearly every night. Bombs had put many of the railroad terminals out of action, a hard blow because trains bearing war matériel all had to go through London. A dozen cities had been leveled, and the Luftwaffe seemed to grow stronger.

The only news that came from the fighting fronts was bad news. The Germans had occupied Greece, Yugoslavia, and Crete. On the Eastern front, the Germans were only 50 miles from Moscow, and most military observers thought that Russia soon would be knocked out of the war. This would release thousands of German planes to concentrate on bringing England to her knees. Rommel's Afrika Korps was clobbering British troops in the Libyan desert. Lend-Lease had brought England only a trickle of planes, tanks, and guns.

It was difficult for a correspondent like myself to write anything cheerful about the situation. We had exhausted the subject of the heroic fighting done by the R.A.F., and the courage of London's civilians was now an old story.

Many correspondents already had made up their minds that the Germans would soon invade England and that England had no adequate artillery or armored forces to stop them. The U.S. was not in the war yet, but there were a great many American military observers in England, and those to whom I talked were unanimous in saying that she was finished. It was hard not to share their views.

IT WAS DURING this dark period that I received an amazing telephone call. It was from Mrs. Winston Churchill, asking me to have lunch the next day at Chequers, the traditional country home of British prime ministers.

I was delighted but puzzled. I had never met either the Prime Minister or Mrs. Churchill. But I was ready when a car called for me. Less than an hour later, I was being greeted by a grinning Churchill.

"We have a friend of yours staying with us," he said. "Harry Hopkins. Hopkins is going to deliver a radio address on the B.B.C. next Sunday. He has had a long flight from Washington, and he thought you might help him with his speech."

That solved the mystery of why I had been invited. Only the Churchills, Harry Hopkins, and Averell Harriman were present at lunch, which, to my surprise, was an informal, almost gay, affair. The war was hardly mentioned.

By LESTER DAVID

dent decided to go for a swim in the Pacific. He strode through the gate of the Lawford home and onto a public beach—where hundreds of bathers nearly piled on top of him. Mr. Kennedy swam for 15 minutes, then emerged to be mobbed once more.

How does the President feel about all this? He accepts and enjoys much of it. Indeed, he often gives his Secret Service bodyguards scary moments when he strides into crowds to shake hands and swap greetings. However, the Kennedy temper can flash occasionally.

Once, while he was staying at Hyannis Port, a bunch of neighborhood youngsters gathered noisily near the grounds. Dawn was barely breaking, and the President wanted to relax before taking off for Vienna that day for a crucial meeting with Premier Khrushchev. When the babble became unendurable, Kennedy flung open his bedroom window, leaned out, and bellowed: "Hey, out there! Knock it off!" The kids did.

Jacqueline Kennedy is far more concerned than her husband about the effects of a goldfish-bowl existence upon Caroline and John, Jr. She talks wistfully about not being able to take Caroline to such places as the circus, because the public attention would disrupt the show. Her main goal is to provide her children with "normal and private" lives in the all-important formative years, but she finds it hard going.

No Togetherness for Caroline

Speaking of Caroline, she said, "Someday she will have to go to school, and if she is in the papers all the time, that will affect her classmates, and they will treat her differently."

In his book, Portrait of a President, William Manchester makes a remarkable, and somehow very sad, point. "Most mothers," he asserts, "look forward to the day their first child will be able to read. This mother dreads it, for hers will be reading about herself." That time is coming

Points of View on Presidential Privacy

ANDREW HATCHER, White House press aide:

"The public should be informed about the activities of the President, and it's my job to provide this information. Of course, I can always say 'no comment' when questions from the press reach the point of saturation, and this point is reached at times. We should understand, however, that when a man runs for public office, he accepts these hazards of intrusion upon his privacy."

WILLIAM BENTON, former U. S. Senator from Connecticut:

"The President does indeed need privacy—and a lot more of it. In England it is possible for the Queen to notify the press that her activities are to be private when she is off on a venture that does not involve official duties. Can't we develop a tradition of this kind, in which the press and tv would respect such wishes of the President or his wife?"

SEN. BIRCH E. BAYH, JR. (D.—Indiana):

"Anyone who runs for public office gives up a certain degree of personal privacy, but I feel we are pushing this to the maximum in the case of President Kennedy. In fact, we may even have reached the maximum. Of course, it's difficult to exercise restraint. We don't mob the President intentionally, but we do like to associate ourselves with him and to be near him. I know I do. But we tend to forget that, by so doing, we may be causing him and his family a real hardship."

JAMES C. HAGERTY, former press secretary to President Eisenhower, now an American Broadcasting Company vice president:

"I believe a President is entitled to some privacy and that his family is entitled to much more, particularly the children. He should be able to 'get away from it all' for brief periods of relaxation—in a fish stream as President Hoover loved to do, or in a boat as Presidents Roosevelt and Truman did, or on the golf course as President Eisenhower did. These precious few hours of relaxation are vitally important to a Chief Executive and afford him an opportunity to refresh himself with a change of pace from his awesome duties. But the job of the Presidency is not conducive to very much privacy."

REP. ROBERT TAFT, JR. (R.—Ohio):

"The President is certainly entitled to privacy as it relates to family matters, and I hope that we recognize this need. Up to now, it is rather apparent that we have not been recognizing this need as well as we might."

JAMES A. FARLEY, former postmaster general and Democratic National Committee chairman:

"President Kennedy likes people and loves to show his appreciation to them for electing him to the country's highest office. But the job is enormously taxing, and we should not make excessive and unnecessary demands upon him. We should permit him the time and the opportunity to unwind from the strains in private."

Churchill kept feeding his huge cat, Nelson, pieces of smoked salmon, which was our first course. He did it very surreptitiously, but finally handsome, white-haired Mrs. Churchill caught him at it and said reproachfully, "Winston, you're spoiling that cat frightfully!" The Prime Minister looked as sheepish as a boy caught with his hand in the apple barrel.

Churchill talked about motion pictures he had seen. "The film people send me three or four pictures each week. Last week they sent a Marx Brothers picture. I've seen it five times, and each time I see it I roar with laughter."

Hopkins said that President Roosevelt was a great movie fan and that he had had a projector installed in the White House.

THAT AFTERNOON I worked with Hopkins on his speech. We were just finishing when Mrs. Churchill came into Hopkins' room. "The Prime Minister and I hope you can stay for dinner," she said graciously. "Averell will be driving to London afterward, and he can drop you off."

The Churchill household observed the rationing laws meticulously. We had the same kind of meal that millions of English families were sitting down to. And again, there was only incidental mention of the war. Finally, Mrs. Churchill left us to our coffee, and now the atmosphere changed. Churchill talked with Hopkins and Harriman about problems of getting more tanks and aircraft to England. He talked freely—I was a friend of Hopkins and therefore could be trusted not to reveal anything of significance outside the room. Churchill passed his famous cigars around the table. As he smoked the huge but mild Cuban exports, he finally talked of the war in terms of the recent reverses.

"WE'VE HAD our setbacks this past month — serious ones," he said grimly. "But I'm not one bit discouraged. We have a long way to go, but with help from our friends across the sea," he nodded to Hopkins and Harriman, "we'll win out in the end.

"I'm sure the Luftwaffe will continue to harass London," he continued; even at his dinner table his voice was the same sonorous voice we had heard so often on the radio. "But every time they come over, our night fighters take big chunks out of them. Their bombers have crews of four or five. Every time we down 20 of their bombers, it means they have lost nearly 100 trained men. They can replace planes but not men.

"Max Beaverbrook is turning out Spitfires fast." (Beaverbrook was then in charge of producing aircraft.) "The balance of air power will soon be in our favor. You notice it has been a long time since they attempted any day raids." He chuckled. "They know it is suicide to come over this island by day.

"Do you want to know something?" his whole face smiled. "That evil man Hitler knows that he is beaten. I say this even now when his submarines are sinking our vessels in the Atlantic, even now when his troops seem to have the upper hand in the desert. But we are growing stronger every day, and he knows it. You correspondents," he turned to me, "have been writing about how well England can take it. In a few months, believe me, you will be writing—if I may use American slang—about how well England can dish it out. We'll be on the offensive soon, and Hitler knows it."

He lit a fresh cigar and gazed reflectively through the cloud of blue-gray smoke. He was thinking aloud now, seemingly making a pledge to some unseen power. Then he pointed to the empty chair at the foot of the table, where Mrs. Churchill had sat.

"Hitler would like to be sitting in that chair right now," he said solemnly. "He'd like to be talking to me, asking me if there wasn't some way out for him. I would tell him that his type of political philosophy would have to be stamped out and him with it. I would tell him that if my allies agree, I would be in favor of trying him in an international court, and if he were found guilty of being an international criminal, as I know he would be, I would be in favor of having him exterminated."

I think we were all hypnotized by this magnetic, confident figure who thought only in terms of eventual victory. "Our President feels exactly as you do, Mr. Churchill," Hopkins said.

"I know," Churchill chuckled. "I speak to him two or three times a week by phone. We both know it will take time and entail sacrifices, but we are both confident that we will bring that evil man to his knees."

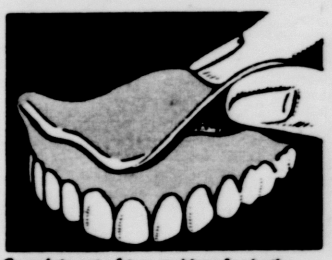

AS HIS strong voice vibrated through the room, I found myself completely captivated. The Germans were threatening Tobruk, were about to swallow Russia, and were leveling war factories all over England. But what of it? Churchill wasn't worried. His voice and indomitable spirit filled the room. Suddenly I realized that there were some 44 million lesser Churchills in England, and he was voicing their own tremendous confidence. After months of hearing nothing but ominous talk about how England was being weakened, I was awestruck—and I, too, felt confident. An hour listening to Churchill had changed my thinking completely.

I left with Harriman an hour later. Churchill walked to the front door with us. He shook hands and said good-bye. We climbed into the car. Churchill stood there in the huge Gothic doorway, and the dim light inside silhouetted him—sturdy, rock-like, immovable. His cigar was stuck in the corner of his mouth at a jaunty angle. As we left, he grinned and waved.

Now all my doubts were gone. His absolute confidence in eventual victory had rubbed off on me, had completely inspired me, and now I felt as he did. The next day I wrote an article and sent it to the magazine for which I worked. I called it, "England Won't Lose."

New York and Hartford, Conn., as boardinghouses. "When I'm not there," she says, "it's open house to any of my friends who need a place to stay."

Although Katie's California house was built for John Barrymore, it reflects the informality and casualness of her life. The walls are bare except for travel posters; most of the furniture is functional, some of it homemade.

The studiolike room where I interviewed her contained a huge gas heater which was trying vainly to combat the cold draft pouring in through open windows and doors. Scattered about the room were a sculpture, an easel, brushes, a few paintings (Katie refused to point out which ones she had done), a parcheesi game, a picture of George Bernard Shaw, some books, including Bette Davis' "The Lonely Life," and a tray with Scotch, soda water, and glasses (mostly for guests; Katie prefers milk—eight glasses a day).

HER OUTFIT matched the setting. She wore loose beige pants, a black knit pull-over sweater, brown buckled Oxfords, and white socks. Her reddish-brown hair was pulled back tightly in a tousled bun. She wore no make-up, and the freckles which are her trade-mark were as obvious as always. "I was never interested in clothes," she said, "and I can't stand wasting time fixing my hair or nails."

Katie's boyish mannerisms and attire date back to her childhood in Hartford. "I used to cut my hair in a close crop and call myself Jimmy," she recalled. "This solved the problem of being accepted by boys. To tell you the truth, I looked more like a boy than my brothers—and I was tough! I used to get into fights with boys and usually I won."

Katharine was the second oldest of six children. When her older brother died in an accident, she took his place and remained close to her father all his life. He died only a few months ago at 81—shortly after he and Redtop, as he called her, had taken a trip to the Middle East during which they used every means of transportation from jeeps and boats to horses and camels.

It is rather surprising that Katie didn't follow her father's footsteps into medicine. "He was a neurosurgeon, and I watched him operate many times," she told me. "It didn't bother me at all; I rather enjoyed it. When I went to Bryn Mawr, I had hoped to study medicine, but then I said to myself, 'Oh, well, women surgeons—who's going to have any confidence in them?' There was so much prejudice against professional women in this country that I gave up the idea and decided to get my B.A. instead."

Her decision is surprising considering that her mother was a famous champion of feminist causes. "She was always involved in rallies and parades, and I used to go with her," Katharine recalls.

Once Katie talked herself out of medicine, becoming an actress was a logical step; she had always loved the movies. "I would shovel more snow than any boy in the neighborhood to get money to go to the movies. In the summer I cut lawns and did other odd jobs to buy movie magazines. I could name every actor and actress and every film ever made."

Katharine made her Broadway debut in "The Warrior's Husband," which led to her being signed for her first film, "Bill of Divorcement," opposite John Barrymore. With the release of this film and "Morning Glory," for which she won the Academy Award as Best Actress of 1933, her career went into high gear.

BUT ALTHOUGH she has been in films for more than 30 years, she has appeared in fewer than 30 pictures. "I do very few things, but I pick parts with extra care," she explained. "If you have a very good role, you generally get nominated for an award."

Her selections have resulted in some of the finest performances in movie history—in "Little Women," "The Philadelphia Story," "Keeper of the Flame," "The African Queen," "Summertime," and "The Rainmaker."

With a comparatively light work load and no husband or children to occupy her time, it would seem hers is a lonely life. But Katharine insists not. "I have always been very close to my family, much more so than the average person." That's why she was so hard hit when her mother died in 1953, and even more so when her father died a few months ago.

"Dad and I were almost inseparable—girls are usually closer to their fathers. I helped raise my brothers and sisters, and they were like my own children. And now their 16 children are like my grandchildren. Me lonely? For goodness' sake, no!"

A famed war correspondent recalls a visit with Winston Churchill during England's darkest hour—and the words that were a prelude to glory

The Secret of Victory

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS

Author of "London Diary," "Dress Rehearsal," "Courtroom," "Known But to God," and the forthcoming autobiography, "By Quentin Reynolds"

ANY REASONABLY sane man who was in London in October, 1941, had to come to the reluctant conclusion that England was almost finished.

The Luftwaffe was chipping away at London nearly every night. Bombs had put many of the railroad terminals out of action, a hard blow because trains bearing war matériel all had to go through London. A dozen cities had been leveled, and the Luftwaffe seemed to grow stronger.

The only news that came from the fighting fronts was bad news. The Germans had occupied Greece, Yugoslavia, and Crete. On the Eastern front, the Germans were only 50 miles from Moscow, and most military observers thought that Russia soon would be knocked out of the war. This would release thousands of German planes to concentrate on bringing England to her knees. Rommel's Afrika Korps was clobbering British troops in the Libyan desert. Lend-Lease had brought England only a trickle of planes, tanks, and guns.

It was difficult for a correspondent like myself to write anything cheerful about the situation. We had exhausted the subject of the heroic fighting done by the R.A.F., and the courage of London's civilians was now an old story.

Many correspondents already had made up their minds that the Germans would soon invade England and that England had no adequate artillery or armored forces to stop them. The U.S. was not in the war yet, but there were a great many American military observers in England, and those to whom I talked were unanimous in saying that she was finished. It was hard not to share their views.

IT WAS DURING this dark period that I received an amazing telephone call. It was from Mrs. Winston Churchill, asking me to have lunch the next day at Chequers, the traditional country home of British prime ministers.

I was delighted but puzzled. I had never met either the Prime Minister or Mrs. Churchill. But I was ready when a car called for me. Less than an hour later, I was being greeted by a grinning Churchill.

"We have a friend of yours staying with us," he said. "Harry Hopkins. Hopkins is going to deliver a radio address on the B.B.C. next Sunday. He has had a long flight from Washington, and he thought you might help him with his speech."

That solved the mystery of why I had been invited. Only the Churchills, Harry Hopkins, and Averell Harriman were present at lunch, which, to my surprise, was an informal, almost gay, affair. The war was hardly mentioned.

soon, for Caroline will be six in November.

Jackie puts her foot down firmly against all special interviews and pictures of the children. This is a turnabout from the earlier days of the Administration when Caroline made coast-to-coast headlines with her amusing antics.

Indeed, the President himself did little to discourage such publicity at the start because he adores his pixyish daughter so much. Finally Jackie's firmness prevailed; Caroline is no longer permitted to have "press conferences" such as the famous one more than a year ago when a reporter asked her what her father was doing and she replied: "He's not doing anything. He's just sitting up there with his shoes and socks off, doing nothing."

The clamp-down on Caroline's publicity, however, cannot stop the tidal wave of gossipy articles about the family which are published month after month in the movie and "confession" magazines. One recent cover line read: "How Long Can They Hide the Truth from Caroline Kennedy?". The "truth" was nothing more startling than the fact that Caroline's father is the President, her mother the First Lady, and that she, too, is a celebrity.

These sensationalized articles have grown so numerous and so personal that President Kennedy himself has taken notice. Terming them "cheesy," he has asked his press secretary Pierre Salinger to see if anything can be done.

But the Kennedys are by no means unique in all this. The problem of privacy has plagued all American Presidents and their families.

In Grover Cleveland's time, the south garden of the White House was open to the public, and Mrs. Cleveland soon discovered that she couldn't send her baby daughter Ruth out for an airing with her nurse. Each time, women would dash over, shove the nurse aside, and actually pick up, fondle, and kiss the baby. Finally, to protect his daughter, the President had to close the garden.

Some Presidents tried—unsuccessfully—to take their families out of the White House entirely. The Benjamin Harrisons wanted to build a private dwelling, closed to the public, on the White House grounds. The Chester A. Arthurs went as far as choosing a spot near Washington where they wanted to build a home, but Congress refused to appropriate funds because real-estate speculators had gotten wind of the idea and bought up nearby land. President Arthur demanded the strictest privacy for his family. His daughter Nell was brought up in almost total seclusion and was photographed only once while he was President.

Mr. Truman and His Balcony

The one time Harry Truman firmly insisted upon privacy, he triggered a national furor. Back home in Independence, Mo., Mr. Truman loved to sit on his porch in the evening. But when he tried it in front of the White House, he became a prime tourist attraction, easily spotted from the front gate with binoculars. So he decided to build a second-floor "back porch" on the south portico.

Howls of protest arose from many quarters. The porch, it was charged, would spoil the classic line of the building, and Mr. Truman was reminded that he was, after all, only a tenant at the White House, not its owner. But he stood his ground. He wanted the right to a breath of fresh air in privacy—and he got it. The porch is still there today.

"He certainly did, especially when reporters asked what he felt were silly, prying questions. He answered most but drew the line at others. He felt, for example, that his golf score was nobody's business, so he never revealed it.

"Often he was unable to get much-needed relaxation. Once word got around that he planned to play golf at Palm Springs, Calif. Such a crowd gathered that he couldn't enjoy the game. When incidents such as this multiply, they can hurt."

Is there a solution? One observer in Washington thinks not. "When a man seeks the Presidency, he knows he must give up all hope for a normal home life. Everything he does, thinks, wears, and says is news. He belongs to the nation. While some of the so-called intrusions may show bad taste, they are nonetheless part of our democratic process."

But others believe the notion that a President is everyone's property at all hours and in every circumstance is wrong. They point out that the President is also a person and that he—and most especially his family—are entitled to some degree of privacy.

As one official put it: "When a man is elected President, he is raised to an exalted position, but he still belongs to the human race, and privacy is the right of all humans."

HULLO THERE, Clyde. I'm lookin' for a feller named . . . uh . . . lemme see . . . H. D. Tharew. You see him?

My name is Thoreau. Henry Thoreau.

Oh. Well, listen, Hank, the folks in Discord aren't too happy about this place you got out here in the woods. It don't look good. Gives the place a bad name.

I don't bother the people in Discord. I see no reason why they should bother me.

Town's thinkin' of puttin' a new freeway through this swamp. Figure we can get the govmint to hold still for federal funds. Got to be progressive, you know. Might put up a shopping center or industrial tract. Be good for business.

Business? What have I to do with business? I walk here in the woods. I listen to the music of the world about me. Go away, sir. Leave us alone.

Oh, come on, Hank, or whoever you are. You can't stand in the way of progress. We got to tear down and build up. You been out here too long. Times change.

Come off it. What kinda beatnik are you? I tell you this junk heap has got to go. I heard about you sittin' out here eatin' berries and talkin' to snakes. You got a corner on a valuable piece of property here, Mac. We kin get us a court order and throw you out by morning.

Morning is when I am awake and there is a dawn in me.

What? People don't go for that jazz. We got progress, I tell you. We put up neon signs and beer joints and superhighways and low-rent housing. We got to have more public buildings to write our names on and more popcorn for the sacks we throw on the highway. We got a moon rocket cookin' and trouble with the Reds and you sit around here doin' nothin'. You're unpatriotic, that's what. You're a pinko.

Well, I've had it. O.K., boys, come and get him. I told you this Tharew would be as kooky as they come. Now Hank, you just let these nice fellers put that little jacket on you. They're gonna take you for a ride in that big car. You don't wanta sit around in the woods holdin' a fish in your hands and talkin' that crazy junk the rest of your life, do you?

What are you, Tharew? Some kind of nut?

New York and Hartford, Conn., as boardinghouses. "When I'm not there," she says, "it's open house to any of my friends who need a place to stay."

Although Katie's California house was built for John Barrymore, it reflects the informality and casualness of her life. The walls are bare except for travel posters; most of the furniture is functional, some of it homemade.

The studiolike room where I interviewed her contained a huge gas heater which was trying vainly to combat the cold draft pouring in through open windows and doors. Scattered about the room were a sculpture, an easel, brushes, a few paintings (Katie refused to point out which ones she had done), a parcheesi game, a picture of George Bernard Shaw, some books, including Bette Davis' "The Lonely Life," and a tray with Scotch, soda water, and glasses (mostly for guests; Katie prefers milk—eight glasses a day).

HER OUTFIT matched the setting. She wore loose beige pants, a black knit pull-over sweater, brown buckled Oxfords, and white socks. Her reddish-brown hair was pulled back tightly in a tousled bun. She wore no make-up, and the freckles which are her trade-mark were as obvious as always. "I was never interested in clothes," she said, "and I can't stand wasting time fixing my hair or nails."

Katie's boyish mannerisms and attire date back to her childhood in Hartford. "I used to cut my hair in a close crop and call myself Jimmy," she recalled. "This solved the problem of being accepted by boys. To tell you the truth, I looked more like a boy than my brothers—and I was tough! I used to get into fights with boys and usually I won."

Katharine was the second oldest of six children. When her older brother died in an accident, she took his place and remained close to her father all his life. He died only a few months ago at 81—shortly after he and Redtop, as he called her, had taken a trip to the Middle East during which they used every means of transportation from jeeps and boats to horses and camels.

It is rather surprising that Katie didn't follow her father's footsteps into medicine. "He was a neurosurgeon, and I watched him operate many times," she told me. "It didn't bother me at all; I rather enjoyed it. When I went to Bryn Mawr, I had hoped to study medicine, but then I said to myself, 'Oh, well, women surgeons—who's going to have any confidence in them?' There was so much prejudice against professional women in this country that I gave up the idea and decided to get my B.A. instead."

Her decision is surprising considering that her mother was a famous champion of feminist causes. "She was always involved in rallies and parades, and I used to go with her," Katharine recalls.

Once Katie talked herself out of medicine, becoming an actress was a logical step; she had always loved the movies. "I would shovel more snow than any boy in the neighborhood to get money to go to the movies. In the summer I cut lawns and did other odd jobs to buy movie magazines. I could name every actor and actress and every film ever made."

Katharine made her Broadway debut in "The Warrior's Husband," which led to her being signed for her first film, "Bill of Divorcement," opposite John Barrymore. With the release of this film and "Morning Glory," for which she won the Academy Award as Best Actress of 1933, her career went into high gear.

BUT ALTHOUGH she has been in films for more than 30 years, she has appeared in fewer than 30 pictures. "I do very few things, but I pick parts with extra care," she explained. "If you have a very good role, you generally get nominated for an award."

Her selections have resulted in some of the finest performances in movie history—in "Little Women," "The Philadelphia Story," "Keeper of the Flame," "The African Queen," "Summertime," and "The Rainmaker."

With a comparatively light work load and no husband or children to occupy her time, it would seem hers is a lonely life. But Katharine insists not. "I have always been very close to my family, much more so than the average person." That's why she was so hard hit when her mother died in 1953, and even more so when her father died a few months ago.

"Dad and I were almost inseparable—girls are usually closer to their fathers. I helped raise my brothers and sisters, and they were like my own children. And now their 16 children are like my grandchildren. Me lonely? For goodness' sake, no!"

CUISINE IN KEEPING WITH Elegance

Family Weekly Cookbook • MELANIE DE PROFT, Food Editor

Limon con Cocado

(allow 24 hrs. for lemon shells to stand in water)

8 medium-sized lemons (reserve ¼ teaspoon peel grated from ends)
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon or 2 cinnamon sticks
2 3½-oz. cans flaked coconut

1. Cut a slice from pointed end of each lemon to allow for a 1-in. opening. Trim off opposite ends of lemons so that shells will stand upright.

2. Carefully scoop and strain only enough pulp from lemons to yield 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Combine lemon juice and the grated lemon peel, cover, and refrigerate until ready to use the following day.

3. Put lemons into a large saucepan. Cover with cold water, bring to boiling, and simmer 5 min.; drain. Repeat process twice. Rinse and drain. Cover lemons with cold water, cover saucepan, and set aside for 24 hrs.

4. Drain; cover with water; bring to boiling and simmer 15 min., or until lemons are tender. Drain, cool, and carefully remove the remaining pulp and membrane. Rinse thoroughly and invert to drain completely.

5. Heat 1 cup water and the sugar together in the saucepan, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Bring to boiling, add the lemon shells, and simmer 10 min., moving and turning shells frequently. Remove from heat and allow shells to stand in sirup 5 or 10 min. Transfer shells to a shallow serving dish.

6. Add 1 cup water, the cinnamon, and the reserved lemon peel and juice to the sirup. Bring to boiling and boil 15 min.

8 servings

Note: This dessert may be prepared a day in advance of serving and stored in refrigerator. If desired, bring to room temperature.

Miniatures Florentine

1 egg, well beaten
¼ cup finely chopped fresh spinach
1 tablespoon finely chopped unblanched almonds
¼ clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains black pepper

1. Mix all ingredients thoroughly in a bowl.

2. Meanwhile, heat a griddle or heavy skillet until moderately hot.

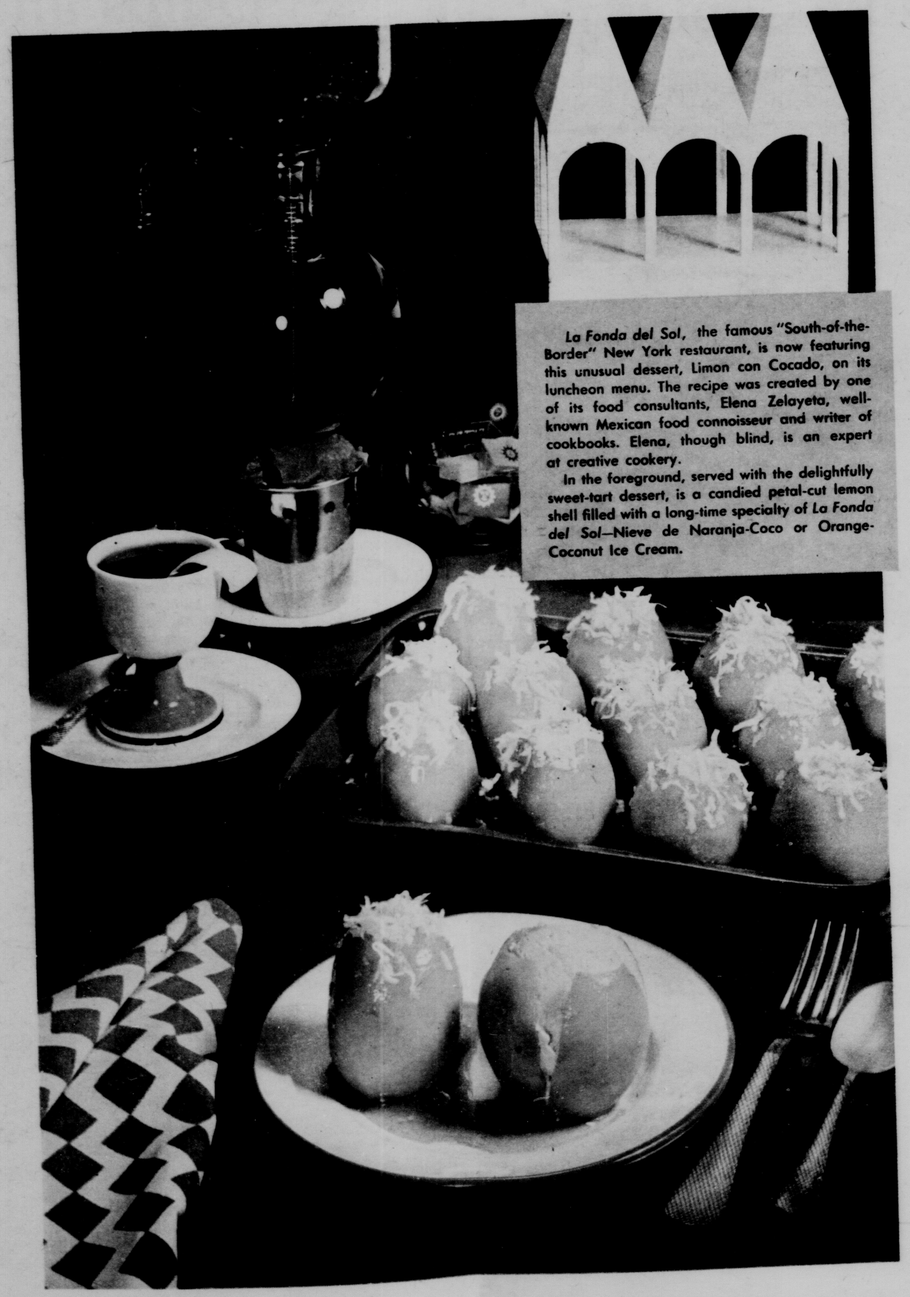

3. Lightly butter the griddle. Spoon the batter onto it, spreading to make a round about 7 in. in diameter. Bake until lightly browned, about 3 min.; turn and brown second side.

4. Using hors d'oeuvre cutters (½ in. in diameter), cut out shapes from the griddlecake. Serve a spoonful in each serving of soup.

Standing Rib Roast of Beef

Place roast, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Roast uncovered at 300°F, allowing 18 to 20 min. per pound for rare, 22 to 25 min. per pound for medium, and 27 to 30 min. per pound for well-done meat. Let roast stand 20 to 30 min. before serving; this allows meat to absorb its juices and become easier to carve.

Gravy—Remove meat from roasting pan. Leaving brown residue in pan, pour off drippings into a 2-cup measuring cup. Skim fat from drippings, returning 3 tablespoons to pan for gravy. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon black pepper. Heat until mixture bubbles, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in 2 cups liquid (reserved drippings, water, or beef broth). Return to heat; bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly; boil 1 to 2 min. About 2 cups

La Fonda del Sol, the famous "South-of-the-Border" New York restaurant, is now featuring this unusual dessert, Limon con Cocado, on its luncheon menu. The recipe was created by one of its food consultants, Elena Zelayeta, well-known Mexican food connoisseur and writer of cookbooks. Elena, though blind, is an expert at creative cookery.

In the foreground, served with the delightfully sweet-tart dessert, is a candied petal-cut lemon shell filled with a long-time specialty of La Fonda del Sol—Nieve de Naranja-Coco or Orange-Coconut Ice Cream.

Potatoes with Pimiento-Onion Butter

3 lbs. small potatoes, cooked, peeled, and cut in halves
3 tablespoons beef broth
1½ tablespoons instant minced onion
½ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

1. Add broth to onion; let stand a few minutes.

2. Melt butter in a small skillet; add onion and cook over low heat about 3 min. Add pimiento and pour over hot potatoes. Garnish with small sprigs of parsley and serve immediately.

8 to 10 servings

Creamy Curried Green Beans

2 9-oz. pkgs. frozen cut green beans, partially thawed
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon black pepper
1 cup dairy sour cream, heated
½ to 1 teaspoon curry powder

1. Combine the first five ingredients in a saucepan. Cover tightly and bring to steaming over medium heat; reduce heat and cook until beans are tender, 10 to 15 min.

2. Blend curry powder into sour cream. Toss beans with sour cream until well coated. Serve hot, sprinkled with additional curry powder, if desired. About 8 servings

Asparagus Spears with Crunch

½ cup butter
½ cup coarsely crushed crackers (thin triangle-shaped crackers, wheat wafers, or sesame wafers)

1. While asparagus is cooking, lightly brown butter over low heat, stirring occasionally. Mix in the coarsely crushed crackers.

2. Arrange cooked asparagus on a heated serving platter; salt lightly. Top with the buttered crumb mixture. Serve hot. About 8 servings

Butter Semmels

GOOD FOR FREEZING

1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water, 110°F to 115°F (Or if using compressed yeast, soften 1 cake in ¼ cup lukewarm water, 80°F to 85°F.)
½ cup warm mashed potato (unseasoned)
½ cup sugar
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 cups milk, scalded
8 to 8½ cups flour
2 eggs, well beaten
Melted butter
Poppy seed or toasted sesame seed

1. Soften yeast in water in a bowl; let stand 5 to 10 min.

2. Beat in a mixture of mashed potato and ½ cup sugar. Cover with waxed paper and a towel; let stand in a warm place (about 80°F) until doubled and light and bubbly, about 1½ hrs.

3. Put butter, remaining ½ cup sugar, and salt into a large bowl. Add scalded milk and stir until butter is melted; cool to lukewarm.

4. Add 1 cup of the flour and beat until smooth. Beat in the eggs and then the yeast mixture. Add remaining flour gradually, beating in enough to form a soft dough. Turn onto a well-floured surface and knead until dough is smooth, about 6 min.

5. Place in a greased bowl; turn dough to bring greased surface to top. Cover; let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 1½ hrs.

6. Punch down dough. Using about one-fourth of the dough at a time, put onto a lightly floured surface and shape as desired into braids, snails, crescents, or twists.

7. To shape dough into braids, roll out portion of dough ¼ in. thick. Cut into 3x¾-in. strips. With hands, roll and stretch each strip. Braid three strips together, tuck ends under and place on greased baking sheet. Proceed, using remaining strips.

9. Bake at 400°F 8 min., or until delicately browned. About 6 doz. rolls

Imperials

GOOD FOR FREEZING

¼ cup unsalted butter
¼ cup sugar
4 egg yolks, well beaten
1 cup sifted flour
Confectioners' sugar

1. Cream butter; add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy. Add egg yolks in thirds, beating thoroughly after each addition.

2. Add flour in halves, mixing until blended. Refrigerate dough until thoroughly chilled, about 2 hrs.

3. Shape dough into ¾-in. balls. Place about 2 in. apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Flatten with a glass dipped in confectioners' sugar.

4. Bake at 350°F 8 min., or until edges are lightly browned. Remove cookies to cooling racks and cool completely. About 6 doz. cookies

Paternal Vespers

The mills of the office gods today
Were full of sand and rocks.
Behold our hero, limp from the fray
And tired to his sagging socks.

Almost ready to flop,
To meet the cries of his eager young:
"Ride us piggyback, Pop!"

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

A tourist got mixed up at a detour and found himself hopelessly lost one night. He stopped at a roadside home to make inquiries of a woman rocking on the porch.

"Am I going in the right direction for the city?" he asked.

"Oh, they're pointing the right way," she replied. And then as he started off, she added, "At least the red ones are."

—Francis Benson

Husbands' Springtime Fancy

Hail the season soft and vernal,
When husbands sing of joys eternal,
And cry (unstrung by spring's fell spark)
—"Fly with me to the baseball park!"

—Betty Billipp

The six-year-old boy was painfully self-conscious about his first pair of eyeglasses. When the little girl next door asked him about them, he tried to pass them off lightly. "Oh, I don't wear them always. Just for close work, the doctor says."

"What close work?" his girl friend asked.

Tripping Along

Smooth are the roads designed for wheels,
But sidewalks have cracks to catch my heels! —Suzanne Douglas

". . . two ounces strawberry sirup . . . four ounces malted milk . . . say, where did you get this prescription?"

"Billy," said the teacher, "what is meant by the word 'relax'?"

"Don't know," mumbled Billy.

"Well, what does your father do every evening after work?" the teacher continued helpfully.

—F. G. Kernan

Yes . . . The Mother of God WILL Help You!

You may not approve of the age-old Catholic devotion to the Blessed Virgin.

Perhaps you have heard—and believed—that this is "un-Scriptural" . . . that Catholics are trying to establish Mary as a divine person equal in power to God.

But if you will look at the facts, you will see that these things are not true . . . and you will realize that Mary can exert a wonderful influence in your personal life.

It certainly is not "un-Scriptural" to recognize that Mary is the Mother of Jesus Christ. If we are to be truly "Scriptural," we must further acknowledge that Christ is the eternal Son of the eternal Father—a Divine Person Who assumed a human nature like ours in all things except sin. And while Mary did not give Jesus His divine nature, the Savior was her Son . . . as truly as anyone is the son of his own mother.

In view of these truths, how can anyone look upon Mary as just another woman, or just another mother? Why should we hesitate to honor one whom God so greatly honored . . . and upon whom He conferred a surpassing holiness and complete freedom from sin? Why should we believe that one so close to the Son of God in His earthly life is not close and dear to Him in His eternal Kingdom?

It is erroneous, of course, to think that Catholics worship Mary as a divine person. But we do love and venerate her for the unique place she occupies in God's plan for our salvation . . . for her intimate association with the all-holy Son of God . . . for her own holiness.

But, you may say—why pray to Mary when we can pray directly to God, as the Scriptures command? The answer is that Catholics do pray to God. They seek from Him grace and forgiveness—blessings which only God can grant. But no law of God commands us, when we go to Him in prayer . . . that we must go alone.

Like St. Paul, we believe in praying for others and having others pray for us. And whose prayers could find greater favor in the sight of God than those of the Mother of His Divine Son?

These are the chief reasons for the world-wide Catholic devotion to the Blessed Virgin and why millions in every land and language are heard to pray:

The name of the Blessed Virgin is in the headlines these days . . . and people everywhere are discussing her place in Catholic devotions. We will send you a pamphlet about Mary's place in the Christian creed. Nobody will call on you. Write today for Pamphlet No. FM-24.

Katharine Hepburn:

Hollywood's Mystery Woman

No star has been more adroit at dodging personal questions, but here the curtain surrounding her private life lifts a little—as she gives her first really revealing interview in 30 years By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

I WAS A BIT apprehensive as I walked up to the Birdcage, the big house high above Beverly Hills where Katharine Hepburn lives.

For all practical purposes, she had not talked to an interviewer about her personal life since she won an Academy Award for "Morning Glory" 30 years ago.

Since then, Miss Hepburn has been nominated for Oscars eight times (including this year for "Long Day's Journey into Night"), yet she has remained the mystery woman of Hollywood, granting few interviews—and even then volunteering little more than professional opinions about her work.

But for some inexplicable reason, the afternoon I saw her she was in a mellow and talkative mood, willing to discuss anything.

When interviewed 30 years ago, Miss Hepburn struck back at what she considered an invasion of her privacy by telling the reporter that she had been married 3 times and had 10 children.

This time, however, she discussed her one unsuccessful marriage with little hesitation: "It happened in 1928 and lasted six years. Unfortunately, we had no children." Her husband was Ludlow Smith, an industrial engineer. Since then, she never has been even close to matrimony.

KATHARINE is a mystery not only to the public but to her co-workers as well. Only a handful of people are close to her—among them George Cukor, who directed some of her most successful pictures, and Spencer Tracy, with whom she co-starred in eight films. Her other friends are not in the entertainment industry.

In all Katharine's years in Hollywood, she never has been to a night club, and she admits, "I can count on the fingers of one hand the times I've been to a restaurant." What's more, she has ignored the folkways of filmland by never attending a movie première. Her reason: "I don't want to go. I just wasn't brought up that way. My family never went out; we always had a very good time at home. When I go out, I get excited and it gives me indigestion."

Yet when you meet Katie, you find there is nothing of the dour recluse about her. She is a vigorous, exciting, and hospitable woman, who refers to her California home and her town houses in

In "Lona Day's Journey into Night," Miss Hepburn plays the tormented mother.

CUISINE IN KEEPING WITH Elegance

Limon con Cocado

(allow 24 hrs. for lemon shells to stand in water)

8 medium-sized lemons (reserve ¼ teaspoon peel grated from ends)
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon or 2 cinnamon sticks
2 3½-oz. cans flaked coconut

1. Cut a slice from pointed end of each lemon to allow for a 1-in. opening. Trim off opposite ends of lemons so that shells will stand upright.
2. Carefully scoop and strain only enough pulp from lemons to yield 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Combine lemon juice and the grated lemon peel, cover, and refrigerate until ready to use the following day.
3. Put lemons into a large saucepan. Cover with cold water, bring to boiling, and simmer 5 min.; drain. Repeat process twice. Rinse and drain. Cover lemons with cold water, cover saucepan, and set aside for 24 hrs.
4. Drain; cover with water; bring to boiling and simmer 15 min., or until lemons are tender. Drain, cool, and carefully remove the remaining pulp and membrane. Rinse thoroughly and invert to drain completely.
5. Heat 1 cup water and the sugar together in the saucepan, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Bring to boiling, add the lemon shells, and simmer 10 min., moving and turning shells frequently. Remove from heat and allow shells to stand in sirup 5 or 10 min. Transfer shells to a shallow serving dish.
6. Add 1 cup water, the cinnamon, and the reserved lemon peel and juice to the sirup. Bring to boiling and boil 15 min.
7. Meanwhile, stuff lemon shells with the coconut. Pour sirup over the lemons. Set in refrigerator to cool about 1 hr. before serving.

Note: This dessert may be prepared a day in advance of serving and stored in refrigerator. If desired, bring to room temperature.

Miniatures Florentine

Float these vivid green cutouts on individual servings of hot bouillon or consommé.

1 egg, well beaten
¼ cup finely chopped fresh spinach
1 tablespoon finely chopped unblanched almonds
⅛ clove garlic, minced
⅛ teaspoon salt
Few grains black pepper

1. Mix all ingredients thoroughly in a bowl.
2. Meanwhile, heat a griddle or heavy skillet until moderately hot.
3. Lightly butter the griddle. Spoon the batter onto it, spreading to make a round about 7 in. in diameter. Bake until lightly browned, about 3 min.; turn and brown second side.
4. Using hors d'oeuvre cutters (½ in. in diameter), cut out shapes from the griddlecake. Serve a spoonful in each serving of soup.

Standing Rib Roast of Beef

Place roast, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Roast uncovered at 300°F, allowing 18 to 20 min. per pound for rare, 22 to 25 min. per pound for medium, and 27 to 30 min. per pound for well-done meat. Let roast stand 20 to 30 min. before serving; this allows meat to absorb its juices and become easier to carve.

Gravy—Remove meat from roasting pan. Leaving brown residue in pan, pour off drippings into a 2-cup measuring cup. Skim fat from drippings, returning 3 tablespoons to pan for gravy. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon black pepper. Heat until mixture bubbles, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in 2 cups liquid (reserved drippings, water, or beef broth). Return to heat; bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly; boil 1 to 2 min. About 2 cups

La Fonda del Sol, the famous "South-of-the-Border" New York restaurant, is now featuring this unusual dessert, Limon con Cocado, on its luncheon menu. The recipe was created by one of its food consultants, Elena Zelayeta, well-known Mexican food connoisseur and writer of cookbooks. Elena, though blind, is an expert at creative cookery.

In the foreground, served with the delightfully sweet-tart dessert, is a candied petal-cut lemon shell filled with a long-time specialty of La Fonda del Sol—Nieve de Naranja-Coco or Orange-Coconut Ice Cream.

Potatoes with Pimiento-Onion Butter

3 lbs. small potatoes, cooked, peeled, and cut in halves
3 tablespoons beef broth
1½ tablespoons instant minced onion
½ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

1. Add broth to onion; let stand a few minutes.
2. Melt butter in a small skillet; add onion and cook over low heat about 3 min. Add pimiento and pour over hot potatoes. Garnish with small sprigs of parsley and serve immediately.

8 to 10 servings

Creamy Curried Green Beans

2 9-oz. pkgs. frozen cut green beans, partially thawed
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
1 cup dairy sour cream, heated
½ to 1 teaspoon curry powder

1. Combine the first five ingredients in a saucepan. Cover tightly and bring to steaming over medium heat; reduce heat and cook until beans are tender, 10 to 15 min.
2. Blend curry powder into sour cream. Toss beans with sour cream until well coated. Serve hot, sprinkled with additional curry powder, if desired. About 8 servings

Asparagus Spears with Crunch

2 lbs. asparagus spears, cooked
½ cup butter
½ cup coarsely crushed crackers (thin triangle-shaped crackers, wheat wafers, or sesame wafers)

1. While asparagus is cooking, lightly brown butter over low heat, stirring occasionally. Mix in the coarsely crushed crackers.
2. Arrange cooked asparagus on a heated serving platter; salt lightly. Top with the buttered crumb mixture. Serve hot. About 8 servings

Butter Semmels

GOOD FOR FREEZING

1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water, 110°F to 115°F (Or if using compressed yeast, soften 1 cake in ¼ cup lukewarm water, 80°F to 85°F.)
½ cup warm mashed potato (unseasoned)
½ cup sugar
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 cups milk, scalded
8 to 8½ cups flour
2 eggs, well beaten
Melted butter
Poppy seed or toasted sesame seed

1. Soften yeast in water in a bowl; let stand 5 to 10 min.
2. Beat in a mixture of mashed potato and ½ cup sugar. Cover with waxed paper and a towel; let stand in a warm place (about 80°F) until doubled and light and bubbly, about 1½ hrs.
3. Put butter, remaining ½ cup sugar, and salt into a large bowl. Add scalded milk and stir until butter is melted; cool to lukewarm.
4. Add 1 cup of the flour and beat until smooth. Beat in the eggs and then the yeast mixture. Add remaining flour gradually, beating in enough to form a soft dough. Turn onto a well-floured surface and knead until dough is smooth, about 6 min.
5. Place in a greased bowl; turn dough to bring greased surface to top. Cover; let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 1½ hrs.
6. Punch down dough. Using about one-fourth of the dough at a time, put onto a lightly floured surface and shape as desired into braids, snails, crescents, or twists.
7. To shape dough into braids, roll out portion of dough ¼ in. thick. Cut into 3x¾-in. strips. With hands, roll and stretch each strip. Braid three strips together, tuck ends under and place on greased baking sheet. Proceed, using remaining strips.
8. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with sesame or poppy seed. Cover; let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 1 hr.
9. Bake at 400°F 8 min., or until delicately browned. About 6 doz. rolls

GOOD FOR FREEZING

4 egg yolks, well beaten
1 cup sifted flour
Confectioners' sugar

1. Cream butter; add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy. Add egg yolks in thirds, beating thoroughly after each addition.
2. Add flour in halves, mixing until blended. Refrigerate dough until thoroughly chilled, about 2 hrs.
3. Shape dough into ¾-in. balls. Place about 2 in. apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Flatten with a glass dipped in confectioners' sugar.
4. Bake at 350°F 8 min., or until edges are lightly browned. Remove cookies to cooling racks and cool completely. About 6 doz. cookies
